Men of Affairs

in

The State of Utah

UTAH STATE CAPITOL

A Newspaper Reference Work

COMPILED BY AND PUBLISHED UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE PRESS CLUB OF SALT LAKE

1914

WESTERN PRINTING CO.
SALT LAKE CITY

Foreword

1173308

THE transformation of the Valley of the Great Salt Lake and the State of Utah from barren and desolate desert to bounteous and wealth-giving verdure; the development of those hidden riches that have been torn from the rock-ribbed grasp of the mountains; the outpouring of wealth and the building of populous, happy communities in the realm of the Queen of the Intermountain West, have attracted the admiring attention of the world.

This transformation has been made by men whose initiative and courage have overcome all obstacles and have given to this commonwealth a fame that extends throughout the world.

That we may know these men as they are, and that we may realize what they have accomplished, The Press Club of Salt Lake presents this work.

While Men of Affairs in The State of Utah is primarily a work for newspaper libraries, it is designed, without giving any one man undue publicity, to show the marvelous opportunities that still exist in ths field, and to show, by citing the examples of the sucess of these men, what may be done by persistent effort and a determined spirit.

The events of today are history tomorrow. Newspapers record the history of the world from day to day. Newspapers require pictures of persons and places for reproduction with current happenings. Although they exhaust every source to secure up-to-date photographs, they often are compelled to reprint old style line cuts or wash drawings, and in the majority of cases have no picture at all.

The facts regarding men are often jumbled owing to the necessity of gathering them from whatever source available on a moment's notice.

Every precaution has been taken to have the facts herein correct in every detail and the photographs of recent date.

The work will be the ready reference work for the newspaper editor, writer and artist. The publication will go to all newspapers in the State of Utah, to the Associated Press, the International Press and other news agencies, and to the public libraries of this state.

"The history of the world is the biographies of great men."—Thomas Carlyle.

THE lives of the men in this publication stand out as notable examples of the types of men who have lent their force or capital, or both, to the upbuilding of the great Intermountain West. Many of them pioneered through the hardships of the early days, while others battled bravely against the disappointments of early development, when the growth of the broad and permanent foundation of this great commonwealth seemed slow; still others of more recent arrival have aided in the structure to its present wonderful development.

"All men are to an unspeakable degree, brothers, each man's life a strange emblem of every man's; the human portraits, faithfully drawn, are, of all pictures, the welcomest on human walls."
—Thomas Carlyle.

"Let the record be made of the things of today, lest they pass out of memory tomorrow and are lost. Then perpetuate them, not upon wood or stone that crumbles to dust, but upon paper, chronicled in picture and words that endure forever."—Kirkland.

JOSEPH F. SMITH.

THE life of President Joseph F. Smith of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, may be epitomized in two words: "Action" and "Service." Though he is now seventy-seven years of age, these words describe his life today as they did in the stirring days of his pioneer boyhood. He has survived many adventures to give to his people the benefit of a wonderful range of experience.

Joseph Fielding Smith was a son of Hyrum Smith, second patriarch of the church and brother of the Prophet Joseph Smith. He was born November 13, 1838, at Far West, Mo.

The early life of President Smith was filled with the privations suffered by the loyal Saints in the days of the persecution. His mother fled with him from Nauvoo, Ill., in 1846, and at the age of eight years he drove an ox team across the desert. He reached Salt Lake with his mother September 23, 1848. In the year 1854 he was called on a mission to the Sandwich Islands, returning to Utah in 1858. He joined the militia and participated in the interception of Johnston's Army. He went on a mission to Great Britain in 1860, returning in 1863. He returned to the Sandwich Islands in 1864, and then was employed in the office of the Church Historian. He was in charge of the Endowment house after the death of President Young until it was closed. He was ordained an apostle July 1, 1866. He served in England on a mission in 1874, and 1875, and went to England in 1877 on his third mission. On account of the death of President Young he was chosen second counsellor to President John Taylor in October, 1880; holding the same position under Presidents Woodruff and Snow. Upon the death of President Snow he became President of the Church.

He has exercised wise and discerning judgment in the weighty affairs of the church that have come under his jurisdiction, and is beloved of his people.

JESSE KNIGHT.

OF English and German descent, and of American birth and training, Jesse Knight is a typical American.

He was born at Nauvoo, Ills., in 1845. His father was Newell Knight and his mother Lydia Golthwait Knight. It is on his father's side that Mr. Knight traces his parentage to England, while on his mother's side he comes of German stock. His father died in January, 1847, when Mr. Knight was only two years of age. This was at Ponca, Nebraska, while the pioneer was on his way west.

Mr. Knight is a typical self-made man. Attending no university, securing the elementary training as best he might while earning a livelihood in driving oxen and other rugged work.

Mr. Knight is married. His wife was formerly Miss Amanda McEwan. Six children have been born to them. One daughter, Minnie, is dead. Those living are Oscar Raymond Knight, J. William Knight, Mrs. Inez K. Allen, Mrs. Jennie Mangum and Mrs. Iona K. Jordan.

Mr. Knight is an admirer of Salt Lake City and of its wonderful growth, and for four years, when a boy, made his home in the capitol. He is now a resident of Provo, Utah, where are located the headquarters of his numerous mining and other interests.

Mr. Knight is a Democrat and a staunch believer in the policies of the party. He is most deeply interested in mining and some idea of the diversity of his interests may be gained from the following list of concerns with which he is closely allied:

Provo Woolen Mills, Iron Blossom Mining Company, president of the Knight Trust Company, president of the Spring Canyon Coal Company, president of the Knight Sugar Company, and associated in the Aurora Mining Company, the Colorado Mining Company, the Tintic Mining Company and the Dragon Consolidated Mining Company.

J. WILLIAM KNIGHT

BORN at Payson, Utah, August 20, 1874, J. William Knight is a genuine Utahn. His father, "Uncle" Jesse Knight, of Provo, Utah, is one of the best known residents of this state. Mr. Knight attended the public schools and later in the commercial department of the Brigham Young University, in 1904. He took up commercial life soon afterwards and became interested in mining and banking. His home is at Provo, Utah, but he is as well known in the capitol, and throughout Utah generally, as in Provo.

Mr. Knight is married, his wife having been Miss Jennie Brimhall. They have one child, a son, Richard Knight, three years of age. Mr. Knight is a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He also belongs to two clubs, the Salt Lake and the Provo Commercial Clubs. His business interests are large and diversified. Although still a young man, some idea may be gained of the scope of his commercial interests by looking over the following list of concerns with which he is connected:

He is a director of the Knight Investment Company and of the Knight Trust & Savings Bank, he is vice-president of the National City Bank and of the Iron Blossom Mining Company, a director of the Ellison Ranching Company and vice-president of the Spring Canyon Coal Company, a director of the Aurora Consolidated Mining Company, vice-president and director of the Eureka Hill Railroad, vice-president and director of the Knight-Christensen Metal Company, director of the Utah Ore Sampling Company, and also a director of the Western Ore Purchasing Company, the Knight Woolen Mills Company, and the Knight Sugar Company.

DANIEL COWAN JACKLING.

ONE of the most prominent men in the entire western country, Daniel Cowan Jackling, son of Daniel and Lydia Jane (Dunn) Jackling, was born in Appleton City, Bates county, Missouri, August 14, 1869. After completing the course in the common schools, Mr. Jackling attended the state normal school at Warrensburg, Missouri, and later the Missouri school of mines, from which he received his degree of bachelor of science and metallurgical engineer in 1892. He came to the Cripple Creek district in Colorado as chemist and metallurgist in 1894. He remained in Cripple Creek until 1896, and then came to Utah to take charge of the construction and operation of the metallurgical works of the Consolidated Mercur Gold Mines, Mercur, Utah.

Mr. Jackling was prominent in the organization of the Utah Copper Company in 1903 and since that time has been vice president and manager director of that company. He is also vice president and managing director of the Ray Consolidated Copper Company, Chino Copper Company; director Butte & Superior Copper Company; vice president and general manager Ray & Gila valley railroad, and the Bingham and Garfield Railroad; vice president Nevada-Northern Railroad and the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company, and Alaska Gold Mines Company; president of the Utah Power & Light Company, and Hotel Utah Operating Company; director General Petroleum Company, vice president McCornick & Company, Bankers, and of the Utah State National Bank, vice president of the Garfield Banking Company, director Salt Lake Security & Trust Company, Utah Hotel Company and the Utah Fireclay Company.

He is a member of American Mining Engineers and the Metallurgical Society of America. Among the clubs with which he is connected are: Alta (president in 1909), University, Commercial and Country, Salt Lake; Rocky Mountain and New York Yacht, New York; California, Los, Angeles; El Paso, Colorado Springs; Pacific Union and the Bohemian, San Francisco; Rainier, Seatle.

CHARLES WALTER WHITLEY.

DIRECTOR and manager of several wealthy and widely-known corporations in the east and west and a man who has no peer in the mining and smelting business from the ground up, Charles Walter Whitley has worked his way up to his present offices of trust.

Mr. Whitley is the son of Elizabeth Holbrook Whitley and John Whitley. He was born June 20, 1870, in Chicago. After acquiring a general school education in Chicago Mr. Whitley entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in 1887, and after spending four years there as a student was graduated in 1891.

Shortly after his graduation he entered the street railway business in the capacity of electrical engineer for the Chicago City Railway Company, and built for them their first electrical installation. Subsequent to the completion of this work he assumed the management and construction of the Canyon Ferry Dam on the Missouri River twenty-two miles from Helena, Montana. While in Montana he became identified with the smelting and mining business and shortly became manager of the United Smelting & Refining Company's plants at East Helena and Great Falls. Subsequently he gave up his electrical engineering work and assumed the position of general manager of the American Smelting & Refining Company's interests in Utah. He married Miss Dorothy K. Kinney, daughter of Mr. Timothy Kinney, of Rock Springs, Wyoming, and they have two children. Although not a member of any fraternal organization he is a well-known member of the Salt Lake Commercial club, Alta club, Country club, Salt Lake Tennis club and the Engineers' club of New York City. Among the corporations with which he is vitally interested and of which he is a director are, the American Smelting & Refining Company, the American Smelters Securities Company, McCornick & Company Bankers, Garfield Banking Company, Hotel Utah Operating Company, the Garfield Improvement Company and the Garfield Water Company.

THOMAS G. WEBBER.

THE position in Utah business circles, occupied by Thomas G. Webber is pre-eminent. He was associated with T. H. Stenhouse in publishing the first daily paper in Salt Lake City, "The Daily Telegraph," which was first printed July 4, 1864. He also published the first daily in Ogden, "The Telegraph," May 11, 1864.

His parents were Thomas B. Webber and Mrs. Charlotte D. Burgh Webber. Col. Webber was born at Exeter, England, September 17, 1836. In 1857 he came to America, crossing the continent to California in 1858.

He sailed for New York at the opening of the Civil War in 1861, and served with the Federal army in the Peninsular, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania campaigns.

In 1863 he came to Salt Lake City, and published "The Daily Telegraph." Governor Dooty appointed him Lieutenant Colonel and Adjutant of the Second Brigade, in 1865. Mr. Webber married Miss Mary E. F. Richards, May 25, 1863. Six children were born: Mrs. James L. Franken, Georgena M. B. Webber, Mrs. George L. Nye, Shirley T. B. Webber, William T. F. Webber and Mildred R. Webber, the last two having died.

Mr. Webber was assistant secretary of Zion-s Co-operative Mercantile Institution to June, 1869; secretary to 1871; secretary and treasurer to 1875 and secretary general manager from 1888 to date. He was a member of the city council from 1884 to 1885 and alderman from 1886 to December 31, 1889. He was president of the Zion's Benefit Building Society from June 26, 1883 to date; president of the Salt Lake & Ogden Gas & Electric Light Company, 1896 to 1898; president of the Salt Lake City public library, 1897 to 1904; director of the Zion's Savings Bank and Trust Company, 1873 to date; of the Home Fire Insurance Company, 1886 to date; Utah Sugar Co., 1899 to 1902; Postal Telegraph Co., 1899 to date; Utah Light & Railway Co., 1904 to date; Utah Hotel Co., 1909 to date; Utah State National Bank, 1913 to date; and was vice-president of the Utah Light & Power Co., 1898 to 1903.

WILLIAM S. McCORNICK.

A NAME to conjure with is that of William S. McCornick. For many years a commanding figure in the western mining and smelting industry, and for nearly as many years an equally commanding figure in the western financial world, Mr. McCornick is considered as one of the biggest financial powers between the Mississippi and the coast.

He is a son of Mary Vance McCornick and George McCornick, and is a native of Ireland, but does not know definitely the date of his birth. He attended no college in his youth, but de spite the lack of such opportunity, acquired his education along financial lines upon which he centralized, until he is considered a wizard.

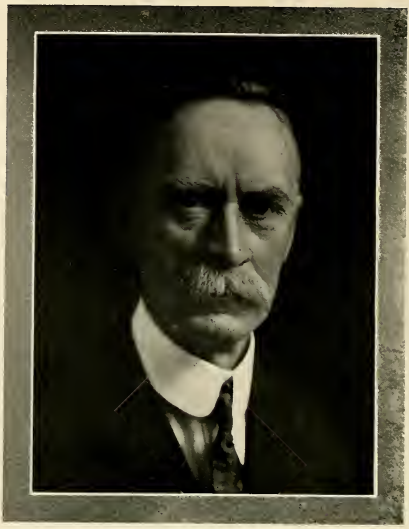
Mr. McCornick came to Utah in 1873, and has made his home in Salt Lake City since that time. His beautiful home on upper Main Street is one of the most elegantly furnished, with an eye to pure comfort, of any in the city.

Mrs. McCornick's name before her marriage was Hannah Keogh, and there are eight sons and daughters ranging in age from twenty-five years to forty years.

Mr. McCornick is not fond of social life save as a diversion from business, but the entertainments given by Mrs. McCornick and by their family are lavish and in perfect taste.

In addition to his banking interests, he being president of McCornick & Company, bankers, and being interested in many other financial institutions, he still retains his interests in mines and smelters, and in the stock raising industry.

He is a member of the Alta and Commercial Clubs, but of no fraternal or secret societies.



MATHEW H. WALKER.

MATTHEW H. WALKER was born on January 16, 1845, at Yeadon, Yorkshire, England, of good English stock, his father being Matthew Walker and his mother Mrs. Mercy Lang Walker.

The family has an honorable history more than the usual interest being attached to it, inasmuch as Grandfather Walker fought in the British army which defeated Napoleon Bonaparte at the Battle of Waterloo.

M. H. Walker was only seven years of age when he came to America with his parents in 1852.

He was educated in the common schools of Salt Lake from 1855 to 1860 and with that humble preparation had made for himself a name in the new country of his adoption.

Slowly and steadily he climbed the ladder of success until today Mr. Walker is president of Walker Bros. Bankers concern, one of the leading financial institutions not only of Utah but of the entire intermountain region.

Patriotic in his Americanism, having been naturalized and taking their rights of citizenship in the United States seriously and as incurring certain obligations as well as advantages, Mr. Walker has shown the same patriotic feeling in behalf of his state and city. He is a member of the Commercial Club in fact as well as name. His keen insight into business and financial affairs has been of the greatest aid to that organization, the Salt Lake Commercial Club having no more enthusiastic "booster" than Matthew H. Walker.

In addition to this he is a member of the Alta and the Country Clubs, being a figure in the social life of the state's capitol. He is a Mason of high standing.

Prominent also in the state's society is his wife, Mrs. Angeline Andrews Walker, who is a power in the social and benevolent circles of the city and state.

They have two children: John H. Walker, 47 years of age, and F. Glenn Walker, 15 years of age.

P. W. DUNYON.

REARED in Utah, Phares Wells Dunyon is a typical citizen of this growing commonwealth. His parents were Newton Isaac Dunyon and Eveline Wells Dunyon. Mr. Dunyon was born at Tooele, Utah, on October 21, 1874. His mother was born at Nauvoo, Ills., and crossed the plains with an ox team, enduring those hardships which the early pioneers of Utah had to pass through. His father was born in Ohio and came to Utah with the grandfather of the subject of this sketch, Dr. J. Dunyon, in the early days. Dr. Dunyon was a member of the first council of Salt Lake City.

P. W. Dunyon went through the district schools of Tooele and then took up the normal course at the State University, being graduated from the latter institution in 1892. He became principal of schools at Tooele, Utah, after leaving college, and then came to Salt Lake City in August, 1904.

Mr. Dunyon is a member of the Mormon Church and filled a mission to the Southwestern States for two years. For one year he was an instructor at Snow Academy at Ephraim, Utah. He is a Republican.

He is manager of the P. W. Dunyon Company, a mail order house and manufacturers' agent. He is also interested in mining in Deep Creek and Nevada.

Mr. Dunyon is married, his wife being formerly Miss Lois V. Lyman, a daughter of President F. M. Lyman of the Mormon Church.

Theirs is a musical family. One daughter, Melba, 13 years of age, is making excellent progress with the 'cello. The other daughter, Dorothy, 10 years of age, is making rapid progress in studying the violin. Mrs. Dunyon is an excellent soprano, while Mr. Dunyon himself is a pianist of excellence. Thus they have a regular orchestra at home.

WILLIAM ROBERT CALDERWOOD.

ONE of the most consistent believers in the ultimate greatness of Utah, who pins his faith to the future of the state and who declares that with the development of the partly developed and undeveloped resources of the state, Utah will become one of the most wealthy in the nation, is Dr. William Robert Calderwood. Dr. Calderwood is a native of Utah, and the greater part of his life has been spent in Utah. He has watched the steady and phenomenally rapid development of the state from a wilderness to a wide domain of fertile farms and bounteous orchards, wealth-producing mines and smelters and factories, since his boyhood.

He was born at Coalville, Utah, April 12, 1866. His parents were Alexander and Margaret Salmon Calderwood. His father came to Utah in 1855, eight years after the pioneers' arrival, and his mother followed in 1862, when conditions were less primitive, but far from what they are today. His father was a leader, and fought in the Black Hawk war, when the Indians were driven back, and the seed of civilization was given an opportunity to develop and grow.

Dr. Calderwood attended the primitive schools of the territory, and later the University of Utah. He remained in the latter institution from 1889 to 1892, and from 1899 to 1903 was a student in the University of Chicago, where he secured his degree of doctor of medicine. He taught school seven years in the interim between his college experiences.

Dr. Calderwood is married and has three daughters. His wife was formerly Miss Emily K. Dean; and his daughters are Edna, 17 years of age; Mildred, 11, and Katie, six years of age. Dr. Calderwood is medical director of the Beneficial Life Insurance Company; and is a director in the Utah Investment & Trust Company, in addition to his large medical practice. His home in Salt Lake City is at 321 North Main street.

JOHN W. CLARK, JR.

WHAT Morse was to telegraphy, Bell to the telephone and Edison to electricity, John W. Clark, Jr., promises to be to future railroad construction, the leader in the safety first movement for the track of the roads over which steam, electric or other cars run. By the inventions of Mr. Clark, train wrecks from spreading rails and other causes may become practically impossible. Leading railroad men who have made careful investigation of the Clark inventions, are united in their opinion that they solve some of the greatest railroad problems.

For over 20 years Mr. Clark has given attention to inventions. The Clark metal tie and rail is but one of many products of his brain.

It is of this kind of stamina that great inventors are made. Failures, such as come to the lot of all inventors, have come to Mr. Clark, but he has fought them down with faith that the world will yet acknowledge him, and the world is beginning to understand what he has accomplished. Those who know him best predict that he is just entering into a wonderful career.

Mr. Clark is a native of Utah, born at Kanab, Kane county, October 29, 1875. His mother was Ellen Young and his father John W. Clark. Mr. Clark entered the Brigham Young University at Provo in 1889. He moved to Salt Lake City in 1908, where he now resides. Mr. Clark married Susa Wilkins, and has four children.

He is president and manager of the Clark Metal Tie & Rail Company.

JOHN F. BENNETT.

JOHN F. BENNETT was born in England, July 11, 1865, the family emigrating to Utah in the fall of 1868. His father walked from Omaha to Salt Lake City, and the son also walked part of the way. Mr. Bennett attended school at Social Hall until 14 years of age. The first work he undertook was to carry charcoal for the blacksmiths where tools were sharpened for the work on the Temple.

Mr. Bennett is a member of the Mormon church, working particularly in the departments for the young. He is general treasurer for the church Sunday schools and is one of the board of control of the Deseret gymnasium. He is associated with the Zion's Benefit Building Society and has served that company for thirty years. He is regarded as broad and public spirited. He is one of the charter members of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and is a member of the governing board. He is president and manager of the Bennett Glass & Paint Company, where seventy-five persons are employed in manufacturing paints, art glass and mirrors and in marketing these products. Mr. Bennett is vice-president of an affiliated company in Ogden in the same line. He refers to these positions as his "bread and butter game."

In addition to these he occupies positons of trust as follows: Vice-president of the Farmers & Merchants Bank of Provo; one of the directorate of Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution, of Zion's Savings Bank, of the Utah State National Bank, of the Home Fire Insurance Company of Utah, of the Consolidated Wagon & Machine Company, of the Saltair Company and the Saltair Railroad Company, and also of many smaller concerns. He says that his life is busy enough without politics.

He married Rose Wallace, a daughter of Henry Wallace, a pioneer of this state, in November, 1897. They have five children.

WILLIAM MALLORY BRADLEY.

WILLIAM MALLORY BRADLEY, one of the best lawyers in Utah, is a native of Elkhorn, Walworth county, Wisconsin. He was born November 17, 1861, and was a son of Henry and Nancy Jane Bradley. He gained his early education in the common schools of Wisconsin, and afterward attended the University of Wisconsin at Madison, from which he was graduated, receiving his degree of L. L. B. in 1883.

He married Luella May Brewster, and three sons were born. They are Henry F. Bradley, 25 years of age; Bruce M. Bradley, 23 years of age, and Allen P. Bradley, 21 years of age. The family home is in Salt Lake City.

Mr. Bradley is a member of no fraternal order, his whole time being taken up with his legal work, his extensive reading, and with his family.

He is a Republican "by birth and by choice," as he expresses it, and has taken an active part in many campaigns, stumping for his party candidates and issues.

Too deeply engaged in his law practice, and in the interests of his clients to give time to public life, Mr. Bradley has never sought nor held public office.

He is a member, however, of the Alta Club and the University Club of Salt Lake City, and of the Rocky Mountain Club of New York City. He is not a member of any corporation.

Mr. Bradley has conducted some of the most noted cases in the annals of litigation in Utah, and has won for himself an enviable reputation as a jurist and pleader. A shrewd examiner, and an eloquent, forceful speaker with convincing logic in his argument, he has won reputation and fame, and is most highly respected by those with whom he has had legal or business dealings.

WILLIAM H. BINTZ.

AMONG the merchants of Salt Lake City who came to the intermountain region from the East, is William Henry Bintz. Mr. Bintz was born in Lyons, New York, and received his education in the public schools of his native city. His father was George Henry Bintz and his mother Mrs. Elizabeth Bintz, both of that city. It was in 1887 that Mr. Bintz came to Salt Lake. He soon entered business as a merchant and merchandise broker.

Mr. Bintz is married, his wife having been Miss Margaret Carroll. They have had three children: Mrs. John C. Daly, 29 years of age; W. H. Bintz, Jr., 27 years of age, and C. C. Bintz, 24 years of age.

Mr. Bintz is an enthusiastic supporter of the city and state which has enabled him to secure such an enviable business as that which he controls today. He belongs to the Salt Lake City Commercial Club and is active in that organization. He is a firm believer in "sticktoitiveness" and has won success by his adaptability to new methods and circumstances.

Mr. Bintz is one of the typical "solid" merchants of Salt Lake City, whose interests stand as a bulwark protecting the municipality's prosperity and business success against attack of ill fortune or unsound methods.

As president of the W. H. Bintz Company he occupies a position of trust and responsibility in the commercial world of the intermountain region.

DANIEL ALEXANDER.

DANIEL ALEXANDER, one of Salt Lake City's leading attorneys, of the firm of Stewart, Stewart & Alexander, was born in Ogden, Utah, September 20, 1884. His parents were Daniel and Mrs. Julia Fransdorf Alexander. He received a common school education, after which he entered the University of Utah, receiving the degree of B. A. upon his graduation in 1906. In 1909 the degree of LL. B. was conferred by the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Alexander was reared in this state, and has made his home here all his life. He is married, his wife having been Miss Minnetta C. Baer.

He is a member of the Independent Order of B'Nai Brith; a Greek letter fraternity, Tau Kappa Alpha, and also to an honorary debating fraternity, and the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

Mr. Alexander is well known in the ranks of the legal profession of the city and the state. In politics he is a Republican and an active party worker. He is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science; a member of the national executive board; and also of the National Farm School, of Doylestown, Pa.

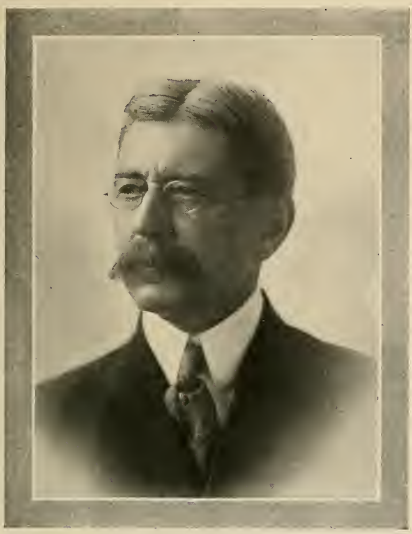
His interests are not confined to the law alone. The diversity of his activities is also illustrated even more clearly from the fact that he is a director of three commercial concerns: The Greenewald Furniture Company, the Utah Colonization Fund Company (Inc.), and the Notable Feature Film Company.

He is deeply engrossed with the diversified interests of the state and city. His life, marked by the many duties which befall the man of affairs, is one of breadth of conception, and has the strength which is obtained by specialization; in this case, to a pre-eminent degree, in the practice of law.

DAVID ANDREW.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the medical profession who is most highly esteemed among his fellow practitioners as well as by his clients, is Dr. David Andrew, who, like the majority of the physicians of Utah and Salt Lake City, is not one who puts the dollar at the head of the list of his desires. He is attentive to his patients and has earned deep gratitude for his personal interest in the cases which have been intrusted to him. His profession is his life and it is recognized that Dr. Andrew is a deep student of his profession. His habits and general ideals concerning humanity are such that he is beloved by all with whom he comes in contact socially or during times when he is watching at the bedside of a patient. He is always ready to give a helping hand to those in distress or who may need to utilize his knowledge of medicine.

Politics, corporation matters and fraternal organizations never appealed strongly to Dr. Andrew and as a consequence he has never become a member of any fraternal or social organization. His medical studies occupy all of his spare time. He is a member of the Commercial Club, and like the majority of the members of that organization is always ready to help in matters concerning the welfare of the state or of the club. Dr. Andrew is a son of Samuel W. Andrew and Mary Fullmer Andrew. His early school days were spent in Salt Lake City. Dr. Andrew has never married. His medical education was received at the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, Pa., from 1907 to 1910. He always had a great desire to become a physician, even in the days when he was attending the public schools of Salt Lake City. He was graduated in 1910. His excellent work since his entrance in the field of practice in Utah will eventually place him second to none in his profession in this state.



DAVID E. BURLEY.

FREQUENTLY the offices of the leading officials of railroads have been likened to those positions held by military officers on the general staff of a great army. The positions are not at all dissimilar and the responsiblities are equally great. Authority and responsibility go hand in hand, so the world's history shows, and the "weeding out" process, whereby only the men of true character and worth are selected for the foremost positions, goes on relentlessly. Thus it is that the men who reach the topmost ranks are the men of true worth and ability. In the case of David E. Burley, the rule has held good that it is truly "a survival of the fittest."

Mr. Burley was born in Butler county, Ohio, March 8, 1849. His father was Joshua Burley and his mother Mary Ann Ward Burley.

After receiving a common school education he went to the Asbury University, located at Greencastle, Indiana. He attended that institution two years and then took up railroad work as his profession.

It was on January 21, 1891, that Mr. Burley came to Utah. He is today general passenger agent of the Oregon Short Line railroad, with headquarters at Salt Lake City. He has a suite at the Bransford apartments, this city. Mr. Burley finds time for social recreation and is a member of the Alta Club and of the Country Club, both located at Salt Lake City. He is a member also of the Masonic order.

Politically Mr. Burley is a Republican, being a staunch believer in the "Old Guard" Republicanism as set forth by former President William Howard Taft.

EDWIN H. CLARKE.

TO MORE devoted band of "boosters" is at work today in the interest of Salt Lake City and Utah generally, than the real estate men. Among the best known of the realty men of this city is Edwin Holder Clarke. Mr. Clarke is a native son. He was born at Salt Lake City, June 27, 1873. He comes of English and Scotch-Irish descent, his family having immigrated into the United States from New Zealand in 1871. His father was Gus M. Clarke and his mother Mrs. Louie M. Clarke.

Mr. Clarke received the common school education in Salt Lake and then entered upon the work which he has developed to such large proportions.

He is today a salesman for the Bettilyon Home Builders Company, and is considered an expert in realty lines, having charge of the real estate department of this firm.

Mr. Clarke is a member of the Native Sons of Utah, the Modern Woodmen of America, the Royal Neighbors of America, the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoos, and the Spanish War Veterans.

The first and the last organization in this list reveal the character of the man and show that he is patriotic to his State and to his country at large.

From September 1, 1903, to March 31, 1914, he was a member of the United States Forest Service, holding the position of ranger, supervisor and assistant district forester, with headquarters at Orangeville, Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, and also at Washington, D. C.

He is married, his wife having been Miss Sarah J. Christensen. They have no children. Mr. Clarke is a Progressive. He is a director of the Bettilyon Home Builders Company, and also vice-president of the Truss Rail Joint Company.

ALBERT RAYMOND BARNES.

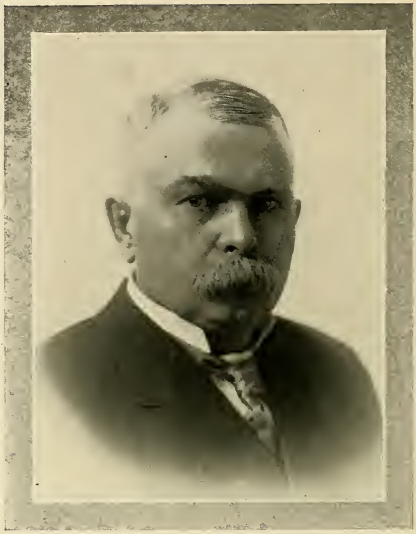
IN THE fall of 1912 it did not take the Republican State convention long to choose its candidate for Attorney-General of Utah. Albert Raymond Barnes had served the State in that capacity for one term and had done much for the State—among other things, enforcing the inheritance tax law. The income from this measure from such estates as that of the late E. H. Harriman has been sufficient to erect a capitol which will cost more than $2,000,000 when completed.

Accordingly, Mr. Barnes was popular with his party and also with other Utahns of other political faiths. He was re-elected and has been attorney-generalizing thus far in his second term as successfully as in the first term.

Attica, in the corn and author belt of Indiana, was the birthplace of Attorney-General Barnes in 1867. His parents were Dr. Francis Barnes and Lucinda Raymond Barnes. Law books looked better to Mr. Barnes than historical novels and he took up the study of law.

He was graduated from the academic department of Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., and later from the law department of Michigan University in 1899. In November of that year he came to Salt Lake and hung out his shingle. He married Miss Josephine Naisbitt of Salt Lake City and is the father of one son, Francis Raymond Barnes, three years of age.

Mr. Barnes is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Sons of the American Revolution. His club is the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City.



JAMES F. DUNN.

EMPIRE BUILDERS" is the title conferred in democratic America upon those leaders in industrial enterprises, the railroad officials. These are the men who guide the steel trail through the desert wastes, the sky-piercing mountains and the trackless forests. These are they who win from the grip of the wilderness the land which later is made to blossom like the rose.

One of the best known railroad men in the West is James F. Dunn.

Mr. Dunn was born at Skaneateles, Onondego county, New York. His parents were James and Mrs. Cecilia Murren Dunn.

Mr. Dunn received the common schooling afforded in the country and then entered an academy at San Jose, Cal., having meantime moved from the East to the Pacific coast.

It was in 1895 that he came to Utah, and began to make a reputation for himself in railroad circles in the intermountain country. Slowly, but surely, he rose in the ranks of his chosen profession until today he is superintendent of motive power of the Oregon Short Line railroad, with headquarters at Salt Lake City, Utah. Although his duties are many and pressing, and his responsibility great, Mr. Dunn finds time for social duties. He is a member of the Alta Club, the Salt Lake Commercial Club, the Bonneville Club and the Western Railway Club.

He is a Republican and is devoted to the interests of that party.

Those who know him unite in praising the character of Mr. Dunn, and it is believed by his railroad confreres that his work has not yet reached its height, but that he will rise to higher stations in the railroad world.

LEWIS TELLE CANNON.

LEWIS TELLE CANNON was born in Salt Lake City, April 22, 1872. He is a son of George Q. Cannon and Martha Telle Cannon, and attended the common schools in Salt Lake and afterward the University of Utah, taking special studies to fit him for his profession. He entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1892, remaining four years and graduating from the department of architecture. He returned to Utah immediately upon his graduation, and for a short time was engaged by the Utah Light & Power Company at Ogden in the construction of a large electric plant there. He then became professor of mathematics in the Agricultural College of Utah at Logan, remaining two years.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints called him on a foreign mission and he served for three years in Germany and Switzerland, learning German and French while there. He returned to Utah in 1901 and married Miss Martha Howell, a daughter of Congressman Joseph Howell of Cache valley. The children born of this union are Martha Howell Cannon, 12 years of age; Mary Aileen Cannon, 10 years of age; Howell Quayle Cannon, six years of age and Louise Howell Cannon, one year of age.

Mr. Cannon is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and the Timpanogas Club, the Utah Association of Architects and the Intermountain Technology Association.

He is also senior member of the firm of Cannon & Fetzer, architects, Salt Lake City. He is a Republican in politics, and is a director of Zions Savings Bank & Trust Company, and a director in the George Q. Cannon Association; a director in the National Savings & Trust Company, and one of the executors of the George Q. Cannon estate.

CHARLES FRANCIS BARRETT.

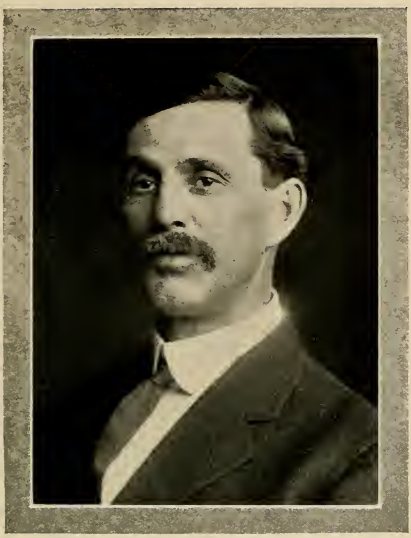
A SUPERINTENDENT of city waterworks has troubles all his own. From its source the superintendent must watch, regulate and tabulate the life-giving and dirt-destroying fluid through the faucets, spigots and taps to the ultimate consumer. All of which comprises considerable job, and the superintendent must be more or less "eminently fitted" for the work.

Charles Francis Barrett, superintendent of the city waterworks system of Salt Lake, passes muster with the "A-1" brand. In the problem of the water which must come from the great watershed supplying this city, Mr. Barrett has a problem worth while, and he is doing much to solve it.

Mr. Barrett was born March 19, 1873, at Fort Douglas, Utah, which is situated on the United States military reservation, near Salt Lake. His mother was Hannah M. Nelson Barrett and his father was Maurice James Barrett, a native of Ireland and member of a family prominently identified with the early settlement of Baltimore, Maryland.

The public schools and the Brigham Young University at Provo, provided Mr. Barrett's education. He later graduated, through a correspondence course, with the degree of mechanical engineer. He came to Salt Lake in 1902 and two years later became general foreman of the water service of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad. He was appointed superintendent of the water works of Salt Lake City, January 1, 1912.

Mr. Barrett was married to Miss Myrtle Budge and is the father of Maurice Barrett, 10 years of age. He is majority stockholder of the Boyle Drug Company of Salt Lake, is a Republican in politics and a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.



GLEN R. BOTHWELL.

MANY an Eastern man has been lured to the West by the promise of the great open country just developing. And of these many a one has found opportunities which seemed denied him in the more settled East. Among those who have found success awaiting them in the new West is Glenn R. Bothwell. Mr. Bothwell was born in Morison, Ills., on October 9, 1861. He was reared in the East, and received the education of the common schools.

It was not until 1888, however, when he had reached the age of 27 years, that he came to Utah.

The change of location marked the commencement of a new career. The opportunities of the new country were taken advantage of immediately. Mr. Bothwell became interested in real estate, and in mining.

He acquired holdings which proved of great value and today he is among the best known residents of this State as a real estate holder and mining man.

Among the various corporations of which he is a member are the American Falls Canal & Power Company, the Aberdeen Townsite & Investment Company, the Bingham Conger Copper Company and others.

Mr. Bothwell is a loyal stepson of the western commonwealth where he has scored such a success, and is an active member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

Politically he is a Progressive and is an enthusiastic supporter of the principles of Theodore Roosevelt.

He is married, his wife having been Miss Jessie E. Glenn. Five children have blessed this union: Ina C. McConaughy, 30 years of age; Zuyda E. Martineau, 26 years of age; Charlotte Bothwell, 22 years of age; Roy Bothwell, 19 years of age, and Floyd Bothwell, 15 years of age.

GEORGE D. ALDER.

GEORGE D. ALDER was born November 17, 1866, at St. Louis, Mo., a son of George Alfred and Lydia Dunford Alder. His parents came to Salt Lake City in September, 1867, over the old "Mormon Emigration trail." Mr. Alder began his education at the school of Mary Clark, in the old Social Hall on State street, and later the University of Deseret, and is an alumnus of that institution.

His business experience began at the age of 15 years as an employe of his grandfather, George Dunford, the pioneer boot and shoe merchant of this city. From that position he entered the employ of Walker Brothers, and remained for five years in their mercantile establishment, afterward going into the shoe business with his father and later became manager for the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company of Portland, Me. A year later he purchased the general agency of the National Life Insurance Company of Montpelier, Vt., becoming general manager for the Intermountain States, a position he has held for twenty years.

Mr. Alder has devoted his whole time to his business, which has now reached splendid proportions. In politics he is a Democrat and for twenty years has been secretary of the Utah Democratic Club. He is interested in a number of institutions, besides being owner of considerable real estate. This includes Alderwood farm, his country home in the Cottonwoods. Mr. Alder married Miss Dean Caine, daughter of the Hon. John T. Caine, a former delegate to Congress from Utah in 1889. Seven children were born, five of whom survive. They are: Mrs. Van V. Midgley, John C., Edwin C., Katherine C. and Carleton C. Alder, the family residence being at 55 First avenue, Salt Lake.

Mr. Alder has been an enthusiastic worker in the Commercial Club since its organization.

ALFRED BEST.

ALFRED BEST, one of Salt Lake City's leading musicians and musical teachers, was born in Salt Lake county, February 13, 1877. His parents are Alfred Best and Eliza Conk Best. From childhood he showed a love for music and when 14 years of age he began to study instrumental and vocal music, taking up the study of voice culture when 17 years of age, under local teachers. Later he studied in New York City under Dr. Frank G. Dossertt.

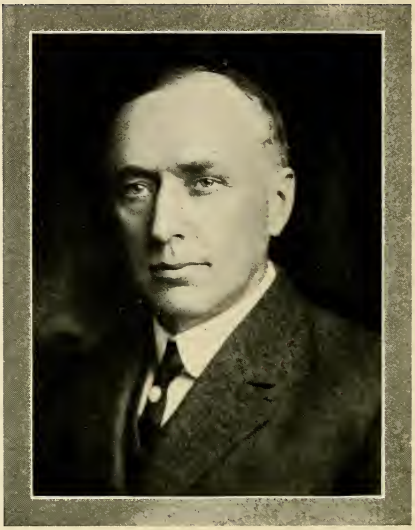
For two years he was instructor of music at the University of Utah. He was one of the principal tenors of the Henry W. Savage Grand Opera Company, during 1905 and 1906. Prof. Best was the first Utah singer to sing principal part in grand opera.

In 1907 he married Miss Emma Dean of Salt Lake City and soon after they left for Berlin, Germany, where Prof. Best spent three years studying with Maestro Georg Fergusson and for one winter with Kappelmeister Carl Mueller, director of the Wagnerian festivals in Bayreuth.

During his stay in Europe he appeared at many notable places. On June 29, 1910, he sang at Antwerp in concert, with the Societe Royale D'Harmonie orchestra of sixty-five pieces, directed by Coustant Lenaerts. He appeared later in two concerts at Ostende with an orchestra of 125 pieces, directed by M. Rinskopf.

Returning to Salt Lake City he opened a studio and later accepted the directorate of the vocal department of the Utah Conservatory of Music from which position he retired to private practice in 1914.

In June, 1913, Prof. Best and his pupils produced "Cavaliera Rusticana," the first grand opera produced in Utah by local talent. Prof. Best sang the role of Turridu. He is a member of the Salt Lake Rotary Club and is the father of three beautiful daughters.



WILLIAM JAMES BARRETTE.

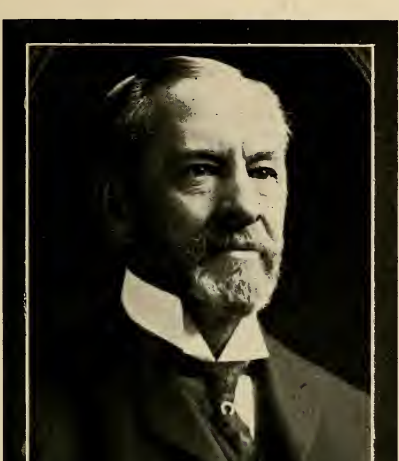
THE legal fraternity of Utah has a representative of the bar in William James Barrette who would honor the bar of any state. Mr. Barrette's practice and the manner in which he attends to the many demands of his large clientele, places him in a position where it is impossible to say that he is surpassed by any other member of his profession. Mr. Barrette was born February 17, 1867, in Davenport, Iowa. For the greater part of his youth he remained in Iowa, gaining his early training and education in the city of Davenport.

He entered Grinnell College, Iowa, in 1887, and received the degree of A. B. in 1890. In 1891 Mr. Barrette entered the Washington University Law School, remaining there through 1892.

Mr. Barrette is a believer in the independent political policy. When an issue presents itself he stands for it, whether it is the offspring of one political organization or another, if the principle involved appeals to him as being right.

His wife's maiden name was Elizabeth Suiter. His children are Walter Suiter Barrette, 17 years of age; Pierce Cook Barrette, 12 years of age; Elizabeth Barrette eight years of age, and William James Barrette, Jr., six years of age. Mr. Barrette is well known in Utah club circles, being a member of the Alta Club of Salt Lake, the Salt Lake Commercial Club, the Salt Lake Country Club, the University Club of Salt Lake and the Salt Lake Tennis Club.

Distinction has been gained by Mr. Barrette in fraternal societies, he being a highly esteemed member of the Masonic organization. In 1907 he was the grand master of the masonic lodge in Utah. At the present time Mr. Barrette is a member of the Salt Lake City Board of Education. Under the present Salt Lake commission form of government Mr. Barrette was the first corporation counsel.



THOMAS ROBINSON CUTLER.

THOMAS R. Cutler is a son of John and Elizabeth Robinson Cutler. He is a native of Sheffield, England, and was born June 2, 1844. He came to Salt Lake City in October, 1864, and has lived here since that time. He married Miss Laura E. Coons in this city, and is a member of the Alta Club and the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City.

Mr. Cutler's activities have been centered wholly upon commercial and financial enterprises in which he has attained an eminent degree of success. As general manager of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company he has large responsibilities, comes in close touch with the hundreds of employes in the various plants of that company and with the many farmers supplying sugar beets to the various factories.

Mr. Cutler is a Republican, but has never held public office. His activities have been wholly taken up in commercial and industrial lines.

He is a director in the following corporations: McCornick & Company, bankers; the Utah State National Bank; the Bank of Garland; the Bank of Monroe; the Consolidated Wagon and Machine Company; the Continental Life Insurance Company; and vice-president of the Inter-Mountain Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Cutler is considered one of the best informed men of the intermountain west, upon the manufacture of beet sugar, and his experience in this field, together with his sound business judgment, has been largely responsible for the great success of the beet sugar industry in Utah, Idaho and neighboring states. Mr. Cutler has been called to Washington a number of times within the last few years to to discuss tariff problems and their relation to western industries, with national leaders in the government.

GUSTAVE HILMER BACKMAN.

BORN in Göteborg, Sweden, a son of Samuel C. and Anna J. Anderson Backman, Gustave Hilmer Backman gained his early education in the common schools of Sweden, and completed his education after his immigration to Utah. He attended the old University of Deseret, the predecessor of the University of Utah, from 1883 to 1886, and was graduated in the latter year.

He had made his home in Salt Lake City from 1877, and could see that the future was bright with promise, and determined to remain here. He engaged in the practice of law, and being deeply interested in politics, took an active part in the campaigns of the Republican party.

He was deputy city recorder from 1886 to 1892, and was city recorder from 1892 to 1895, serving another term from 1897 to 1899. He was also private secretary to Congressman William H. King in 1899 and 1900. He was admitted to the bar in 1899, and practiced law with excellent success. He made a specialty of land titles, and took up abstracting as a part of his professional work.

His abstracting practice grew steadily and he has devoted virtually all of his time to that business for several years.

Mr. Backman is married, his wife having been Miss Grace Pollard. The sons and daughters are: Gustave P. Backman, 22 years of age; LeGrand Backman, 20 years of age; Milton, 16 years of age; Lucille, 14; Ralph, 10; Edna, seven, and Harold, five years of age.

Mr. Backman is a member of the Woodmen of the World, and the Ancient Order of United Workmen. He is a Progressive in politics. He is an enthusiastic member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City.

DR. SAMUEL G. PAUL

MUNICIPAL government today is not the simple problem it was a generation ago. The complexities of modern life, the entrance of science into the government of the city today, and particularly in the matter of public health and hygiene, has brought into existence branches of city work before unknown.

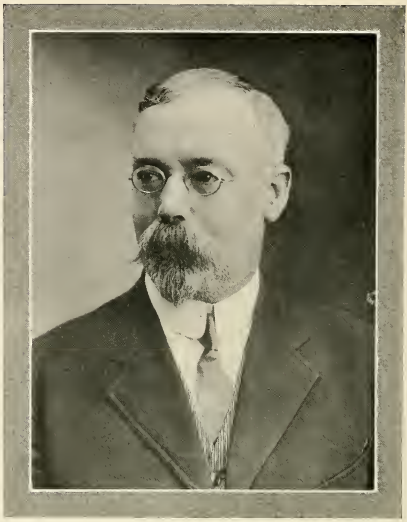
The responsibilities of the health department have grown with the increase of work in that line, and today Salt Lake City has a health commissionership which is the work of a specialist.

Dr. Samuel G. Paul is well fitted by training and special medical education for the position of city health commissioner. For one thing, Dr. Paul is a native of Utah, having been born in Salt Lake City on Christmas day, 1876. Utah is proud of her sons, and he has made a record in the medical profession that is a credit to his native state.

His parents are Samuel Paul and Mrs. Florence A. Paul, both highly respected residents of the state. After receiving the graded school education afforded in Salt Lake, Dr. Paul went east and entered the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and during the years 1897 to 1901 he pursued his medical studies, being graduated the latter year and taking up the profession of medicine as a life work.

Dr. Paul is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and also belongs to the Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity.

Dr. Paul has made a success in building up a large private practice as a physician, and has also been honored with public office. He was appointed assistant health commissioner of Salt Lake City by Mayor Bransford in 1906, and in 1910 was appointed to the still more responsible position of city health commissioner by the same mayor. Dr. Paul is married, his wife having been Miss Ella Napier.



WILLIAM SPRY

WILLIAM SPRY, governor of Utah, was born January 11, 1864, at Windsor, England. He left his native land when 11 years of age, coming to Utah, where he has lived since. He had what the ordinary boy of his time enjoyed—a common school education. He started to work at the age of 13 years as a stable boy and later took up railroad work, beginning as a section hand. Afterward he worked as a striker in a blacksmith shop. He next entered the hide and wool business and at 21 years of age went into the southern states as a missionary for the Mormon church, where he labored for six years, during the last four having charge of the Southern States mission, a territory including everything south of the Mason and Dixon line.

In 1890 he married Mary Alice Wrathall, a year before his release from the mission field, whereupon he returned to Salt Lake City in 1891 and was connected with Z. C. M. I. He located at Tooele in 1893 and engaged in farming and stock raising with success. He entered politics in 1894, being elected county collector of Tooele county that year, and holding that position until the office was abolished by the legislature.

In the fall of 1902 he was elected a member of the legislature from Tooele county and in 1904 became state chairman for the Republican party. In March, 1905, he was appointed on the state land board and became its president, a position he held until February 15, 1906, when he took charge of the United States marshal's office for the district of Utah, having been appointed by President Roosevelt in January of that year. He was elected governor of Utah in November, 1908, for the term of January, 1909, to January, 1913, and re-elected November, 1912, for the term closing January, 1917.

He is a member of the Alta, Commercial and Country clubs. He is president of the Intermountain Life Insurance company, president of the Farmers and Stockgrowers bank, and a director in the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company, Utah State National bank, American Fuel company and other corporations.

JUDGE GEORGE G. ARMSTRONG

SEEKING an enlarged field for usefulness, George G. Armstrong, judge of the Third Judicial District court, a month or so before this book went to press announced his candidacy for United States senator from Utah to succeed Senator George Sutherland in the halls of Congress. Judge Armstrong has been prominent in Republican party circles for many years, and his advice has been sought in the political councils of war. Friends had been urging him for some time to announce himself in the senatorial race, and he finally yielded to their importunities.

George G. Armstrong was born in Wisconsin July 16, 1868, being the son of Dr. Leroy Grant Armstrong and Sarah Dell Bond-Armstrong. Following attendance at the high school, young Armstrong attended the University of Wisconsin, from which he was graduated in 1891 with the degree of B. L., and in 1893, LL.B.

Looking about for a field to practice, the attention of the young attorney was attracted to Utah, and in 1893 he came to this state. His practice grew to successful dimensions, and a number of years ago the voters honored him by electing him district judge.

Judge Armstrong was married to Miss Mae A. Eckart. He is a member of the following fraternal orders: Masons, Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen and Sons of Veterans. He also is a member of the University and Pan-Hellenic clubs.

L. B. M'CORNICK

HERE and there in the history of a city or state some firm or business establishment of early days becomes associated with the community and so closely linked with its progress that the name of the state and the corporation are intertwined in the hearts of the residents. And as the commonwealth takes on larger responsibilities and its cities develop the firm of early days grows with the state. The name of that firm becomes a standard for the community. To belong to it is an honor.

In this manner the banking firm of McCornick & Co. has grown with the city of Salt Lake and the state of Utah. Its record is one which shows the growth and development of the commonwealth of the intermountain region. Its present prosperity and soundness are but indications of the strength of the state and its future greatness.

Lewis Bell McCornick, the subject of this brief sketch, is vice-president of the firm of McCornick & Company, Bankers.

His father's name is William S. McCornick, his mother having been Mrs. Hannah Keogh McCornick.

Mr. McCornick is a native son of Utah, Salt Lake City being his birthplace. He was born in 1880. He received a good education from the graded schools of Salt Lake and then attended Harvard university, being graduated from that institution in 1902, after four years of creditable work.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Stella Salisbury. They have two children, Margaret Blaine, 7 years of age, and William S., 4 years of age.

Mr. McCornick belongs to the Alta and University club and to other social organizations of the city. Politically he is a Republican, being a staunch believer in the policies of that party.

AQUILA NEBEKER 1173308

PERHAPS no man in the state has had a more diversified career than Aquila Nebeker, United States marshal for Utah. Mr. Nebeker was born in Salt Lake City June 17, 1859. John Nebeker, the father, was of German ancestry and claimed Delaware as his native state. Lurena Fitzgerald Nebeker, the mother, was of Irish ancestry and was born in Pennsylvania. Young Nebeker attended the public schools of Salt Lake and then entered the University of Deseret, now University of Utah, from which he was graduated in 1875.

The study of law was forced on Mr. Nebeker when the people of Rich county elected him county attorney. He served the term with credit. In addition to being a lawyer, Mr. Nebeker during his picturesque career, has been surveyor, assayer, miner, millman, smelterman, farmer, stock raiser and legislator. He served a term as county surveyor of Rich county, was elected representative to the legislature, represented his senatorial district for two terms, during which time he was president of the senate. He was also member of the Constitutional Convention.

During the boom days at Silver Reef, Mr. Nebeker had an assay laboratory there. He has the distinction of having built the first mill in southern Utah. At present Mr. Nebeker owns a large farm near Laketown, Rich county, on the southern shore of Bear lake. Special attention is being devoted to raising thoroughbred Shorthorns. Mr. Nebeker and sons have a fine herd of 200 registered cattle.

Mr. Nebeker was married to Miss Hortense Haight and to them were born eight children, six of whom are living. They are: Lurena, Aquila C., Shirley, Delbert, Hazelton, and Christopher Stokes Nebeker. The family home is at 1055 East Second South street.

CLARENCE EDWARD GROESBECK

ONE of the most important firms of Utah is the Utah Power & Light company, of which Clarence Edward Groesbeck is vice-president and general manager. Mr. Groesbeck was born at Frankfort, Illinois, July 24, 1876. His mother was Rose Hennessy-Groesbeck, and his father Edward C. Groesbeck. After attending the public schools of Illinois and a preparatory school, Mr. Groesbeck entered the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor in 1894. He was graduated with honors in 1898.

In 1914 Mr. Groesbeck came to Salt Lake City, where he has since resided, in a large sense guiding the destinies of the Utah Power & Light company and the Utah Light & Traction company.

Mr. Groesbeck is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Alice H. Ball. They have no children. Mr. Groesbeck is not a member of any fraternal orders, though he is a member of several of Salt Lake City's most exclusive organizations, among which is the Alta club. In addition he is a member of the Union League club of Chicago, Country club of San Diego, California, Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, University of Michigan club and the New York City club. He is not affiliated with any particular political party.

JAMES PHILLIPS GARDNER.

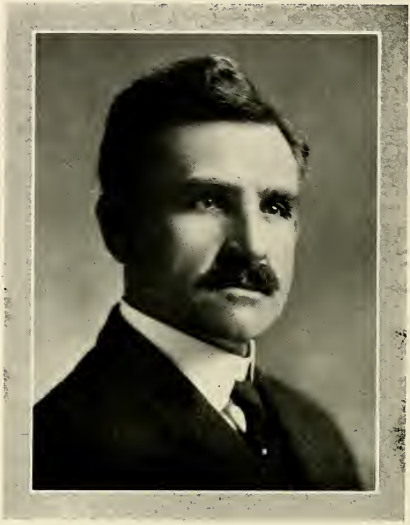
AMONG the prominent institutions of Utah which have aided materially in the development of Salt Lake City, is the firm of Gardner and Adams, known from one end of the State to the other as one of the most reliable mercantile establishments in the west. Of this substantial business enterprise James Phillips Gardner is a member.

Mr. Gardner has been a resident of Salt Lake for a quarter of a century and during his residence here has contributed most effectually to the development of the city and the state, both morally and financially. The success which Mr. Gardner has made marks him as one of the leading business men of Salt Lake. He is a self-made man and has won his wealth and position by the exercise of his own personal ability. His financial business has brought him into close relations with a great number of persons throughout the state and his genial and courteous manner has made him one of the most popular men of Utah.

In political life Mr. Gardner is a staunch Republican, always taking an active interest in the party's welfare.

James Phillips Gardner was born July 30, 1863, at Whilestown, New York. He was a son of Elizabeth Phillips Gardner and James S. Gardner. His ancestors came from England, settled at Higham, Massachusetts, in 1650. His ancestors served in the Revolutionary war.

Mr. Gardner's business is not confined strictly to the mercantile line, as he is deeply interested in ranching and the mining industry. His education was acquired in the public schools of Whilestown, after which he took a course at the Whilestown Seminary. He first appeared in Salt Lake in 1888 and has been a resident of Utah since that time. Mr. Gardner is a highly esteemed member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Alta, and Commercial clubs of Salt Lake City. He also belongs to the Sons of the American Revolution.



BERNARD JOSEPH STEWART.

A LEADER of the Salt Lake bar, B. J. Stewart's practice and reputation also are nation wide. He is one of the few Utah lawyers who has successfully appeared before the Supreme Court at Washington of which bar he is a member and to tell in detail the story of his many legal fights and successes would require a book and not the page of one. Born in Utah, January 13, 1873, he is the type of man that is a credit to the state. His parents, Isaac M. Stewart and Elizabeth White Stewart, were pioneers, his mother being English born but his father of good American stock descended from a revolutionary ancestor.

Mr. Stewart was graduated from the University of Utah and from the famous Michigan University—leaving the latter to enter the practice of his chosen profession in 1900. His rise was rapid and today he is entitled to practice in Utah, Idaho, Michigan and Federal courts of the entire nation.

Mr. Stewart also is interested in cattle and sheep growing and has large interests all over the intermountain country. He is a member of many corporations including the Stewart Harding Sheep Company, the Stewart Ranch, the Daynes-Beebe Music Co., the Crystal Lime Cement Co., and the Utah Coal and Supply Company. Also he is active in the Commercial Club.

He was married to Leonora M. Cannon and has three surviving children.

LINCOLN G. KELLY

WORKING in the position of state auditor with the idea of getting more uniform and better systems of accounting in all the counties of the state and a uniform system of reporting, Lincoln Grant Kelly is more than filling that office. Mr. Kelly has made a careful study of taxation and revenue laws, and hopes to secure amendments to taxation laws at the next session of the legislature. During his term of office much improvement has been made in the methods of handling public revenue in various counties of the state.

His career began without special advantages and has been marked by a steady and persistent development. Mr. Kelly was born at Fillmore, Utah, January 23, 1885. His parents were John Kelly and Mrs. Margaret Melville Kelly. His father came to Utah as a handcart pioneer and became prominent in Millard county.

Mr. Kelly received his education in the Fillmore public school and high school and later at the University of Utah; spending the years 1902 and 1903 there as well as attending several summer schools. He completed a correspondence school course in law while teaching. He pursued a three years' course in higher accounting and auditing with the Alexander Hamilton institute, receiving its diploma. He was granted a state certificate in 1904 and taught school in the public schools of Orangeville for three years and principal of the schools at Aurora, Sevier county, Utah, for one year.

Mr. Kelly took a law course while working as deputy state auditor from 1909 to 1911, and was graduated with the degree of LL.B. He was admitted to the state bar in May, 1910. He is an expert auditor and accountant.

At a meeting in Denver September 8, 1911, he was elected secretary of the National Association of State Auditors and Controllers.

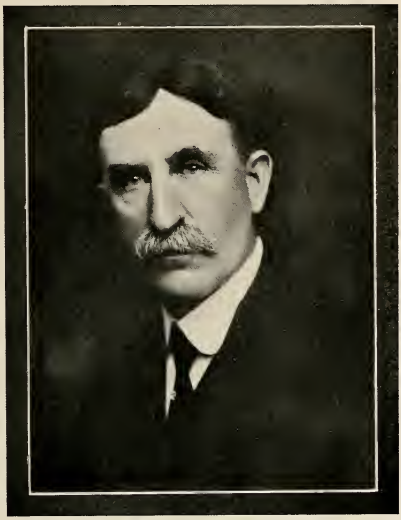
Mr. Kelly is married, his wife being formerly Miss Jennie Reid. They have one child, Lincoln Spry Kelly, two years of age. The family home is at 1012 Blaine avenue, Salt Lake City.

DR. ARCHIBALD ANGUS KERR

A REPRESENTATIVE of the medical profession who is not excelled in Utah or the western states, either professionally or socially; a man who is beloved by all his fellow men who have had the pleasure of forming his acquaintance, is Dr. Archibald Angus Kerr. In cases of sickness or distress, he can be relied upon, whether it may be by day or by night, whether stormy or pleasant weather. And last but not least, he is one of the few who never, in cases of distress, gives a first thought to his business from a monetary standpoint He loves his profession; he has the confidence of his patients, and he is a diligent student.

Dr. Kerr, son of Catherine McKenzie and Norman McLeod Kerr, was born in Harrington, Ontario, Canada, in 1869. His early school days were spent in the city of his birth, and from the time he was old enough to think for himself his one desire was to be a physician. As a consequence, as soon as the opportunity came he became a student at Rush Medical college, Chicago. He remained there from 1893 to 1896, graduating in May, 1896.

After the completion of his course, he acted in the capacity of house surgeon at the Chicago Polyclinic hospital for one year. He has followed the profession of physician and surgeon since his graduation. He came to Utah in 1897. He was married while in the east to Margaret Rose Robertson. Two children have been born to them: Margaret Merlyn, 8 years of age, and Catherine Marie, 4 months of age. In fraternal circles he is very popular, being a member of the Masonic order of this city. He is also a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, having been raised to that point in this city. He is an active member of the local Commercial club, a prominent surgeon and in connection with Judge Mercy hospital, and a member of the Western Surgical association.



BRIGHAM F. GRANT

"PUBLIC office is a public trust." This saying is carried out in the case of some officials. In no other case more remarkably so than in that of Brigham F. Grant, chief of police of Salt Lake City, a reformer with a mission—that of the uplifting of public and private morals.

His work in Utah's capital has resulted in the eradication of the restricted district, and a strict enforcement of the saloon ordinances and elimination of gambling.

Chief Grant was born in Salt Lake City on October 17, 1856. His father was Jedediah M. Grant, a native of New York state. The elder Grant came west in the early days and became the first mayor of Salt Lake City and was also speaker in the first territorial legislature. He was mayor until he died, December 1, 1856. He came to Salt Lake City on October 1, 1847, as captain of one of the companies of fifty. Chief Grant's mother was Mrs. Marriett Kesler Grant, of the pioneer type of motherhood, which has done so much for this state. Chief Grant received his early education at the common schools of this city, and later in the '60s attended the University of Deseret, now the University of Utah.

He is married, his wife having been Miss Annie Schluter, a native of Bellevue, Ill. They have six children: Fred W., Jedediah, Eugene, Hazel, Heber and Debora. One daughter, Lula Belle, is dead.

In politics Chief Grant is a Republican. In business he is interested in mining and ranching, and is a member of the following corporations: Director of the Heber J. Grant company, Utah Implement company, Utah-Wyoming Oil company and others. He is a thirty-second degree Mason, being a member of the Wasatch lodge No. 1, A. F. & A. M. His home address is 515 Third avenue, Salt Lake City, Utah.

WILLIAM MONTAGUE FERRY

WILLIAM MONTAGUE FERRY, one of the most popular young financiers of the state, was born at Grand Haven, Michigan, March 12, 1871. His parents were Edward P. and Clara V. White Ferry. He gained his early education in the Michigan public schools, and later was graduated from Olivet College, Olivet, Michigan. This was merely a preparation for his subsequent education, which was gained at the State School of Mines, Golden, Colorado.

Mr. Ferry received his degree in 1891, and came to Salt Lake City in 1898. His wife was formerly Miss Ednah Truman, and there are two sons, William Montague Ferry, Jr., and Sanford Truman Ferry. They were born October 4, 1898.

"Mont" Ferry, as he is known to his friends, is a Republican in national politics. He was for one term of four years a member of the city council of Salt Lake City, elected on the American ticket in 1905, and was chairman of the finance committee. He was afterward elected to the state senate on the Republican ticket, beginning his term in 1912. During his term in the senate Mr. Ferry was an earnest advocate of bills designed to relieve the aged indigent; to provide for orphaned and destitute children; to protect children from unjust labor conditions, and to provide adequate wages and proper working conditions for women.

He is a director in Walker Brothers' bank; is vice-president of the Utah Savings and Trust company, Salt Lake City; a director in the Silver King Coalition Mines company, and in the Mason Valley Mines company of Nevada.

He has traveled extensively, and has a wide circle of acquaintances and friends throughout Utah, and enjoys an unusual degree of popularity, and the confidence of all of his friends. His home is at 453 East South Temple street, Salt Lake City.

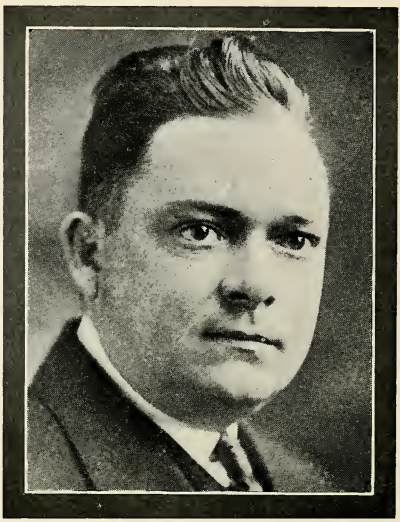
Mr. Ferry was elected mayor of Salt Lake City November 2, 1915, for a period of four years.

R. J. ARMSTRONG

IN CONNECTION with western business enterprises and as a strong advocate of clean sport, R. J. Armstrong has made hosts of friends throughout Utah since he located in this state, in 1904. His mother, Salome Jones Armstrong, was born at Calais, Maine, in 1839. His father, James J. Armstrong, was born at Liverpool, England, in 1835. When fourteen years of age he shipped aboard a merchant vessel running from Africa to the United States. After following for a long period the foundry business, he came west in 1870. The couple's golden wedding anniversary was celebrated in Denver, Colorado.

Mr. Armstrong was born August 17, 1874, at Calais, Maine. For several years he has held the position of western representative of the American Laundry Machinery company. His success with the company is evidenced by the great amount of that concern's output which has been placed in Utah and other middle western states.

Whenever a sporting club needs an honest and trustworthy man for position such as referee or judge, Mr. Armstrong has always been ready to do his share and do it conscientiously. For several years he was acknowledged to be the champion broncho buster, and was noted for his feats at roping and riding. He is an active member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City and was at one time chairman of the athletic committee of that organization. The greater part of his education was gained at the public schools of Greeley, Colorado.



JAMES J. KAVANAUGH

ENTERING the railroad field at the age of 19 years, as an office boy in the offices of the Illinois Central railroad at Chicago, James J. Kavanaugh has advanced steadily in that business until now he has a position with a wide range of responsibilities. Mr. Kavanaugh was born in Chicago March 25, 1883. He is a son of Katheryn Kelly Kavanaugh and John Kavanaugh. He attended the Franklyn school, Chicago, and later was graduated from the North Division High school in the same city. Immediately afterward he entered the Illinois Central offices. He remained several years, learning the details of the railroad business, and was then made city freight agent. He transferred to the Missouri Pacific, and was city freight agent with that road until 1907, when he was advanced to the position of traveling freight agent, at Atlanta, Georgia. His next change was when he became commercial agent for the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain lines at Monroe, Louisiana.

Then the desire to enter the west came to him, and he secured a transfer to Salt Lake City, in the same capacity, in 1910, remaining in the service of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain lines until September, 1913.

At that time Mr. Kavanaugh was appointed general agent for the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, the Western Pacific, and the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain lines, with Utah, Idaho, Montana and Nevada as far west as Winnemucca as his territory.

Mr. Kavanaugh is a member of the Alta club, the Commercial club and the Transportation club of Salt Lake. He is married, his wife being Irene Lee Kavanaugh.

Mr. Kavanaugh takes no active part and has no engrossing interest in politics, his whole time being taken up by his railroad duties. His offices are at 301 South Main street, Salt Lake, and he makes his home in Salt Lake, when not traveling over his territory.

HEBER M. WELLS

AS THE first governor elected by the people of Utah, after statehood was granted, Heber M. Wells of Salt Lake City handled the executive duties of that great office with wonderful tact, and endeared himself to the whole people of Utah. His way was beset with many difficulties that required unusual delicacy, and at the same time a strong hand and dominating personality, to overcome without too greatly antagonizing the many forces that were then at work in the first efforts to readjust old conditions to new principles. He served from 1895 to 1904.

Governor Wells was well endowed to handle these perplexing situations, as he knew Utah and her people. He was born in Salt Lake August 11, 1859. His father was Daniel H. Wells and his mother Martha Harris Wells. His father was one of the early mayors of Salt Lake. His ancestors settled in America in colonial days. His parents came to Utah over the old Mormon trail and did the pioneers' part in the task of wresting the valley of the Great Salt Lake from the grasp of the desert.

Heber M. Wells is a Republican in politics, and as a Republican was elected governor. His services to the state were so great that the residents of Salt Lake were unwilling for him to remain in private life, and in 1913 he was elected to the city commission, becoming commissioner of parks and public property. He is a member of no corporation.

Governor Wells, as he is affectionately known throughout the state, has an interesting family. His wife's name before marriage was Miss Emily Katz. His children are Heber D., Martha, Florence, John and Peter Wells.

Governor Wells is a member of the Alta club, Commercial club, Country club, Sons of the American Revolution, and Native Sons of Utah. He is recognized as one of the most gifted public speakers in the west, and is especially admired for his ability as an after-dinner speaker, combining wit and philosophy, epigram and forcefulness in his remarks in a peculiarly delightful and effective manner.

OSCAR W. CARLSON

OSCAR W. CARLSON, chairman of the board of commissioners of Salt Lake county, earned an excellent education before entering public life, and as a consequence has brought a trained mind to the service of the people who have honored him with public trust. Mr. Carlson is a native Utahn. He was born at Mill Creek, a prosperous farming community, May 21, 1881. He is of Swedish descent, his mother having come to Utah from Sweden in 1857, and his father, William Carlson, having come to Utah in 1861.

Mr. Carlson completed the common school course in the neighborhood of his birth, and after preparatory work entered the State Normal school, graduating therefrom in 1900. Five years later, 1905, he was graduated from the University of Utah, in the arts-science course, and then he went to the University of Chicago to study law. Since his return therefrom in 1907 he has been actively engaged in practicing the law, and now has offices at 224 Kearns building.

Mr. Carlson's advent into public life was as assistant county attorney for Salt Lake county, serving one and one-half years in 1907 and 1908, completing the unexpired term of his predecessor. In 1911 he was elected county commissioner, and from 1912 has been chairman of the board.

Mr. Carlson taught school in 1900 and for two years thereafter. He is married, his wife having been Miss Nellie Wilson. They have no living children. Mr. Carlson is a member of the Delta Chi, a law school fraternity; and of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City. He is a Republican in politics.

LEE CHARLES MILLER.

LEE CHARLES MILLER was born in Berkley county, West Virginia, near Martinsburg, in Shenandoah Valley, October 10, 1865. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Miller, moved to Wichita, Kan., then a frontier village. He was graduated from the Wichita High school, and from 1883 to 1885 took special work at the Kansas State University. In 1885 he entered the employ of William C. Little, in Wichita, an investment banker, specializing in farm mortgages. Two years later he resigned to become treasurer of the S. L. Davidson Mortgage Company, operating in Kansas, Colorado and Texas.

In the fall of 1889 he resigned to move to Salt Lake, establishing himself in business. He placed his first mortgage on an irrigated farm in Cache valley in October, 1889. In 1896 the firm of Miller and Viele was formed. A. Viele, his partner living in New York. The business is now one of the largest of its kind in the Intermountain Empire. The firm, of which Mr. Miller is active manager, and which he controls, operates throughout Utah, Idaho, western Colorado, western Wyoming and eastern Oregon. It occupies an extensive suite in the Kearns building. There is a branch office at Boise, Idaho. Mr. Miller conceived the idea of making long-term loans to farmers, fifteen years ago, to avoid the ruinous renewal expenses under the old short-term loan system.

Mr. Miller is a member of the University Club, Country Club, Tennis Club and Commercial Club of Salt Lake. In May, 1890, he married Minnie Williams Viele then of Wichita, Kansas, formerly of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. There are two children, Kean Miller and Bonnie Miller, both members of the younger society. The family lives at the home, 943 East First South Street, Salt Lake City.

HERMAN HAWARD GREEN.

HERMAN HAWARD GREEN was born at Independence, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, near Cleveland, July 7, 1868. He was educated in the public schools and was graduated from the Spencerian Business College, Cleveland, in 1890, after two years' training. He was employed by Mr. Frank Rockefeller on the Mesabi Iron Range, northern Minnesota, for two years. He came to Salt Lake City in April, 1896, and for one year was in a responsible position with one of the largest mining, smelting and refining companies of the west.

In 1907 Mr. Green turned his attention to his own mining interests, and to special auditing and accounting work. He was elected city auditor for Salt Lake City in the fall of 1913, leading his ticket by the widest margin recorded in the city in any election. November 2, 1915, he was elected a city commissioner for a term of four years.

Mr. Green is a son of John H. Green and Anna Katherine Newman Green. He is a Republican, and is married. His wife before her marriage was Miss Hannah Clymer. They have three children, Dorothy, thirteen years of age; Lois, eleven years of age and Herman H. Green, Jr., five years of age.

Mr. Green is a member of the Alta club and is widely known in business and professional circles by reason of his association with the leaders in business and finance, as an expert accountant. His home is at 1600 Fourth East street, Salt Lake City

BEN MICHAEL HARMAN

A WELL-KNOWN young business man with a future is B. M. Harman. Also he is one of the rising generation of native sons of Utah, having been born in Salt Lake City September 24, 1880. Mr. Harman's parents were of Welsh stock, his father, William S. Harman, having been born in that country, and his mother born in the United States, but of Welsh parentage. They were among the pioneer settlers of the Salt Lake valley. Mr. Harman attended and was graduated from the Salt Lake public schools, receiving his diploma from the Jackson High school in 1898. He made a noteworthy record in athletics, principally on the football team of the school.

Mr. Harman was married to Mary Brandley. There are two children: Elva, age 10, and Ralph, age 8.

A successful merchant, Mr. Harman has also been prominent in political and lodge circles. He is a staunch Republican and is affiliated with the Elks and the Moose.

Also he is president and general manager of the well-known and successful athletic club which bears his name. A number of clever athletes have been developed in this club.

The Harman baseball culb, an organization financed and directed by Mr. Harman, is one of the strongest semi-professional teams in the intermountain country.

As a patron of sports and athletics of all kinds Mr. Harman enjoys a merited popularity.

WILLIAM H. SHEARMAN.

TRAINED as an accountant and with a splendid knowledge of business methods and business accounting, William H. Shearman, member of the city commission of Salt Lake City, in the department of waterworks and water supply, has brought to his office the benefit of his years of practical business experience. Commissioner Shearman is better known as "Harry" Shearman, and under this name his friends rallied to his support when he was a candidate for the position of city auditor several years ago. He acquitted himself of the duties of that exacting office in so thoroughly satisfactory a measure that it was an easy matter for his friends to elect him to the city commission in 1913.

Commissioner Shearman is a native of Salt Lake, and was born in 1870. His parents were William H., and Elizabeth Shearman.

Commissioner Shearman attended the schools of Salt Lake City, and then the Hill school, Pottstown, Pa., graduating in 1888. Returning to Salt Lake he engaged in the banking business and at the time of his election as city auditor was cashier of the Merchants' bank. He is a Republican and is a member of several corporations. He also is a member of the Alta Club and the Commercial Club, and of Salt Lake Lodge No. 85, B. P. O. E. He is a member also of the Orpheus Club, a singing society comprised wholly of professional and business men, who have for their object, the development of higher musical taste by the public.

Commissioner Shearman has his home at 1153 Second avenue, Salt Lake City. He has an unusual degree of popularity in professional and social circles. Private business interests take up much of his time outside of his duties as city commissioner, and he has little time remaining for social diversions.

GEORGE A. STEINER

IN THE old days the butcher and the barber tied their towels and aprons in a neat bundle on Saturday night and took them to their homes for Mrs. Butcher and Mrs. Barber to wash and iron early the next week. Mrs. Printer had the some sort of task. It is different now, since the American Linen Supply company, of which George A. Steiner is president, invaded the field and drove the washtub out the back door.

George A. Steiner, whose home is at 1175 Second Avenue, Salt Lake City, attended Nebraska college in his early manhood, and it was then the idea occurred to him which has since been a boon to thousands of residents of Salt Lake City. He organized and became president of the American Linen Supply company, which furnishes a remarkable service to the city. Thousands of clean towels are distributed to offices and business houses every day. Toilet cases containing combs and brushes, neat bars of soap and other toilet accessories are replenished daily; barbers, butchers, bakers, printers and all other tradesmen are supplied as their needs require, with clean fresh towels, spotless aprons and other linen, and without a moment's thought on their part. Saloon men and restaurant men look to this service as the one adjunct as necessary as the stocks in which they deal—because of the perfection of the efficiency methods installed in the business by Mr. Steiner. The business is a remarkable one, and it has been developed to a point of scientific perfection through the painstaking study and the ingenuity of its founder, George A. Steiner. Mr. Steiner was elected president of the Commercial club of Salt Lake at the beginning of 1915, and also is a member of the Press club of Salt Lake City.

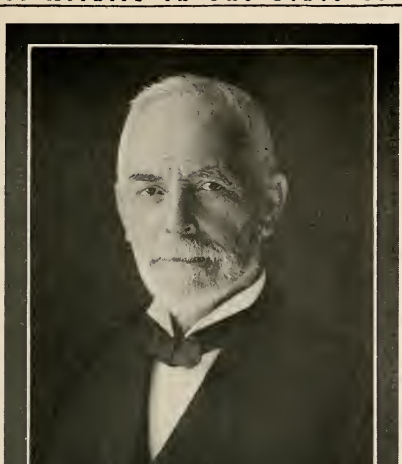
EDMUND A. BOCK

EDMUND A. BOCK, who was elected auditor of Salt Lake November 2, 1915, by the largest vote ever given a candidate in the city, was born at Smithton, Illinois, in 1882. He is the son of Mrs. G. G. Bock and Dr. G. G. Bock. While attending the grade schools, young Bock showed a preference for mathematics. The handling of figures seemed to be second nature to him. He attended the Washington university, St. Louis, Missouri, in 1902, and it was at this time he decided to become an expert accountant. In 1903-04, he attended the Gem City Business college, at Quincy, Illinois, from which institution he was graduated with the Master of Accounts degree.

For several years, Mr. Bock followed his profession as teacher of accountancy, and then the West proved the magnet that caused him to break away from his home state. In 1906, Mr. Bock came to Salt Lake, where he continued following his profession.

Prior to his election he had been employed for some time as assistant auditor under City Auditor Herman H. Green. It was while thus employed that he demonstrated his capabilities for the position of city auditor. He made many friends during those years and they rallied strongly to his support when he presented his petition for nomination.

Mr. Bock was married to Miss Laura M. Denton and to that union was born one son, Gustavus Bock. Mr. Bock is nonpartisan in politics and is a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles No. 67.



HENRY WILLIAM LAWRENCE

AS A member of the city council in the early days of the city's history, Henry W. Lawrence, the oldest member of the present city commission, had much to do with the early development of the city on broad lines which were so sure a foundation of the city's ultimate greatness. As a member of the city commission, when the structure reared upon the foundation he helped so well to lay and which has become the pride of the west and the wonder of the country, he has continued the excellent constructive work he began so well.

Commissioner Henry W. Lawrence was born July 18, 1835, at Pickering Township, West Canada, now Ontario. His parents were Edward Lawrence, a native of Delaware county, New York, and Margaret Major Lawrence, a native of Toronto, Canada. He came to Utah with his parents when he was 15 years of age, settling in Salt Lake City. He attended the primitive public schools of the territory, but was unable to continue his education through a college course. Mr. Lawrence was elected to the city commission to take office January 1, 1912, and was detailed to the department of public affairs and finance. He was one of the early merchants of Salt Lake City, doing business from 1860 to 1884 under the firm name of Kimball & Lawrence. As his activities also included real estate and mining he became well qualified to act as business manager for the city. He was a Salt Lake councilman from 1867 to 1869, inclusive.

Mr. Lawrence married Jeanette S. Kimball, now deceased, and their children are Catherine, William J. ,George N., Herbert W., Charles W., Frank K. and Robert M. Lawrence. Mr. Lawenree's home is at 134 North Main street, Salt Lake City. He is a Socialist in politics, and is a member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City, but of no fraternal or secret society.

Commissioner Lawrence's keen business intellect and his certain grasp upon the weighty public affairs of the city have compelled the respect of those who are associated with him, or who have followed his career in the city administration, and in his personal business affairs.

DR. HARRY R. WELCH

DESCENDANT of a family of soldiers, Dr. Harry R. Welch has chosen the profession of healing in preference to that of war. Harry Raymond Welch was born at Nelsonville, Ohio, June 24, 1878. His father was Captain John F. Welch, Company B. One Hundred Sixteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry from 1861 to 1865. His grandfather on the paternal side served in the Mexican war, and his father's mother was a direct descendant of Commodore Perry, who did such valiant service for the young republic in the war of 1812. His mother's father was Judge Thomas L. Minturn, who was a distinguished member of the Ohio bench for many years. His mother's name was Sarah A. Minturn.

Dr. Welch comes of a family of physicians, there being six members in active practice as physicians at this time. It was wholly natural, therefore, that he should have chosen medicine as his life work.

Dr. Welch attended and graduated from the Nelsonville High school in 1897, and upon his graduation took a partnership in his father's general contracting business. He remained with the firm for several years before entering college.

He attended the Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital of Chicago from 1901 to 1905, and was graduated as honor man in May of that year. He began the practice of medicine at Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1905, remaining there until his removal to Salt Lake City in 1912. He was married in 1905 to Miss Lottie M. Whig of Gallipolis, Ohio, and there are two children, Dorothy, 7 years of age, and Charles Edgar, 5 years of age.

Dr. Welch is a Republican; is a member of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, B. P. O. E., and of the Knights of Pythias. He is a graduate fellow of the Pi Upsilon Rho fraternity; member of the Homeopathic Medical Society of Ohio and of the National Institute of Homeopathy. He is a specialist and consultant in obstetrics and the homeopathic treatment of diseases of women and children.

ROBERT CAMPBELL GEMMELL.

ROBERT CAMPBELL GEMMELL, mining engineer, was born at Port Mathilda, Pennsylvania, July 5, 1863. He is a son of Robert Brown Gemmell and Anna Eliza (Campbell) Gemmell. He was educated in the common and high schools of Topeka, Kansas. Graduated from University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, with the degree of B. S. in 1884; he received the degree of C. E. in 1895, and the honorary degree of Master of Engineering in 1913. He married Belle Anderson, October 17, 1888, at Salt Lake City. He was employed in the engineering deaprtment of the Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Company from the summer of 1884 until the summer of 1890. From 1890 to 1893 he engaged in the private practice of hydraulic and mining engineering in Idaho, Oregon and Washington. From 1893 to 1895 he was employed in the city engineering department of Salt Lake City. From 1895 to 1901 he engaged in private practice as mining engineer in various western states and as engineer of De Lamar's mines.

During part of 1905 he engaged in the examination of gold mines in Spain. From January 1, 1906 to date he has been employed by the Utah Copper Company, first as general superintendent and now as general manager.

From January, 1909 to date, he has been assistant general manager of the Bingham & Garfield Railway Company, and consulting mining engineer of the Ray Consolidated Copper Company and the Chino Copper Company. He is a director of the Salt Lake Security & Trust Company. Mr. Gemmell is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the Mining & Metallurgical Society of America, and the Sons of American Revolution. He is a member of the Alta Club, Commercial Club, University Club and Country Club of Salt Lake City; the Rudy Duck Club and the Bear River Duck Club of Utah, and the Flat Rock Club of Idaho.

N. EDWARD LILJENBERG

AMONG the architects of Salt Lake City who have done their part in making an artistic and beautiful place of the intermountain capital is N. Edward Liljenberg. Mr. Liljenberg is a Swedish-American. He was born February 10, 1869. The theory that a son finds it difficult to live up to the good name of his father is disproven in this instance of "worthy son of worthy sire." For Mr. Liljenberg is a credit to his profession and thus adds luster to his father's name.

At an early age he decided upon the calling which he would follow, choosing that of architecture. With this aim in mind, he entered the Technical Institute of Sweden, one of the foremost technical schools of that country. He was graduated from the institution in 1888 after completing his course with credit.

Mr. Liljenberg, still a young man, immigrated to America and settled in Salt Lake City in 1902. He soon showed his ability as an expert in his profession and has maintained an enviable position in the profession ever since.

He is married, his wife being Mrs. Anna Liljenberg. They have three children: Irene,11 years of age; Melva, 9 years of age, and Stanley, 8 years of age. Mr. Liljenberg is a popular lodge man, being active in the Eagles and the Elks.

FRANK WINDER MOORE.

THE state of Utah has many great architects, but none who have accomplished more toward the uplifting of that profession in the state than has Frank Winder Moore. In the time Mr. Moore has been in the city of Salt Lake more has been accomplished along architectural lines than has been seen in any of the western states since their early exploitation.

His identification with many of the largest and most beautiful structures in Salt Lake City is known by the general public.

Frank Winder Moore was born November 12, 1876, in Atlanta, Georgia. His parents were Mary Elizabeth Countiss-Moore of Wilmington, Delaware, and his father, Benjamin Moore. He was a student of the Georgia School of Technology and the University of Georgia. He also took an extensive course of studies at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris, France. He was graduated from the University of Georgia with the class of 1896.

Mr. Moore came to Utah in 1904, and has never married. While in attendance at school Mr. Moore was honored by being accepted as a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Since his arrival in Salt Lake City he has become a member of the B. P. O. E. In addition to his membership in fraternal organizations Mr. Moore is a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City, a member of the University Club and of the Timpanogos Club. He was the architect for the American theatre, the National City Bank, the Farmers and Stockgrowers Bank and Pinecrest Inn, all of Salt Lake City, and for the Pingree National Bank of Ogden and the Carbon County High school of Price, Utah. Mr. Moore was also civil engineer and superintendent of construction in the war department in charge of the new buildings at Fort Douglas, Utah. He started in business in Salt Lake City as an architect in 1910

WILLIAM MURDOCK McCARTY.

AS chief justice of the supreme court of Utah, William M. McCarty holds a position which is peculiarly exacting, and which makes peculiarly trying demands upon him. The judicial mind must not be swayed by personal opinion, and the law is the only foundation upon which opinions of the supreme court can be built.

Chief Justice McCarty, on the bench, divorces himself from every personal tie, and thinks only as a judge, without fear or favor. Off the bench he displays another side of a remarkable personality. Amiable, a delightful conversationalist, possessing wit that sparkles and philosophy that sobers, Chief Justice McCarty has thousands of friends who admire him and cherish his good esteem.

William Murdock McCarty was born May 15, 1859, at Alpine, Utah county, Utah. His father was James Hardwick McCarty and his mother Lydia Margaret Cragun-McCarty. His father, who was a native of Kentucky, moved to Indiana when a boy and grew to manhood there. He came to Utah in 1854. His mother was born at Nauvoo, Ill., and came to Utah in 1852.

William M. McCarty attended the Brigham Young Academy in 1881 and 1882, his preparation having been gained in the public schools. He began the practice of law early in life and advanced steadily in position and prominence until his election to the supreme bench of the state.

Chief Justice McCarty is a Republican in national politics. He is married, his wife having been, before her marriage, Miss Lovina L. Murray. They have the following children: Murray W., 20 years of age; Roy S., 18 years of age; Margaret Lovina, 12 years of age, and Frank H. E. McCarty, 7 years of age. The family home is at 1053 Third avenue, Salt Lake City.

Chief Justice McCarty is a member of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, B. P. O. E., the Knights of Pythias and the Loyal Order of Moose, all of Salt Lake City.

HARRY S. JOSEPH

IT IS needless to say that Harry S. Joseph is a Republican. All those who have followed the course of politics in Utah know this fact. He has been a candidate for congress on a number of occasions, and while he has invariably finished with the "also rans," he has furnished more than the average interest to these campaigns.

Mr. Joseph is a native of Cincinnati, Ohio. He was born June 14, 1866, and came to Utah June 10, 1887. He is a son of Augusta Bamberger Joseph and Solomon Joseph. He is a civil engineer, mining man and waterworks owner, and in following these avocations his time is largely taken up. He has time always, in season, however, for the great game of politics.

Mr. Joseph is identified with a large number of mining and other corporations. He is president and general manager of the Silver Shield Mining and Milling company; vice-president and general manager of the Beaver City Water Service company; president of the St. Joseph Land company, and president of the St. Joseph Water and Irrigation company.

Attending the University of Cincinnati from 1884 until his graduation with the degree of C. E. in 1887, he came at once to Utah, settling in Salt Lake. He married Miss Mamie Morris, but there are no children.

Mr. Joseph is a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Salt Lake lodge No. 85, and of the Unity club. He is prominently identified with the Republican party, in state, county and city affairs, and has always been a stalwart among the leaders of that party. He knows many of the finer points of the greatest game in America, and his resources in a campaign are sometimes considered remarkable. He is a forceful speaker and a convincing campaign orator.

Mr. Joseph's home is at 80 H street, Salt Lake City, and this is the center of a delightful social sphere in which he and his wife move.

CHARLES FRED JENNINGS

AS ASSISTANT purchasing agent for the Utah Copper company, and associated interests, Charles Fred Jennings holds a position of trust with one of the largest mining institutions in the country, and one that is known in every civilized country in the world. A line of work that requires the greatest skill and the widest knowledge of general conditions is the position which is so ably filled by Mr. Jennings, who is not only a favorite with his working associates, but with his social acquaintances.

Mr. Jennings, son of Sophronia H. and Mark Jennings, was born in Laramie, Wyoming, July 10, 1873. His ancestry dates back to June 23, 1677, on which date they landed at New Salem, New Jersey.

The ancestors on both sides of the family served in both the Revolutionary and the Civil wars. Like the ancestors, Mr. Jennings has always been an adherent of the principles of Republicanism, and is always a worker along those lines when the opportunities present themselves.

After completing his work in the public schools, Mr. Jennings entered the Wyoming university at Laramie, Wyoming, which college he attended until 1890.

Seven years later, July 13, 1897, he came to Salt Lake City, having been a resident of the state of Utah ever since. That he is well liked and highly esteemed by his fellow men is evidenced by the fact that he is a highly respected member of local clubs and a member of the local Masonic fraternity. His marriage to Nellie Crandall took place after his arrival in Utah, the family now including two daughters and two sons: Grace, 9 years of age; Fred C., 6 years of age; Mark J., 3 years of age, and Elizabeth, 1 year of age. Mr. Jennings is a member of the Alta club and the Transportation club, both of Salt Lake City.

WILLIAM ROSS WALLACE.

ASSOCIATED actively with the Democratic party in Utah since the early days, William Ross Wallace is a conspicuous figure in the annals of that party in the West. Mr. Wallace was born in Salt Lake City December 10th, 1866. His father was Henry Wallace and his mother Mrs. Ellen Harper Wallace of London, England.

He was a student at the University of Utah, for four years.

Mr. Wallace's wife was formerly Miss Annie McChrystal. They have four sons, John M., twenty years of age; Henry A., seventeen years of age; William R., Jr., fifteen years of age; and Alexander C., thirteen years of age.

Mr. Wallace is a stockholder in the National Biscuit company and a director in the Utah National bank. He is also a prominent stockholder in Z. C. M. I. and in the Utah-Idaho Sugar company.

He is promoter and officer of the Utah Conservation company. In addition to this he is also a member of the Bennett Paint and Glass Company, with branches in Salt Lake City, Ogden, Logan and Provo.

Like many other Utah men interested in a special line, the lure of mining has atracted him. Mr. Wallace has invested in this line profitably. He is president and principal owner of the Ridge and Valley Mining Company of the Tintic Mining District, Juab county, Utah. Besides this, he is also interested in Bristol, Nev., and in Deep Creek, Utah.

Mr. Wallace is a true westerner in ideals. He is now Democratic National Committeeman for Utah.

GEORGE MUELLER.

PRESIDENT of several large western corporations and well known: as an influential business man George Mueller, who has been a resident of Salt Lake City for more than twenty years has since he arrived here through his untiring efforts built up a business and a reputation with business men of which any person should be proud. At the present time he is following the business of wholesale baking, and at the same time is the proprietor of a popular cafe in this city. In addition to these interests Mr. Mueller is president of the Royal Baking Company and the president of the Royal Confectionery Company.

Mr. Mueller was born in Germany. His parents were Junda August and George Mueller. His father followed the profession of a school teacher. George Mueller's school days were passed in the public schools of Germany.

After arriving in Salt Lake City he took a course in the night schools where he remained for considerable time. His efficiency and honorable conduct soon gained for him the esteem and respect of his associates, both in a business and social life. His membership in the Commercial Club has extended over a long period and since his connection with that organization he has shown his friends that he is an ardent worker and always ready to give what assistance is within his power toward the betterment of the club.

Mr. Mueller has never taken what might be termed an active part in po'itical campaigns. He arrived here from California in 1890 and has been a resident since that time. Mr. Mueller was at one time married. Two daughters, who are now living with their father, are Norma, sixteen years of age, and Ruth, thirteen years of age. Mr. Mueller has real estate interests in the state in addition to his interests in corporations. His residence is at the Prescott apartments, Second South and Sixth East Streets.

JOHN C. D. CLARK.

JOHN CHARLES DOBIE CLARK, general manager of the Utah Gas & Coke Company, was born at Champaign, Illinois, and educated in the public schools of that place with a supplementary course in a business college.

He entered the gas business as an employe of the Chicago Gas Light & Coke Company when the use of gas was restricted almost entirely to lighting. Beginning in 1885 he served in all departments and had much to do with the creation of others made necessary by the expansion of the gas business. He was commercial agent of the People's Gas & Coke Co., successor to Chicago Gas, in 1903, when he went to St. Louis, to be commercial agent of the Laclede Gas Co., a position he held for four years.

Mr. Clark was one of the first men in the public utilities service to appreciate the necessity for popularizing a form of business that had been conducted with almost aristocratic exclusiveness in its earlier stages. No small measure of his success and that of his companies was due to his policy of appealing to the friendliness and common sense of the man in the street and the woman in the kitchen.

He delighted in taking down the bars between the "magnates" and the public. In the slang of the day, "he was the guy who took the ice out of service."

In 1907 he returned to Chicago and remained as commercial agent of the People's company until 1911. In that year he resigned to enter the service of the American Public Utilities Company, of Grand Rapids, Mich., which had just purchased the control of the Utah Gas & Coke Co. in Salt Lake. He was designated as manager of the Utah company and arrived in Salt Lake April 6, 1912.

Mr. Clark and his wife reside at No. 8, Prescott apartments, Second South and Sixth East Streets. They have two sons, Horace H., of Oak Park, Ill., and John C., of Bridgeport, Conn.

JOHN JASPER McCLELLAN.

IF to charm the ears of a million hearers with melody that inspires the most sublime thoughts is to have fame, John Jasper McClellan, Utah's premier musician has established himself in the people's "Hall of Fame." It is impossible to arrive at an accurate estimate of the number of persons who have listened to his playing as organist of the Mormon Tabernacle organ, but it is safe to say that more than a million listeners have fallen under the spell of his magic power.

John Jasper McClellan was born at Payson, Utah, April 20, 1874. He gave evidence of his love for music in childhood, and in his earlier years was largely selftaught. When he was seventeen years of age he entered the music department of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and studied successively with Albert W. Platte, piano and theory; Johann Erich School, piano; Dr. Albert A. Stanley, theory and organ; and Alberto Jonas, piano. He went to Berlin in 1899 and was a pupil of Francis Xaviar Scharwenka, piano; and Ernest Jedliczka, piano and theory. He filled the chair of music at the University of Utah for three years. He was named as organist for the Mormon Tabernacle in October, 1900, which position he retains. He has played in concert in many parts of the United States. He is dean of the Utah Conservatory of Music, which he founded. His greatest work toward the development of true musical taste among the masses, is as organist for the Tabernacle, where he gives free organ recitals of the world's best music. He was conductor of the Salt Lake Symphony Orchestra, and his most notable composition is "Irrigation Ode." He has composed many songs and hymns, his music always being of an inspiring and uplifting character. The family makes its home in Salt Lake City.

JOHN HENRY FREDERICKSON

BORN on a farm near Champaign, Illinois, December 5, 1870, John Henry Frederickson spent his boyhood there. His parents were Erasmus Frederickson and Johanna Hansena Thorne Frederickson, natives of Denmark. He taught school one year before entering the University of Illinois. He studied civil engineering from 1887 to 1891.

His wife formerly was Miss Sarah Shelby. They have two children: Myra Shelby, 4, and John Henry, Jr., 2 years of age.

Mr. Frederickson is a member of the University, Country, Salt Lake Commercial, Tennis and Alta clubs, and of the American Society of Civil Engineers, New York, and the Western Society of Engineers, Chicago.

From 1892 to 1898 he was assistant engineer of bridges and buildings for the Illinois Central, in charge of the designing and drafting office, Chicago. From 1898 to 1900 he was locating and construction engineer for the same road. He located and supervised construction of branch lines in Mississippi, including the Omaha extension, and Stuyvesant docks at New Orleans. From 1900 to 1914 he was with James Stewart & Co., contractors and engineers, at St. Louis and Pittsburg up to 1905, and then until 1908 being at New Orleans as manager of the southern office, when the company rebuilt the Stuyvesant docks in six months; the Union station and other buildings, making a total of $7,000,000 for the work. From 1908 to 1909 he was with the Stewart-Kerbaugh-Shanley company in New York as manager in charge of their state road contracts. From 1909 to 1914 he has been with James Stewart & Co. as manager at Denver and Salt Lake for all territory west of Kansas City. Among the buildings they have erected in Salt Lake during this time are Walker Bank building, Walker store, Auerbach building, Orpheum theater, and the Utah state capitol.

PAUL JONES

RT. REV. PAUL JONES, Bishop of Utah, was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, November 24, 1880, both his father, Rev. Henry L. Jones, S. T. D., and his grandfather, Rev. Lot Jones, D. D., having been clergymen of the Episcopal church. Bishop Jones graduated from Yale university in 1902, and from the Episcopal Theological school in 1906. After being ordained deacon in the Episcopal church he came to Utah, in September, 1906, and with the Rev. D. K. Johnston was put in charge of St. John's mission, Logan, where he remained until September, 1914, being in sole charge from 1911. He was advanced to the priesthood in December, 1906.

In Logan, Bishop Jones was active, not only in the works of the church, but through the Commercial club took a prominent part in the work of civic improvement. He was one of the organizers of the Commercial Boosters club, a charter member of the Associated Boys clubs of Utah, of which he was later president, and an organizer of the Logan Health league.

In 1908 a new church and club house for students were built, and the Common Room club, an organization for young men, was started. For six years he and Mr. Johnston published a monthly magazine called "The Portal," dealing with subjects of religion and civic interest, which was widely circulated about the state.

In September, 1914, Bishop Jones moved to Salt Lake City to become archdeacon of Utah. Following the death of the late Bishop Spaulding, he was elected bishop and was consecrated December 16, 1914, in St. Mark's cathedral, Salt Lake. As bishop he is president of the board of trustees of St. Mark's hospital, rector of the Rowland Hall school for girls, and in charge of all the work of the Episcopal church in Utah.

JOHN F. WILLIAMSON

FROM civil engineering to coal field operative is a natural step, and this step was taken by John F. Williamson, who, in addition to his present interests, worked—and worked hard—as a civil engineer on several of the most important railway lines in the country.

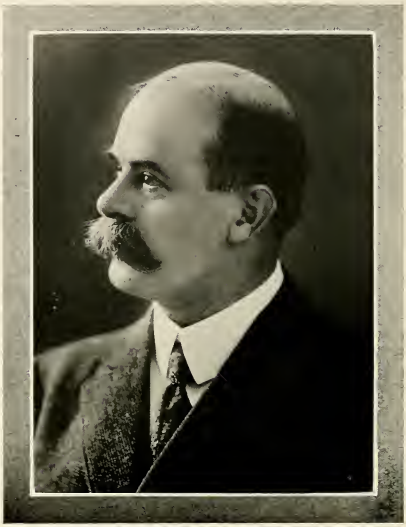
John F. Williamson is a descendant of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and of a branch of the family which answered the call of the west following the revolution and settled in Ohio.

The city of Piqua, Ohio, was his birthplace. He was the son of Isabella Andrews Williamson and Albert J. Williamson. He obtained his education in the public schools of Ohio and took a special course in civil engineering in the Ohio State university at Columbus.

Following his graduation in 1887, he came west with the vanguard of engineers for the railway lines, and was engaged in the work of locating the right of way for the Western Pacific railroad; track and bridge engineer for what is now the El Paso & Southwestern road; engineer on the Santa Fe system; division engineer for the Missouri Pacific, and has, at one time or another, been connected with railroads in all parts of the United States for a period covering twenty years.

Mr. Williamson is chief engineer for the Southern Utah railroad and president of the Helper Western railway. From railways, Mr. Williamson has turned his interest, in part, to the development of the Utah coal fields, and is president of the National Fuel company, a large and growing concern of this state, owning property covering 1323 acres and conservatively estimated to contain 80,000,000 tons of coal.

Mr. Williamson is a member of the Republican party, and is unmarried. His home is in Salt Lake City.



IRA H. LEWIS

ASSISTANT cashier of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad company and of the Utah Fuel company is the high position of trust to which Ira H. Lewis has risen. The position is not one that may be gained by the work of a few days, and neither by a so-called pull. It is one that could have only been acquired by many years of steady toil and diligent and unceasing effort. Trust in him has always been properly placed, with the result that he is highly esteemed by the directors of the Denver & Rio Grande system, of which he is an able and trusted representative.

Mr. Lewis, son of Sarah Jane Martin and George W. Lewis, was born September 4, 1860, at St. Joseph, Missouri. Although his boyhood school days were spent in the city of his birth, his later training was received at the Kansas State Agricultural college, at Manhattan, Kansas. As other matters intervened which made it impossible for him to complete his course at the Kansas college, he attended that institution only during the years 1874 and 1875. His first appearance in Utah was March 15, 1890, shortly after which he became connected with the corporations of which he is now assistant cashier. He is a Democrat. His wife was formerly Miss Blanche V. S. Smith. Some time after his arrival in Salt Lake City he was admitted to membership in the local Masonic order, of which fraternity he has since been a member in excellent standing. As a club member Mr. Lewis is well known throughout the state, at present being a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club, the Alta club and the Salt Lake City Transportation club.

DR. T. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

LIFE presents golden opportunities to the professional man. The physician, for instance, who throws himself into his studies and preparatory work with that enthusiasm which marks the true disciple of Esculapius, leaves behind him glitering milestones of mental and scientific achievement. The victories of the student are his.

Looking over the career of Dr. T. William Stevenson, one is impressed with the great variety of work, not of the dull, routine, spiritless type, but work of the high class required by that most exacting of taskmasters, the medical calling.

Born in Salt Lake City on April 12, 1878, Dr. Stevenson came of distinguished line. His grandfather being a surgeon in the British army; thus it was, that he came honestly by his love for that profession.

His father was Edward Stevenson and his mother Louisa Yates Stevenson. After the rudimentary training of the graded schools of his native city, Dr. Stevenson entered the state university here in 1893. He was graduated from that institution in 1896 and went next to the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, Md., where he took up his medical studies, entering there in 1904. He was graduated June 3, 1908.

He returned to Salt Lake City and took up his practice as a physician and surgeon. He has won an enviable reputation for his achievements in his chosen calling and is among the foremost physicians of his native state today.

Dr. Stevenson is married, his wife being Mrs. Elnora McKay Stevenson. They have four children: T. William Jr., nine years of age; Charles Calvert, seven years of age; Edward McKay, six years of age; and Gordon, four years of age.

For three years Dr. Stevenson was abroad, traveling through Europe from 1896 to 1899. He is a linguist of no mean ability, speaking both French and German fluently. In politics Dr. Stevenson is a Republican. He was chosen assistant county physician in 1911 and 1912 for Salt Lake county.

NOBLE WARRUM.

POSTMASTER NOBLE WARRUM was born at Greenfield, Indiana, on September 29, 1865, being one of the men whom the east has sent out to help in the great task of developing the west. His father was Noble Warrum and his mother, Mrs. Annie Wood Warrum.

Mr. Warrum received his collegiate training at two of the finest educational institutions in the country: De Paw University and the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Mich. He attended the former institution from 1882 to 1884 and the latter from 1886 to 1888. He received his law training at Michigan State University and after finishing that course, remained east for two years, removing to Utah in 1890.

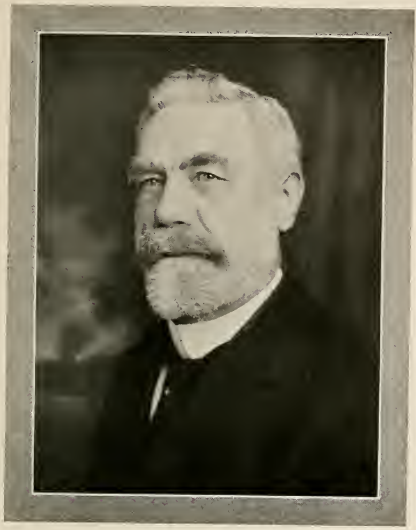
Mr. Warrum is married, his wife formerly having been Miss Julia Hagen. Two children have blessed this union, Noble Warrum the Third, 19 years of age; and Andrew Warrum, 16 years of age.

Mr. Warrum is a member of three secret societies: the Masonic order, the B. P. O. E. and a College Greek letter fraternity: the Phi Kappa Psi.

He is a staunch Democrat, was editor-in-chief of the Herald for five years, and is among the leaders of his party in Salt Lake City as well as in Utah. The office of city recorder was held by him for two years with credit to himself and to the commission which placed him in this responsible position. He was appointed postmaster of Salt Lake in April, 1914, resigning as recorder to accept that office.

Mr. Warrum is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. He is one of the type of citizens known as "boosters" and is ever to be relied upon to labor for the good of the community at large.

He was a member of the Constitutional convention of the state, after which he served in the first state senate. He was a colonel on the staff of Governor Heber M. Wells, and was probate judge of Cache county for two years.



FRANK A. DRUEHL.

COMING to Salt Lake City in 1890 to open a modest drug store, Frank A. Druehl has become one of the leading citizens and business men of this region. While he was born in the town of Butzow, Mecklenberg-Schwerin, Germany, January 7, 1852, his father having been Louis F. Druehl and his mother Charlotte Druehl. After having received a common education, he was apprenticed as a pharmacist at Rena, a neighboring city, and received his certificate when seventeen years of age.

Shortly afterward he came to this country, arriving in Chicago in 1869. He obtained employment as a clerk in a drug store, remaining there until 1871.

He sold out his store in Chicago and came to Salt Lake City, starting in business with James L. Franken at Main and Third South Streets, under the name of Druehl & Franken. The firm prospered, and in 1895 it bought out the A. C. Smith Drug Company, which was in business at the corner of Second South and Main Streets. The corporation which succeeded the partnership and which is controlled by the same man still operates these two stores, as well as others, and transacts one of the largest drug businesses in the west.

Mr. Druehl was an organizer of the Utah Pharmaceutical Association and was elected its first president. He was also one of the organizers of the United Drug Company, which has headquarters in Boston and is now one of the largest drug manufacturing and distributing corporations in the world.

He has been prominently identified with the Independent Coal & Coke Company and the Pacific Land & Water Company since their organiation. He is also a director of Walker Brothers Bankers. He is a member of the Masonic order and of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City.

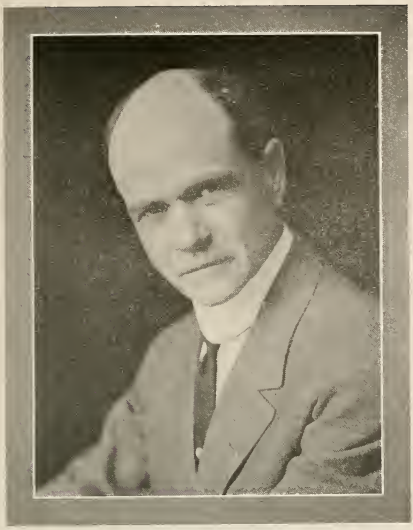
RUSSEL L. TRACY.

OF the large force of men employed by the Tracy Loan and Trust Company, there is not one who is not loyal to the last fibre of his being to Russel L. Tracy, president of that company. Mr. Tracy considers the welfare and happiness of those men who are associated with him in business as carefully as he considers the welfare of the members of his own family. That sense of responsibility which he has assumed for the happiness of the men and women about him has won their deep and strong attachment, and their utmost fidelity.

Mr. Tracy was born at Mansfield, Ohio, in 1860, a son of F. E. Tracy and Anna L. Tracy. He attended Oberlin College, Ohio, and came to Utah in 1892, making his home in Salt Lake City from that time. He is married, his wife having formerly been Miss Luella Smith. They have one son, Russel L. Tracy, Jr.

Mr. Tracy is a member of the University club, the Salt Lake Commercial club and the Country club. He is one of the most earnest workers in the Commercial club for all things that tend to the steady and permanent growth and development of Salt Lake City and of Utah.

Mr. Tracy is closely, but silently identified with a number of large movements for the amelioration of the condition of the unfortunate, and of those whose opportunities are limited. The newsboys of this city have learned to love him, because of his kindness to them. Every Thanksgiving since he came to Utah, all the newsboys of the city have been his guests at an elaborate dinner, and as jolly a merrymaking as can be provided for full-blooded, healthful youngsters.



WILLIAM GEORGE FARRELL

INHERITING the proverbial persistence of his Scotch, Irish and Swedish ancestors, William George Farrell, former secretary of the Salt Lake Commercial club, has achieved a singular degree of success in Salt Lake and in Utah. His father was George Lionel Farrell and his mother Charlotte Marie Lundberg. He was born at Logan, Utah, though his ancestors on his father's side were the O'Farrells of Ireland and the McFarrels of Scotland. They were of the middle class, artisans. His mother's forbears were Swedish blacksmiths, inventors, tailors and rope makers. None distinguished himself in literature, arts or politics, but all were of the substantial working types.

Mr. Farrell owns stock in the George L. Farrell corporation, owners of 2000 acres in Cache county; and in the Dry Farm and Stock company, owning 6200 acres in Rush Valley, Utah. He is also general agent for the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company in Utah. His occupation is that of life insurance salesman. His corporation affiliations are as vice-president of the George L. Farrell corporations, farmers; president of the Iosepa Agricultural & Stock company, owners of a townsite, a water system, stock ranch, general merchandise store and a 1000-acre farm; and he is a director of the Dry Farm and Stock Company.

Mr. Farrell is a Democart in national politics, and independent on local issues. He attended the University of Utah in 1878, 1879 and 1880, but was not graduated. He came to Salt Lake City in 1899. His wife's maiden name was Florence N. Caine, and his children are William Caine and Frederick Nightingale Caine Farrell. Mr. Farrell is a member of B. P. O. E., the Utah Association of Life Underwriters, the Commercial club, the Rotary club, Advertising club, Thistle club, Bonneville club, and the Passenger association.

Mr. Farrell has lived in Utah, Idaho and the Hawaiian Islands, and speaks three tongues: Swedish, Hawaiian and English. He is especially proficient in English, particularly in telling of the advantages of residence in Utah

WILLARD DONE

THE wheelhorse of the Republican party in Utah is a term which has been applied accurately to Willard Done, former state insurance commissioner of Utah. Mr. Done has been honored many times with public offices of great importance, but perhaps the most notable part of his career has been as an organizer for his party. Also well known in the insurance world, he would this year have been elected president of the national convention of insurance commissioners had not his term of office expired just before the convention's meeting.

Mr. Done was born in Moroni, Sanpete county, December 10, 1865, the youngest son of John and Sarah Barker Done, Utah pioneers. The young man was graduated from Brigham Young academy in June, 1883. For seventeen years thereafter he was in educational work at his alma mater, at the Salt Lake academy and at the Wesleyan university at Bloomington.

He gained his intricate knowledge of insurance work as an agent for the New York Life between 1900 and 1906, leaving the work to become the private secretary to Governor Cutler. In 1903 he had served a term in the legislature and in 1909 became minute clerk of the senate.

The offices of assistant, acting, and finally insurance commissioner followed in rapid succession. His brilliant and painstaking work in the insurance field brought him an offer from the San Francisco Underwriters, which he accepted to take effect June 30, 1914.

Mr. Done was married December 23, 1885, to Miss Amanda Forbes of American Fork. They have eight children.

Mr. Done returned to make his headquarters in Salt Lake in November, 1915.

WIGGO FREDERIK JENSEN.

PRESIDENT of one of the largest and best known creameries in the world, W. F. Jensen is also a stockholder in the California Central Creameries of San Francisco, the Telegram Publishing Company of Salt Lake, and the Jensen Manufacturing Company of Topeka, Kansas.

Wiggo Frederik Jensen, son of Marie Wieland and Jacob Olsen Jensen, was born November 28, 1871, in Osterlinnet province, Schlesvig Holstein, Germany. His father and mother are of Danish nationality, his grandfather having been a member of the first constitutional parliament in Denmark in 1848. His mother's father was known as the "old miller from Gram," having conducted a flour mill for fifty-six years. Mr. Jensen is now the president of the Mutual Creamery Company which has fourteen plants, located in Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Kansas, and which do an annual business of three million dollars. The company deals in all products of cows and hens. Mr. Jensen attended Skibelund College, Wejen, Denmark, from 1883 until April 18, 1889, at which time he was graduated from the institution. He first came to Salt Lake in June, 1908, previous to which time he was married to Matilda R. Brandt. He has one boy, Ethelbert Wiggo Jensen, twelve years of age. He has been a member of the B. P. O. E. since 1898. After joining the Masonic order in 1898 he because a member of the Knights Templar and of El Kalah shrine, A. A. O. N. M. S. He is also a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club, the Alta Club and the Country Club. After serving on the board of directors of the Commercial Club for three years he was elected president of that organization for 1914. Mr. Jensen is also an extensive property owner, among his possessions being his home on Third avenue and a half block of property facing the Denver & Rio Grande station, Fourth South and Fourth West Streets.

SAMUEL NEWHOUSE.

SAMUEL NEWHOUSE, city builder, has won his place in the hearts of Salt Lake City's residents, because of his intense loyalty to that city, and his inspiring evidences of confidence in her future. He has done his great part in a masterly way to make Salt Lake City the Queen of the West.

Possessed of a proud confidence that this city was destined to become the greatest in the west, and with capital to carry out his big ideas, Mr. Newhouse erected the first skyscraper in Utah. In the Boston and Newhouse buildings, twin structures of remarkable beauty, and other business blocks that shelter cities within themselves, Mr. Newhouse built an enduring monument that will outlive the ages. The value of this example and the impetus it gave building operations can never be measured. It is appreciated by the people.

Samuel Newhouse's life in brief is a story of titanic struggle and of big success. He was born in New York City in 1854. In 1883 he married Miss Ida H. Stingley, descendant of a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He was educated in the public schools of Philadelphia; read law; was attracted to Colorado in 1879; engaged in the newspaper business; made successful investments in Colorado mines; built the camps of Idaho Springs and Central City; constructed the Newhouse bore; opened great silver mines; and earned a place in the hearts of Coloradans which he still retains.

He moved to Utah in 1896, when his vast holdings here required personal attention. He went into Highland Boy, one-half interest in which was sold to Standard Oil for $6,000,000; then into Boston Consolidated and made another fortune in that mountain of ore. He founded and built the model industrial town of Newhouse, Utah. He has offices in New York and London as well as Salt Lake City. He is a member of the Commercial Club, the Alta Club, the Country Club, the Salt Lake Mining Exchange; and many of the most exclusive clubs of New York and London.

EMERSON FRANK ROOT

BORN at Hartford, Wisconsin, November 1, 1858, to Alonzo D. Root and Emeretta Root, Emerson Frank Root spent his boyhood amid the beautiful surroundings of the place of his birth. By a peculiar coincidence, his mother's maiden name was Root, though she came of a family not related in any way with his father's family.

He attended the Western Reserve college, at Cleveland, Ohio, until 1880, when he was graduated, attaining exceptionally high marks after an unusually honorable college career. His steady and earnest work during all the period of his school life, gave him an excellent start on his professional career.

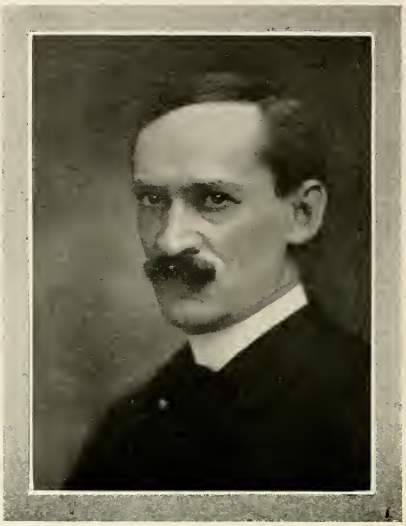
Dr. Root is married and has a family of one daughter and two sons. His wife was Kathleen W. Speight, and his daughter is Clara Louise Elkins, twenty-seven years of age. His sons are Frank K. Root, twenty-five years of age, and Emerson R. Root, twelve years of age.

Though Dr. Root is a Republican in politics, he takes no active part in the political game, being content to exercise his franchise and watch the game from the outside.

He is a member of the Masonic fraternity in this city, and is a member of the University Club and the Commercial Club.

The family home is in Salt Lake City, and while not devoting a great deal of time to society, Dr. and Mrs. Root entertain frequently, gathering about them men and women who have accomplished things.

Dr. Root is a keen student, both of books and of men, and his insight into human nature is considered remarkable. He has many warm friends both in and out of his own profession, and his opinions are often sought by his associates.



J. G. McDONALD.

DOUBLE honors belong to James G. McDonald. In addition to having built up a business which is known throughout the west as one of the best in its line, Mr. McDonald is president of the Utah State Fair Association, one of the largest "boosting" undertakings of this commonwealth.

The Utah State Fair Association is growing steadily and is known every year in a constantly widening territory. The success of the fair association is due in no little measure to the initiative and resourcefulness of this executive, who has been aided in this work by excellent lieutenants as department chiefs.

In his own business enterprise, as well, Mr. McDonald has shown a remarkable gift for organization and a boldness in carrying out the plans which he has conceived. As a result the J. G. McDonald Chocolate Company is an ever growing mercantile institution and is one of the leading manufacturing enterprises of the state and the west. Hundreds of persons are employed by this firm, and the quality of the products turned out from the establishment form its best advertisement.

In addition to this Mr. McDonald is a director of the Utah State National Bank of Salt Lake City, and takes an active interest in the banking affairs of the community. He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Lilly Neal.

Mr. McDonald is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. As president of the State Fair Association he finds his work linked with that of the Commercial Club, as the two organizations are working constantly to advertise Utah to the world. He also is a member of the Bonneville Club of Salt Lake City.

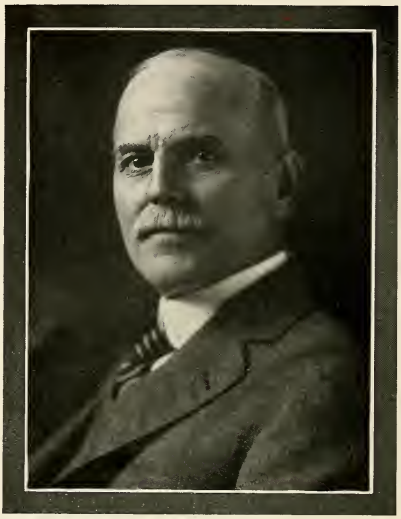
ELMER I. GOSHEN

THERE probably is no more widely known clergyman in Utah than the Rev. Elmer I. Goshen, pastor of the First Congregational church of Salt Lake City. He was born at Farmington, Illinois, in 1872. He comes of Revolutionary stock, his paternal great-grandfather having served under Marquis de Lafayette in the struggle of the colonies against British oppression. His father was Levi Goshen and his mother was formerly Miss Harriett Thornton.

The Rev. Dr. Goshen is a graduate of Northwestern University, Evanston, having received his degree in 1894. The west called and he answered in 1899, when he came to Salt Lake City to accept the pulpit which he has filled continuously since that time. His fame has spread throughout the Rocky Mountain region, as one of the most magnetic, virile and eloquent preachers in the west.

But it is not his oratory and power as a speaker alone that has won fame for Dr. Goshen. He has given a helping hand to hundreds of men and women, the victims of the drug habit and other unfortunates, and with the aid of his mental treatment has won them back to health and respectability. Fully twelve hundred cures have been recorded within the last few years.

Dr. Goshen is married. His wife was formerly Miss Jene Melvin. They have one child, Harriett, three years of age. Dr. Goshen is independent in politics, putting the party policy above the party emblem. His reform and social work have added largely to his reputation. He is a member of the University club, and of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He is also a member of the K. C. C. H. of the Masonic fraternity, and is also a member of the Delta Upsilon Greek letter fraternity.



EDWARD W. CLARK

AMONG Utah's "captains of industry," probably the most noted are those engaged in the mining business. Edward Woodman Clark is one of those who has gained reputation and wealth in this line of endeavor. He was born at Osceola, Wisconsin, of Scotch-Irish descent. His parents were Rufus W. Clark and Mrs. Katherine Clark. His forbears left Scotland in 1600 and settled in Maine. Mr. Clark's father was a prominent lumberman of Taylors Falls, Minnesota, for many years.

It was in the common schools of Taylors Falls that Mr. Clark received his education. He came west to Montana in the year 1880. He located in Butte in 1887.

Already he had begun to make a marked success of his chosen calling, being then manager of former Senator Clark's reduction works. He later became associated with the senator in a number of mining enterprises. Mr. E. W. Clark, it will be remembered, was one of the discoverers of the noted Mayflower mine, which was purchased by Mr. Clark afterward, and proved to be a truly wonderful mining proposition.

Mr. Clark has acted as mining expert for Senator Clark for a number of years, and is still associated with him.

He is vice-president and manager of the St. John & Ophir railway; treasurer and manager of the Ophir Hill Consolidated Mining company; treasurer and manager of the Clark Electric Power company, and also a director in these companies.

Mr. Clark is married. His wife was formerly Miss Maude I. Piatt. This union was blessed with one child, a daughter, Eleanor Clark, 11 years of age. In 1889 Mr. Clark came to Utah. His home is at Ophir. He is a member of the Alta club of Salt Lake City.

WILLIAM FREDERICK ADAMS

WILLIAM FREDERICK ADAMS was born at Utica, New York, June 27, 1862. His parents were Richard and Sarah A. Thomas Adams. He was educated in the public schools, the High school and the Academy of Utica. He passed his entrance examinations for the second year at Harvard, but because of ill health he was unable to continue his college work.

Mr. Adams then began the study of law, and was employed by the Oneida County Bank of Utica, New York.

In 1882 Mr. Adams went to Minneapolis, Minnesota, where he was engaged in the grain and lumber business, and was one of the earliest members of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. He took an active part in all large movements for the upbuilding of Minneapolis and her commercial interests.

Six years later Mr. Adams came to Salt Lake City, and engaged in the banking business, in which profession he has been interested since his introduction to that business in Odeida County. He has for twenty-five years been an officer in national banks of Ogden and Salt Lake City.

Mr. Adams is married. His wife, before her marriage, was Miss Corinne Damon. Adams is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Alta club and the Commercial Club of Salt Lake. He was one of the organizers and now is vice-president of the National City Bank of Salt Lake City.

F. W. PAGET.

AMONG the traveling public no one perhaps is known better throughout the United States as the subject of this sketch, Frederick W. Paget. His management of some of the principal hostelries, especially in the Western and Southern States, has proven his keen ability in his special line of business. His staunch friends are numbered among those who have had the opportunity of meeting him in business as well as social channels.

Mr. Paget was born November 25, 1870, in Warwickshire, England, his parents having been well-known residents of that section of the British Isles. After receiving a common school education he was attracted by the hotel business, which he has followed practically all his life. He has also seen much active military service, having served as a member of the First Colorado Infantry Volunteers during the Spanish-American war. He was in the Philippine Islands with his regiment from June, 1898, until September, 1899. He married Miss Kathryn E. Bancroft, and has one daughter, Dorothy Aurelia Paget.

On August 18, 1914, Mr. Paget came to Salt Lake City, accepting the management of the Newhouse Hotel. In 1901 and 1902 he held the position of chief clerk of the Sheldon Hotel at El Paso, Texas. Was manager of the Columbian Hotel at Trinidad, Colorado, from 1902 to 1908, and manager of the Albany Hotel at Denver, Colorado, from 1908 up to the time that he came to Salt Lake City. He is a prominent member of fraternal orders, among which are the Woodmen of the World and the Elks.

CHARLES NETTLETON STREVELL.

President Independent Coal & Coke Company

LEWIS EDWIN ABBOTT

A MAN who since his early life has been closely identified with business and legislative affairs in Utah. Lewis Edwin Abbott, son of Jenette Smith and Thomas Morse Abbott, was born at Farmington, Utah, April 12, 1868. Both his parents were among the earliest settlers of the state. His father came here in 1847, and his mother in the following year. Both are living.

After attaining a public school education, Mr. Abbott attended the University of Utah. He follows the business of railroading, and has always been a strong advocate of "safety first" principles. Previous to his railroading career he was for several years a school teacher. His political views are in accordance with those of the Democratic party.

Mr. Abbott was married to Miss Jane Hess. His children are Lewis E., Camille, E. Marsh, Pauline, Alice, Lawrence and Florence. He is a worker in club and fraternal organizations, is a member of the local B. P. O. E., and of the Transportation club of this city.

Among the positions held by Mr. Abbott are: City councilman and mayor of Farmington; sheriff of Davis county for three terms; special agent on the Lucin cut-off; Oregon Short Line claim adjuster for eight years, and for a long period was Oregon Short Line safety commissioner. His home is at Farmington.

SAMUEL L. UPSON

BORN of Quaker or Friends stock, Samuel L. Upson, the subject of this short biography, comes of typical American ancestry. Mr. Upson was born at Grand Island, Nebraska, on August 27, 1881. He was reared and educated there until young manhood, when he went to Chicago and entered the famous Northwestern University. He attended that institution of learning from 1902 to 1903, and then returned home.

He became a druggist, this profession appealing to him more than any other calling. In 1907 he removed to Salt Lake City, where he entered into the commercial activities of the city with a determination and spirit that soon spelled success, and marked him among his business associates as one worthy of esteem and respect.

Mr. Upson is now engaged in advertising lines, and is a prominent figure in that typically modern American line of business.

Although reared in the middle west of good old Quaker stock, he has adapted himself to western methods with wonderful facility, and with marked success. His forbears came from Connecticut. His great-grandfather and great grandmother were Quakers, as was his grandfather.

Today Mr. Upson is traveling representative engaged in advertising lines. He represents five firms: The Gerlach Barklow company of Joliet, Illinois; H. B. Hardenburg & Co. of Brooklyn, New York; the Shedd & Wright Manufacturing Co. of Minneapolis; the Javert & Ticket Co. of Chicago, and the Griffin Cutlery Co. of New York. Mr. Upson is a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

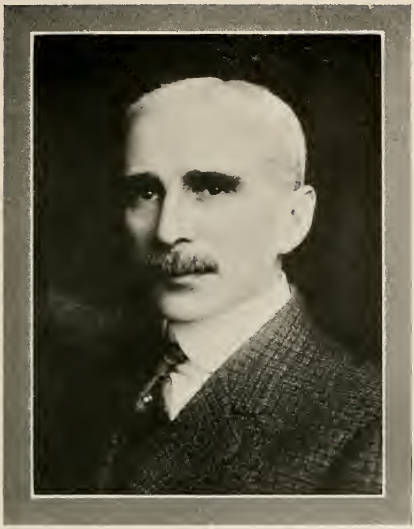
He often speaks of the credit due his guardian under whose care he was reared: Frank L. Slaten, manager of the New York department of the North British and Manchester Insurance company of London and Edinburgh. Mr. Upson is married, his wife having been formerly Miss Josephine Bair.

O. R. DIBBLEE

HIS A land operator, corporation organizer and general business promoter, Oliver Richard Dibblee has been identified with many of the largest Utah enterprises. He was born at Kankakee, Illinois, August 22, 1880, son of Harriett A. Skeels and Richard Harvey Dibblee. His great-grandfather was a well-known Episcopal clergyman of Boston, Massachusetts, and was dragged on Boston Common by Continental soldiers of King George. He had two sons, one of whom fought under Washington and the other in the British army.

After having acquired a common school education, Mr. Dibblee came to Utah, in 1904. He is married to Miss Winnifred Candland, and has two children—Virginia Ann and Winnifred. He is especially known in club circles as an ardent worker in the local order of Elks, and holds the office of Esquire in that order. He is also a member of the Press Club of Salt Lake.

Mr. Dibblee's political activities are with the Republican party, having been nominated on that ticket, for the last election, as a representative for the lower house. He is vice-president of the Commercial Realty company, and is secretary, manager and trustee of the State Reclamation company. Is also a member of several other corporations. The State Reclamation company is an organization incorporated for the reclamation of several thousand acres of Salt Lake Valley alkaline lands. Associated with Mr. Dibblee in this work are Governor William Spry, M. H. Walker and W. D. Candland. Is also a promoter of Utah rock asphalt for city streets, and is the inventor of a well-known trench machine. He is a resident of Salt Lake City.



ADOLPH SIMON

IN THE small city of Thorn, West Prussia, Adolph Simon was born in the year 1864. There he passed his boyhood days, and when ten years of age, he moved with his parents to the city of Strassburg, where he attended the local high school, or gymnasium, as it is called in Germany. At the age of fourteen, he left home to enter an apprenticeship with a merchant who was carrying on a general dry goods business in a neighboring town.

After serving his apprenticeship of four years, Mr. Simon followed his older brother to America, arriving in Salt Lake City in March, 1884. He then joined his brothers in the millinery business which they had already established in Salt Lake City, and has continued in that business ever since.

Besides being a partner in the Paris Millinery Company, which is one of the largest retail millinery and women's apparel establishments in the west, Mr. Simon is also a member of the firm of L. & A. Simon Company, conducting a large wholesale millinery business.

Mr. Simon has always been and is still a firm believer in the future of Salt Lake City, and has evidenced his faith by investing heavily in Salt Lake real estate. He is a member of several clubs, including the Commercial, Rotary and Country clubs. He is also a member of the Masonic order, the local order of Elks and various other fraternal organizations.

In 1900 Mr. Simon married Miss Stella Furchgott of Charleston, South Carolina, and by this marriage has had three sons.

P. M. RANDALL

ONE of the strong and practical type of business men, engaged in the implement and vehicle business, is Pearl Martin Randall. Born at Catawba, Ohio, February 16, 1868, he moved to the middle west with his parents when a child. His father was Thomas H. Randall and his mother Mrs. Martha J. Randall. He entered the Southwestern Business College at Wichita, Kansas, in 1887, and later in life took up work as a commercial salesman.

In August, 1909, Mr. Randall came to Salt Lake. He is now engaged as a jobber of agricultural implements and vehicles, and has made an unqualified success of this work. He is manager of the Western Moline Plow company, one of the foremost agricultural implement concerns in the country.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Carrie A. Pratt. Three children were born to them: Walter H., 20 years of age; Leslie P., 18 years of age, and Harold M., 9 years of age.

Mr. Randall is a member of five fraternal orders: Albert Pike lodge No. 303, A. F. & A. M.; Wichita consistory No. 2, A. & A. S R.; Ivy Leaf chapter No. 75, O. E. S.; Wichita council No. 39, U. C. T., and El Kalah Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He is also a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

Many other interesting facts appear in his life. He served as deputy clerk for the court of common pleas at Wichita, Kansas in 1890 to 1892. He made the race into the "strip country," now Oklahoma, won a fine claim, and was a member of the first Republican central committee of Garfield county, Oklahoma. He was also the first county clerk elected in Garfield county, Oklahoma. He made the entire campaign in a covered wagon, his wife and baby accompanying him, the three sleeping in the wagon and cooking their meals by the camp fire. He has been associated with the McCormick Harvesting Machinery Co. and the Acme Harvesting Machinery Co., and later with the Kansas Moline Plow Co. and then the Oklahoma and the Western Moline Plow companies.

S. H. CLAY

AS A booster for the general advancement of matters concerning Utah's welfare none can be spoken of more highly than is Samuel Harry Clay, secretary and general manager of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City. Mr. Clay was born August 24, 1879, at Lexington, Kentucky. His parents are M. G. and B. F. Clay, members of one of the best-known Clay families of Kentucky.

After attaining a general education at the public schools of the state in which he was born, he attended the Transylvania University at Lexington, Kentucky, later attending the University of California, at Berkeley. Mr. Clay first came to this state in 1890. Later, after a period of absence of about seventeen years, he came to Utah, where he stayed a short time. Has been here permanently since December, 1914, at which time he was elected to his present position in the Commercial club.

Mr. Clay was marrid to Miss Lucile Martha Weiser, a native of Kentucky, February 6, 1909. He lived in Salt Lake City from 1890 to 1898, where he declares that he spent the happiest days of his life. He is well known as the author of a publication called the "City Builder," the first and only reference guide for the use of commercial organizations. This work was first published in 1913, and has had a strong sale. It is now used in several universities and colleges as a text book.

LEONIDAS GEORGE SKLIRIS.

LEONIDAS GEORGE SKLIRIS was born March 25, 1878 at Sparta, Greece. His father was George Nicholas Skliris, a leading attorney of that city. He at one time served as mayor of Oinountus, Greece. Mr. Skliris' mother was Helen S. Economopoulos, her ancestors being great soldiers and leaders in Grecian art and professional lines.

His grandfather was Capt. Skliris, a famous soldier, whose courage endeared him to the Hellenic government. At that time Greece was under the Turkish yoke and all of Mr. Skliris' family saw service in the War of 1821. It was largely due to the efforts of this family that Greece gained her independence. The family was substantially recognized by the Kingdom, the government granting to Capt. Skliris an estate of 6,000 acres in the valley of the Eurotas lying between the mountains of Taydetos and Parndeos, this estate still being held by the family.

Leonidas G. Skliris came to the United States when a boy, during the Columbian exposition at Chicago in 1893. Seeing the great possibilities of the country he decided to make this land his home.

He recognized the tremendous advantages of the railroad and industrial enterprises in the western states. So, combining marked ability as an organizer with great influence with heads of big American corporations, he induced his fellow countrymen by the thousands to engage in structural work and farming.

In the twenty-two years Mr. Skliris has been in Utah he has guided many Greek immigrants to this country to settle in the west and has furnished much of the labor that has built and developed mines, railroads, farms and other industries. He is a Republican. Firmly believing in Americanizing his race, he has induced thousands of his countrymen to become naturalized citizens.

CHARLES HENRY GRIFFIN.

CHARLES HENRY GRIFFIN, commissioner of the Intermountain Demurrage Bureau, was born in Peoria, Ill., November 17, 1855. He came to Salt Lake City in 1887 and soon became a leader in the business world.

Mr. Griffin is married, his wife having been Mary Eudora Tilford. They have one daughter, Mrs. Elbridge L. Thomas, her husband being a son of former Governor A. L. Thomas of Utah.

Mr. Griffin is a district superintendent of the Western Mining & Inspection Bureau, and is also chairman of the Colorado-Utah and the local Utah freight bureaus.

Mr. Griffin is thus in a peculiar line of business, being identified with the railroads of the intermountain region and also with the large shippers of this region.

He gives considerable time to the interests of several clubs, including the Salt Lake Commercial Club of which he is an active member.

Mr. Griffin is an earnest and loyal Republican.

During the days of the Liberal party he took an active part in the success of that party having gotten out the registration which was used in the campaign which brought the Liberal party into control of Salt Lake City in 1890.

Since 1880 he has been associated with western railroads, going to Denver from the Pan Handle at Indianapolis in that year to take service with the Colorado Railway Pool.

Mr. Griffin was one of the organizers of Salt Lake's first professional baseball team—buying the franchise of the Portland team of the Pacific Coast League and transfering the same to this city.

Mr. Griffin also laid out and drew the plans of Pioneer Park and was a member of the park commission that was authorized by the legislature, until the new form of city government was adopted.

CLIFF DOUGLAS BLANKENSHIP

AS MANAGER of the Bees, known officially as the Salt Lake baseball club of the Pacific Coast League, in 1915 Cliff D. Blankenship extended his reputation as an expert baseball manager to wider fields than he had before been known. Cliff D. Blankenship was not a stranger to the great national game when he was chosen as manager of the team upon which Salt Lake fans set their hopes. His life has been an interesting one in which baseball plays no small part.

Cliff D. Blankenship was born at Columbus, Georgia, April 10, 1880. His father was William Blankenship, and his mother Josephine Hollenbeck Blankenship. He was a Virginian, she a Georgian. His father was engaged in the real estate business in Columbus.

It was at Auburn College, Alabama, that Blankenship broke into other baseball than the corner lot variety. He made good on the college team, and the call of the diamond was so strong and so alluring that he never resisted it, but followed the game consistently.

"Blank" came to Utah in 1911, three years after he left college, and has made his home in the Beehive state since. He was married in 1906 to Miss Hazel Ludwig. They have one son, named for the father. Cliff D. Blankenship is a member of Columbus (Georgia) lodge No. 111, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

BERKLEY OLSON

IN A growing country like the western states of the Union, there is a peculiar importance laid upon the promoting and banking business. One of the best known men in this line to be found in the intermountain country is Berkley Olson. Mr. Olson was born at Mount Pleasant, Utah, July 31, 1883. His father was William Olson and his mother Mrs. Sarah Jane Olson. His father was born in Stockholm, Sweden, and his mother in Pleasant Grove, Utah. Both were among the early settlers of this state.

Mr. Olson was educated in the public schools of his native town and then entered the L. D. S. Business College of Salt Lake City, being graduated from that institution in 1890. He soon took up the profession of banking and promoting, and is also interested in mining matters. He is president of the Selma Mines company and has been prominent in real estate activities in Salt Lake City and throughout Utah generally. He has done an extensive banking business, having been instrumental in organizing banks at Bingham, Garfield, Randolph, Midvale and Pleasant Grove.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Jessie P. Tucker. They have three children: William B., 7 years of age; Rodney T., 4 years of age, and J. Ross, 2 years of age.

Mr. Olson is an ardent Democrat. He is an enthusiastic Utah man and a "booster" for Salt Lake City.

CHARLES SNEAD McDONALD.

AN architect of fame in Utah and a man who is well known among his associates as one in whom trust may be placed at any and all times is Charles Snead McDonald. He is respected in Utah and Salt Lake as one that may at all times be relied upon. His business associates respect him and the same regard is paid to him by his social acquaintances.

Mr. McDonald, son of Fanny B. McDonald and Allan Lane McDonald, was born in Louisville, Kentucy, February 19, 1879.

His ancestors were well known. He is the grandson of Charles Scott McDonald of Louisville and of Angus William McDonald of Virginia. His occupation has been that of an architect since his early training.

At the present time he is a member of the firm of McDonald and Cooper, located in the Boston building, Salt Lake. Mr. McDonald's early education was acquired in the city schools of Louisville, Ky., his home town. Eventually he became a member of the class of 1899 of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. After his course at the college Mr. McDonald decided to come to Utah. He first arrived in that city in 1906. After his arrival here he at once became well acquainted, both in a social and a financial way. The firm with which he is now associated were the architects for the Keith-O'Brien building. They were also associated with Eames and Young in connection with the construction with the Walker Bank building. Mr. McDonald is also interested in modern fire-proof construction. As to clubs, he is a member of the Salt Lake Tennis Club, the Salt Lake Commercial Club and is the vice-president of the Intermountain Technology Association.

OVANDO C. BEEBE

DESCENDED from the family of John Rogers, who was burned at the stake at Smithfield, England, for his religious beliefs, Ovando C. Beebe comes from morally courageous stock. He was born at Pork City, Polk county, Iowa, and was a son of George Beebe and Hester Ann Robers Beebe.

Mr. Beebe attended Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, from 1881 to 1886, he having come to Utah in 1875.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Clara M. Woodruff. Their children are Vedi V. Byer, Woodruff C. Beebe, Emma Beebe, Hester Beebe, Margaret Beebe and Ruth Beebe.

Mr. Beebe is not a member of any fraternal order, his whole time being devoted to his family and to his business interests. He is, however, a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake. He was national bank examiner for the district of Utah from 1902 to 1906.

He is cashier and a director of Zion's Savings Bank and Trust company; a director of the Utah State National Bank, and vice president of the Utah Savings and Trust company. He also is vice president of the Clayton Investment company, and of the Daynes-Beebe Music company and identified with many other Utah corporations.

HENRY GORDON WILLIAMS

MINING engineer of wide experience and general manager of the Utah Fuel company, with vast interest in Utah, Colorado and other states, Henry Gordon Williams is second to none as an expert and an authority in connection with every branch of the fuel business. The firm of which he is such an able representative is one that is known universally as one of the largest and most influential coal concerns in the United States, controlling millions of dollars' worth of coal properties in Utah as well as vast interests in other states.

Mr. Williams, son of Amanda L. McMillan and Henry Norton Williams, was born in Merton, Wisconsin, March 19, 1856, and has been a resident of Utah for several years. Since his arrival here he has gained hundreds of friends both in business and social circles, and is highly esteemed and well thought of by all with whom he has been associated.

Mr. Williams still follows the occupation of mining engineer, although he is considered as an authority on local financial matters, and has been exceedingly successful in a financial way. His early education was gained in the city of his birth. Later he attended the University of Chicago, but owing to serious sickness shortly after his arrival at that institution was compelled to leave while in his junior year.

Mr. Williams has been married for several years. His wife was formerly Miss Mary B. Fidler. No children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Williams. Fraternal orders and politics have never appealed to Mr. Williams, although he is a well-known member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

MORONI HEINER

WELL KNOWN in several branches of Utah's business, Moroni Heiner came to Salt Lake City in 1909. He was born at Morgan City, Utah, February 17, 1877, the son of Martha Stevens Heiner and Daniel Heiner. Mr. Heiner's father's parents came direct from Germany to the United States in the early part of the nineteenth century. His mother's father was one of the state's pioneers, having come to Utah with Brigham Young.

From 1895 to 1899 he attended the Brigham College at Logan, from which institution he graduated. He was later married to Miss Eva Purnell. They have nine children—Glen, Iona, Florence, Keith, Verna, Frank, Louise and Daniel.

As a sportsman and all around club man, Mr. Heiner is identified closely with the Commercial Club, the Bonneville Club, the Rudy Gun Club, the Chesapeake Duck Club and the Sunnybrook Fish Club. Formerly he was a believer in the Republican doctrines, but later identified himself with the Progressive party, having been appointed as a national committeeman. Mr. Heiner is well known as a student, is connected with Utah's Coal, Banking, Farming, Merchandising and Mining business. Although not a member of any fraternal organization he carries insurance with one of the largest eastern companies.

Mr. Heiner is a director and vice-president of the Castle Valley Coal company; a director and vice-president of the Castle Valley Railroad company; director and vice-president of the Utah Coal Sales agency; director and vice-president of the Mohrland Mercantile company; director and president of the Western Fuel company; director of the First National Bank of Morgan, and a director of the Granite Furniture company. He was appointed State Dairy and Food Commissioner twice by Heber M. Wells.

SAMUEL MOORE TAYLOR.

A rather interesting detail attaches to the record of the Taylor undertaking establishment, as represented in the east side concern, which was founded by Joseph Edward Taylor, one of the Mormon pioneers and the first undertaker in Utah. This detail found in the fact that more than 30,000 bodies of the dead of Salt Lake and elsewhere have been prepared for burial in the mortuary of S. M. Taylor & Co.

This important establishment is now headed by Samuel Moore Taylor, son of Joseph Edward Taylor, known officially as president and manager of the company. Mr. Taylor followed rather a custom of the old families of Utah when he, as the son, stepped into his father's shoes in the undertaking business.

Mr. Taylor's mother was Lisadore Williams Taylor and the date of his birth was March 11, 1880, in Salt Lake. His education was gained in the schools of the city and in the Latter-day Saints University.

Mr. Taylor was married to Miss Lucile Badger and is the father of three children—Harold Badger Taylor, age 10; Marion Badger Taylor, age 4, and Virginia Badger Taylor, age 2.

Mr. Taylor has gained a position of prominence in the commercial affairs of Salt Lake and is a member of the Commercial Club of this city.

BYRON CUMMINGS.

AMONG the noted of living educators in Utah is Byron Cummings, Dean of the University of Utah. An Easterner by birth and training, he has brought to the West the best of the training and traditions of the East, and has shown an admirable willingness to adopt the Western viewpoint. As a result, Prof. Cummings is a leader among educators in the West.

Born at Westville, N. Y., September 20, 1861, Byron Cummings came of excellent stock. His father was Moses Cummings and his mother Mrs. Roxana Hoadley Cummings. They were of noteworthy ancestry, their forebears being New England and Scotch-Irish stock from American Revolutionary days.

Mr. Cummings received a common school education at Westville, and then entered Rutgers College, attending from 1885 to 1889, when he was graduated. Immediately after his graduation he took up the work of teaching.

He came to the West, locating in Utah in September, 1893.

Professor Cummings is a member of the University Club and the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City, and belongs also to the following other societies, all noted for the brilliant personelle of the scholars who form their membership: The American Association for the Advancement of Science; the American Anthropological Association; the Archaeological Institute of America, and the Anthropologie, Berlin, Germany.

JAMES WILLIAM M'KINNEY

JAMES WILLIAM M'KINNEY was born January 10, 1872, at Hannibal, Mo. His parents were Albert and Bonna de Ella (Snapp) McKinney. He is a grandson of James McKinney and the Rev. William Delaney Snapp, and a grandson of John A. McKinney, Texas patriot. His forbears were prominent in the history of the Republic of Texas.

J. W. McKinney was educated in the public schools of Henrietta, Texas, 1879; San Marciel and Rincon, New Mexico, 1880-1; Duncan, Arizona, 1882-4; Green Brier School, Texas, 1879; public school, McKinney, Texas, 1885-6; St. Michaels College, Santa Fe, New Mexico, 1887-8; Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, 1892-4. He studied law in the offices of Senator W. E. Borah, Boise, Idaho, for several years, beginning 1897. He developed his knowledge of shorthand and law by solitary night study.

He moved to Salt Lake in 1889, engaging in shorthand and reporting for years. He moved to Boise, Idaho, in 1894. In 1887 he established the Boise Business and Shorthand College. He was police judge, Boise, July 20, 1897, to July 21, 1899. He was secretary of the Democratic county convention, Ada county, Idaho, September, 1896, and again in August, 1898. He was a delegate to many state and county conventions in Idaho and Utah in the years that followed. He was nominated probate judge, Ada county, Idaho, September 22, 1898. Later he was private secretary to Frank Steunenberg, governor of Idaho.

He married Rose Kohlhepp at Boise, January 19, 1901, returning to Utah that year. They have two children, George Ward McKinney, 12, and James Orlando McKinney, 3 years of age. He was admitted to the bar in Utah, October 9, 1905, and to the United States district court of Utah December 16, 1905. He became associated with the law firm of Powers & Marioneaux, 1905, and in 1913 with Powers, Marioneaux, Stott & McKinney. He is now practicing law alone.

LEROY G. DINWOODEY

RISING with a city in its commercial growth and greatness, and seeing his business develop along with that of his birthplace, is the pleasurable experience of the subject of this brief biography. Leroy G. Dinwoodey was born in Salt Lake City on December 23, 1880, and is proud to call himself a native son, not only of Utah, but of its great capital city. His father was Henry Dinwoodey and his mother Mrs. Anne Hill Dinwoodey.

After receiving the education afforded in the common schools of this city, Mr. Dinwoodey was sent to the Pacific coast by his parents, where he entered Leland Stanford university in 1902. He left that institution in 1905, and was married to Miss Lucile Jennings. Their home is blessed with three children: Margaret, 9 years of age; Henry, 7 years of age, and Paul Devereux, 5 years of age.

While in college Mr. Dinwoodey joined a Greek letter fraternity, the Phi Kappa Psi. He is a member also of the University club, the Alta club, the Country club, the Duckville Gun club and the Salt Lake Tennis club.

Politically Mr. Dinwoodey is nonpartisan. He is a member of the firm of H. Dinwoodey Furniture company, being vice-president, treasurer and assistant manager of that large concern, which is one of the leading commercial houses in Utah's capital.

ERNEST L. GODBE

WHEN the industrial eminence of a state is largely upheld by the mining industry, as in Utah, it is not surprising that many sons of that state drift into or are projected into the technical side of the industry and make of mining and metallurgical engineering a life work. In some instances they are almost born to the work, as in the case of Ernest L. Godbe, prominent mining man and metallurgist of Salt Lake City.

W. S. Godbe, father of Ernest L. Godbe, entered Salt Lake valley in the summer of 1847 with the first band of Mormon pioneers. Before many years had passed over the slab roofs and adobt walls of the village, the first Utah Godbe had hied him to the hills and found that mining was to figure largely in the development of the state. W. S. Godbe married Mary Hampton.

Ernest L. Godbe was born in Salt Lake City September 13, 1867, and was educated in the grade and high schools and colleges of the state. Virtually all his life he has been in touch with mining affairs of Utah, and many years ago took up practice as a mining and metallurgical engineer. Among the corporations in which Mr. Godbe is interested are the Prince Consolidated Mining & Smelting company and the Ohio-Kentucky Consolidated Mining company, both large producers in the Utah district.

Mr. and Mrs. Godbe, who was Miss Sallie Wertheimer, are the parents of nine children, two of whom are married. Mr. Godbe is a Republican in politics and a member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake.

DR. FREDERICK E. STRAUP, M. D.

PROBABLY no one man in this state is more widely known or more generally liked than Dr. Frederick E. Straup, M. D., mayor of Bingham Canyon, Utah, and physician and surgeon for the Utah Copper company. Dr. Straup is the son of Sarah and Daniel B. Straup. He was born in South Bend, Indiana, October 31, 1871. His early education was received in the schools of South Bend. In 1891 he entered Hahnemann Medical college of Chicago and was gradnated a physician and surgeon in 1895.

The doctor moved to Utah in 1896 and settled in Bingham Canyon, where he rapidly gained fame as a physician and surgeon and popularity as a public spirited man. His popularity is not limited to Bingham Canyon, but rather extends throughout the state of Utah. He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club, the Bingham Canyon Commercial club and the University club of Salt Lake City.

A life-time Republican, Dr. Straup, soon after his arrival in this state, became actively engaged in the state's politics. He has twice been elected mayor of Bingham Canyon. He is an indefatigable worker in the interest of his party, and in all things that work for the betterment of Bingham Canyon and the state of Utah at large. This, in connection with his attractive personality, has made for him many friends throughout the state.

In addition to his duties as a general practitioner, the doctor conducts, at Bingham, a hospital for the benefit of the employees of the Utah Copper company and the residents of Bingham.

Dr. Straup is married. He married Mrs. Florence Rickert of Salt Lake City. He is the father of one child, a son, Wesley Newton Straup, 6 years of age.

The doctor is also well known in the fraternal circles of Utah. He is a member of the Salt Lake City lodge B. P. O. E., the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

JESSE H. WHEELER

JESSE H. WHEELER, Progressive member of the board of county commissioners of Salt Lake county for the years 1914 and 1915, is a native of Salt Lake county. He was born at Murray, Utah, September 14, 1868, a son of Thomas and Anna Walker Wheeler, who came to Utah in the early '50s. Wheeler's early life was spent on the family farm near Murray, and he attended the district public schools in his boyhood. He amplified his education by extensive reading, and from personal choice studied political economy.

He was married in 1896 to Miss Rena Doty, and there are the following children resulting from this union: Kelch, Ardella, Ruth, Claudius, Annabella, Zettalla and Luella.

Commissioner Wheeler has been identified for many years with the Republican party, but when a change of sentiment swept over a part of that party, he affiliated with the Progressive party, and has been closely identified with the work of that organization in Salt Lake county since the organization of that party. His earnest advocacy of the party's principles led to his election to the commissionership in 1914, for the two-year term. He is a member of no fraternal order, but enjoys the friendship of an unusually large number of persons with whom business and politics have caused him to come in contact.

ROBERT JAMES GLENDINNING

MERCHANT and manufacturers' agent and a member of several western organizations, a man identified with clubs and fraternities throughout the western states, a man who has won for himself the highest respect among his fellow men, Robert James Glendinning has been a resident of Salt Lake for the last quarter of a century, and during that period has made a decided success of every business venture with which he has identified himself. His friends are numbered by the hundreds throughout the western states and through his upright dealings has become identified with many big financial enterprises.

Robert James Glendinning, son of Barbara Halliday and John Glendinning, was born September 19, 1866, in Jersey City, New Jersey. He is the son of Captain John Glendinning of the Seventy-ninth Highlanders, New York volunteers, and the nephew of the late James Glendinning, mayor of Salt Lake in 1896. He has for many years followed the business of manufacturers' agent, although he is as well a merchant in connection with many local enterprises. He is also president of the firm of R. J. Glendinning & Co. His politics have always been Republican, and he is a staunch worker in the party. His early school days were spent in the place of his birth, he later attending the Hasbrough institute in Jersey City. From that institution he was graduated in 1885. Mr. Glendinning came to Salt Lake in 1887, and has remained here since. His wife's maiden name was Bertha L. Reed, whose family is well known in social circles. For several years he has been a member of the Loyal Legion of the United States, Ohio Commandery. His membership in the Alta club, the Country club and the Salt Lake Commercial club has made for him many friends, as it is conceded by those that have made his acquaintance that he is one of the foremost when it comes to being a good booster for anything that will in any manner assist or tend to uplift the community in general.

DR. CHRISTIAN NEPHI JENSEN

DR. CHRISTIAN NEPHI JENSEN, president of Brigham Young college at Logan and one of the most prominent educators of the state, was born in Ephraim, Utah, June 18, 1880. He is the son of Jens Peter Jensen and Dorothea Gregerson Jensen. Dr. Jensen's early education was obtained in the public schools of Ephraim. Later he attended the University of Utah, the Utah Agricultural college and Cornell university. He received the degree, M. S. A., from Cornell in 1909 and that of Ph. D. from the same institution in 1912.

Dr. Jensen's scholastic ability has been recognized by a number of prominent educational societies. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, member of the American Phytopathological society, active member of the National Educational association and member of the Utah Academy of Sciences. He also is a member of Sigma Xi, Gamma Sigma Delta and other college and honorary fraternities. He is a member of and actively interested in the Commercial club of Logan. He is a Republican in politics.

Dr. Jensen married Miss Marian Lee Choate and their union is blessed with two children: Frank C., 4 years old, and Lee G., 3 years old.

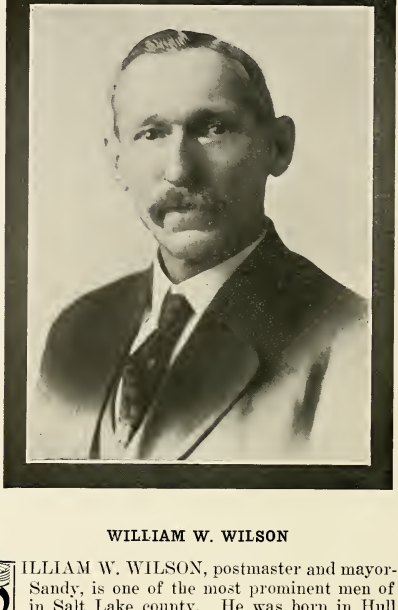
EMMETT MELLYNN BAGLEY

ONE of the strongest defenses of a railroad corporation against injustice and unfair claims, is the claims attorney. A man holding this position for a big corporation must be not only a clever lawyer, but a keen student of human nature, able to pierce through the masks of sham and hypocricy at a glance. Emmett Mellynn Bagley, claims attorney for the Oregon Short Line, the Southern Pacific lines west of Sparks, and for the Utah Light & Railway company since 1907, possesses the qualifications required by these positions, in a marked degree.

Mr. Bagley is a son of Dominic Bagley and Mary E. Bagley, and was born at Seattle, Wash., November 20, 1877. He is married, his wife formerly having been Miss Agnes Swan. The family home is in the Boulevard apartments, Salt Lake City.

Mr. Bagley entered the law department of the Southern Pacific company at San Francisco, February 15, 1893. Three years later he became assistant claims attorney for the Southern Pacific railway and for the Market Street Railway company, San Francisco, remaining in that capacity until January 1, 1905, when he came to Salt Lake City to take up his larger duties with the corporations that have been named.

Mr. Bagley has the distinction of launching the now nation-wide "Safety First" movement on the Oregon Short Line railroad. This was the first movement of its kind launched in Utah, and it was followed quickly by many other great corporations who saw in it a splendid safeguard against accident and consequent loss of lives and property.



WILLIAM W. WILSON

WILLIAM W. WILSON, postmaster and mayor-elect of Sandy, is one of the most prominent men of affairs in Salt Lake county. He was born in Hull, Yorkshire, England, September 18, 1858, and came to Utah in October, 1871. Mr. Wilson is a Republican in national politics and was honored by the voters November 2, 1915, by election to the mayoralty of Sandy. He is interested in many enterprises throughout the county, and always has been an active worker for anything that would prove of benefit to the county.

Mr. Wilson is president of the Sandy City bank, director in the Farmers' Implement company, director in the Salt Lake County Water company, member of the Sandy School board and of the Sandy Commercial club. He was one of the hardest workers for the eight-hour law.

Mr. Wilson enjoys the distinction of having been chairman of the Corporation commission that incorporated the city of Sandy. He was justice of the peace for seven years and was a member of the first State legislature. He served one term as county commissioner and took a prominent part in the consolidation of the school district, the first consolidated district in the state. There was much opposition at that time, but the plan is now much in favor. He helped promote the first water system, both at Sandy and at Midvale.

Mr. Wilson married Miss Annie E. Ostlund, and from this marriage there is the following issue: W. W. Wilson, Jr., 25 years old; Wilford M. Wilson, 22; Mrs. Marinda Lundberg, 30, and Pearl Wilson, 22.

N. P. STATHAKOS

EMAN well known in Salt Lake City, and highly respected by his numerous business associates, is N. P. Stathakos, a native of Athens, Greece. He first came to America in 1894, locating in Salt Lake City about nine years ago. He came here directly from Chicago.

Mr. Stathakos is a man of learning and of vast experiences. As to knowledge of his own people, he knows their traits and is loved by them. He is president and treasurer of the N. P. Stathakos company, incorpoarted for $75,000. His immediate business associates are such prominent men as his son, Peter Stathakos, F. E. McGurrin, John S. Bransford and E. A. Culbertson. The principal stock in the company is the property of Mr. Stathakos. The principal object of the company is to hold, lease, convey and purchase real and personal property and exchange banking business. This business is conducted by the firm in every part of the world. It also imports goods, wares and merchandise from all points of the globe. Mr. Stathakos is also the agent for transportation lines between this country and other lands. He is perfectly posted as to rates, sailing dates and all manner of accommodations in foreign countries.

Through his position as agent for the American Express company Mr. Stathakos has acquired an exceptionally wide acquaintance with merchants far and wide. In addition to the facts mentioned he is the local representative for the Banque-National de Greece, Banque D'Athens and the Ionia Bank, Ltd., of England. His real estate holdings in this state are extensive and valuable.

Mr. Stathakos is vice-president of the Utah Peace society, of which Governor William Spry is president. His activities in that organization are very extensive, it being his personal desire to extend the teachings of The Hague tribunal. One of the many special features of Mr. Stathakos is the fact that he always believes in investing his money in Utah, where he makes his home.

ROLLA EUGENE CLAPP

WHEN Dr. Herman Beerchoff, noted paleontologist, made the remark to his class of young men that the Colorado river basin offered the world's greatest field for geological research, he little dreamed that this remark might eventually change the transportation map of the United States.

One of his students was Rolla Eugene Clapp, a native of Bentonville, Arkansas. After his work in the Golden School of Mines in 1898, and after post-graduate work in Columbia university, Mr. Clapp went to that wonderland and made three trips afoot from Grand Junction, Colorado, to San Diego, California, through the Colorado river basin. He found this the richest empire in the world. He sought to exploit it, and has completed surveys for the shortest transcontinental railroad in the United States, the Southwestern Pacific. This railway will eventually open this prodigious empire to commerce and development. When constructed it will open the coal and iron fields of southern Utah and will transform the wilderness to thriving manufacturing centers.

Mr. Clapp was born October 19, 1879. His father was Campbell W. Clapp, a native of Springfield, Missouri; his mother was Nellie J. Fowler (Clapp), born in Topeka, Kansas. One of his forefathers landed at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1686; another of his paternal forbears was Chief Knave of the Cherokee tribe of Indians. Mr. Clapp is one-sixteenth Cherokee Indian. One of his mother's family was Dr. Woods, the noted Scotch historian. The Fowler branch came from England, landing in Massachusetts in 1750.

Mr. Clapp is a consulting engineer and is a Democrat in politics. Since 1906 he has spent virtually all his time on his railroad project for the Colorado river basin. He is a member of Reno lodge 597, B. P. O. E., and F. & A. M. 13, Nevada; also the Commercial club of Salt Lake. He is a Son of the American Revolution, and his wife, who was Marbeth Baye Hosmer of Cleveland, Ohio, is a Daughter of the American Revolution. Mr. Clapp's home is at the Semloh hotel, Salt Lake City.

LOUIS HENDERSON FARNSWORTH

A NATIVE of Utah is Louis Henderson Farnsworth, who was born on September 1, 1859, at Provo, Utah. Of sterling character and marked business ability, he is a leading figure in the commercial and banking life of his state. He has proven what "a Utah boy" can do.

His parents were Moses F. Farnsworth and Mrs. Elizabeth Jane (Duzette) Farnsworth. He comes of English descent and is of old New England stock. He is a direct descendant of Matthias Farnsworth, who lived in Lynn, Massachusetts, in 1657.

When only six years of age, Mr. Farnsworth moved from Provo to Salt Lake with his parents. He made the most of his opportunities and as he grew into young manhood developed rapidly those keen commercial instincts which in later years made him such a marked success.

He married Miss Agnes W. Forsythe, and the union was graced by four children: Louis D. Farnsworth, 28 years of age; Edna Irene Farnsworth, 26 years of age; Earle F. Farnsworth, 23 years of age, and Ruth Farnsworth, 14 years of age. The Farnsworth home is one of the delightful social centers of the city, it being a typical American home in elegant simplicity and comfort.

Politically Mr. Farnsworth is a Republican and has worked loyaly for the success of that party.

From humble beginnings he has built up a business in banking which is a credit to himself and all those associated with him in the business world. He is connected with many leading mercantile institutions of the city, among these offices being those of director of Walker Brothers Bankers; treasurer and director of Keith-O'Brien company; treasurer and director of M. H. Walker Realty company; secretary and director of Studebaker Bros. company of Utah; assistant treasurer of the Newhouse Hotel company, and trustee and treasurer of the University club of Salt Lake.

FRANK GODBE

SON of the late pioneer, William S. and Rosina Godbe, Frank Godbe was born in Salt Lake City, February 13, 1858. He received his early education in the primitive schools of that period, and afterwards was among the first young students of the Deseret university when it was located on the corner now occupied by the Deseret News.

In 1873 he was taken to England by his father with the object of completing his education there, and after a preparatory course under a private tutor was admitted to Owens college, Manchester, remaining there until the end of 1874.

He was recalled from England to his Utah home, and started in the forwarding business at the terminus of the Utah Western railway. He afterwards acquired a knowledge of assaying, telegraphy and bookkeeping, especially useful in the mining and smelting operations of his father.

After two years as chief accountant and assistant ore buyer for the Germania Lead Works, he held positions of the utmost trust and responsibility in all the mining and smelting companies organized and conducted by his father in Rush Lake and Frisco, Utah, and Bullionville and Pioche, Nevada, the combined operations of which produced bullion to the amount of approximately $10,000,000.

In 1907 he was appointed deputy city treasurer for Salt Lake City, serving in that capacity until the commission form of government was instituted in 1912, when he received the appointment of city treasurer, and was reappointed two years thereafter. His success in the financial department of the city has been noteworthy, his intimate knowledge of modern accounting and long business experience enabling him to greatly improve and simplify the conduct of this office.

In 1883 he was married in Pioche, Nevada, to Miss Mary Louise Pierson. Their children are Tessie (Mrs. J. M. Taylor), Edith, Lawrence, Lucile (Mrs. Wayne E. Smith) and Norman.

Mr. Godbe is a member of the B. P. O. Elks No. 85, and of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City.

DR. E. C. FAIRWEATHER

AMONG the members of the dental profession of Utah, one of the best known is Dr. Earl Chapman Fairweather. Dr. Fairweather was born at Sheboygan Falls, Wisconsin. His father was John C. Fairweather and his mother Elizabeth Evans-Fairweather, both high respected citizens of that community. When he was 6 years of age his parents moved to Minneapolis, Minnesota, where he received both a grammar and high school education. Dr. Fairweather went east to Philadelphia to receive his higher education. He matriculated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1899 and pursued his studies there until 1902, when he was graduated from the dental school of the state institution. His collegiate record was a good one, his work being most creditable.

It was on September 25, 1902, the fall of the year in which he was graduated, that he came to Utah, settling in Salt Lake City. Here he took up the practice of dentistry and has built up an enviable business. He is an ardent student of the science of dentistry and is well known among the members of that calling in the western country, being secretary of the State Dental association.

Dr. Fairweather is a widower, his wife having been formerly Miss Emma Hall Fisher. He has one child, a daughter, Mary Elizabeth Fairweather, nine years of age.

Dr. Fairweather is a member of the Mt. Moriah lodge No. 2, A. F. & A. M., and is an enthusiastic Mason.

MAURICE STIEFEL

MAURICE STIEFEL is a native of Oregon, but has spent the greater part of his life in Salt Lake City, where he has as wide a circle of business and social acquaintances as any other man in the city. Mr. Stiefel is a son of Helen and Alexander Stiefel, and was born at Corvallis, Oregon, October 7, 1867. He came to Salt Lake City in 1883, and attended the old Collegiate institute, which has since passed from existence. During the period of its greatest influence, this school was one of the most important institutions of learning in the western states, and while attending there Mr. Stiefel met many men who would afterward have a broad influence upon his life.

Having lived in Salt Lake City since he was 4 years of age, Mr. Stiefel has watched its development from a frontier town to a mountain metropolis, and he has developed with the city. His wife was formerly Isabel Davidson, and there are eight sons and daughters. They are: Frank, 24 years of age; Valjean, 22; Harold, 20; Helen, 18; Maurice, 16; Henrietta, 13; Virginia, 11, and Isabella, 6 years of age.

Mr. Stiefel is a member of no secret or fraternal organization, nor is he a member of any club or corporation.

He has been engaged in the tailoring business for many years, specializing in shirts and uniform suits for organizations, as well as in made-to-measure tailored garments.

A. C. MATHESON

TYPICALLY representative of the great west is "the little red schoolhouse." Educational leaders, particularly those connected with the public school system of this country, are highly honored in this land. A. C. Matheson, former state superintendent of public instruction in Utah, is one of the foremost educators of the intermountain country.

Mr. Matheson was born in Dundee, Scotland, May 17, 1870. His parents immigrated to America in 1878, coming directly to Utah. His father's name was David Matheson, and his mother's Mrs. Mary Craig Matheson. It is no wonder that Mr. Matheson, born and reared in Scotland, the land which worships learning, should follow teaching as a life work.

He was educated in the grade schools of the early days, and then entered the L. D. S. U., and later Brigham Young college and then the University of Utah. From 1890 to 1895 he studied at these various institutions, making a creditable record for himself in scholarship.

His standing today in educational circles of the west is unquestioned, he having been engaged in school work for nearly a score of years. Prior to that time he was engaged in carpenter work and farming.

Politically Mr. Matheson is a Republican of the "old guard" type, advocated by former President William H. Taft.

He is married, his wife having been Miss Josephine Howard. Three children have blessed this union: Kenneth, 9 years of age; Romola, 7 years of age, and Virginia, an infant.

Utah's school system today owes much of its present efficiency to the capable work of Mr. Matheson, who while state superintendent of public instruction, did much to promote Utah's educational growth.

ANTHONY H. GODBE

INTERESTED in mines and metallurgy, and a mining man by profession, Anthony H. Godbe is without a peer in his line in thes wesetern states. His connection with several of the largest mining enterprises in Utah has placed him in positions of trust which could not be gained through any other channels than through those of honest, hard and conscentious application of his knowledge to his work. His friends and business acquaintances are numbered among the most influential men of the western states.

Mr. Godbe, son of Mary Hampton Godbe and William S. Godbe, was born November 22, 1862, in Salt Lake. His father was prominent in Utah as one of the early pioneers, and the first to develop the mining resources of the state. His mother was a descendant of a prominent Quaker family of Philadelphia. Mr. Godbe is not only interested in mining and metallurgy, but is also interested in mine investments and promotions.

He is a Progressive Republican. His childhood was spent in the schools of Salt Lake City. He later took a complete course at the Salt Lake Collegiate institute and the Deseret university. He entered that institution in 1876, remaining until 1881. Since 1886 he has followed the profession of metallurgist and mining engineer. He married Miss Ruby Clawson, daughter of the late Hiram B. Clawson, and three children were born, Virginia Godbe, 14 years of age; Margaret Godbe, 12 years of age; Hampton Godbe, 7 years of age, and Anthony L. Godbe, born in 1913. Mr. Godbe is a stockholder in the Prince Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, the Amalgamated Pioche Mining & Smelting company, the Land Irrigation company, and is the owner of the Godbe apartments at 164 East South Temple street. He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club. Mr. Godbe started his career as a chemist and assayer, and was later appointed as superintendent of mines and mills. He resides with his family at South Temple and N setreets.

JOHN T. HAND

AMONG the foremost musicians of Utah is John Taylor Hand of 48 East South Temple street. Mr. Hand was born at Benjamin, Utah county, October 30, 1885. His parents settled when mere children in Utah during the '60s. His father came to Utah when he was only 16 years of age. His mother's parents left Scotland and settled in Johannesburg, South Africa. His mother was born there. Her parents brought her to Utah when she was an infant. They settled in Payson.

Mr. Hand received a common school education and then attended the University of Utah. Later he went abroad, studying in Berlin under George Fergesson, in vocal, and Alberto Jonas, in piano.

Mr. Hand is a vocal specialist, and is an acknowledged leader in Utah's musical set. He is a member of the Utah Music club, and has achieved remarkable triumphs in his profession. In Berlin, in 1909 and 1910, he was dramatic tenor. In 1911 he was first tenor soloist with the Salt Lake Tabernacle choir when it made its famous tour of the eastern states.

He is principal of the music department in the academies of the Mormon Church schools of Utah. His private vocal pupils are among the foremost professional singers before the Utah public today.

Mr. Hand is married, his wife being formerly Miss Lora Ileen Pratt. They have five children. The home is at 49 East South Temple street. The children are Louis Taylor Hand, Ileen Leola Hand, Reva Hand, Ronald George Hand and Marian Hand.

Mr. Hand is a Progressive, with a marked admiration for President Woodrow Wilson.

NICHOLAS GROESBECK MORGAN

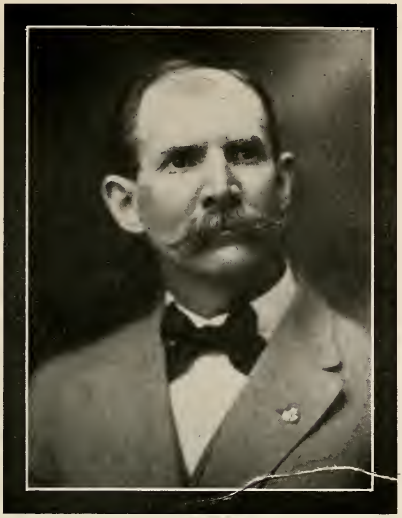
COUNTING among the members of his family, pioneers who came to Utah many years before the first locomotive excited the awe of the Indians and the terror of the wild creatures of the mountain and plain, and born within the state his grandparents helped wrest from the grasp of the desert, Nicholas G. Morgan of Salt Lake City is quite naturally a member of the Native Sons of Utah.

Mr. Morgan was born at Salt Lake, November 9, 1884. His grandfather, Nicholas Groesbeck, for whom he was named, was a pioneer business man. His father was the late President John Morgan of the Southern States mission, who for many years was an active worker in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Nicholas G. Morgan attended the University of Utah from 1901 to 1907, and for the succeeding four years was a student at Georgetown college, Washington, D. C., where he received his degree of Doctor of Laws in 1910. He also took a one-year post-graduate course after receiving his degree. He was private secretary to Senator Reed Smoot at Washington for three years.

Mr. Morgan is an enthusiastic and loyal Republican, and has been recognized by appointment as deputy county attorney, having during his term of office had the handling of many important cases.

Mr. Morgan is married, and has three children. His wife was Miss Ethel Tate, and his children are Dorothy, 4 years of age; Helen, 2 years of age, and Lucile, born in April, 1914.

Mr. Morgan is a member of the A. F. fraternity, the Native Sons of Utah and the Young Men's Republican club of Salt Lake.



ARTHUR A. PANNIER

THOUGH he has been engaged actively as an engraver during the greater part of the last half century, the hand of Arthur A. Pannier has lost none of its cunning, and his eye has lost none of its steadiness. Mr. Pannier, who is one of the pioneer engravers of Salt Lake City, is a native of Berlin, Prussia, where he was born February 16, 1864.

His father, William Julius Pannier, is of French Huguenot stock, and his mother, Clara C. Von Scharchtman, is of the German-Polish aristocracy. Mr. Pannier came to America in his boyhood, and attended the public schools at Alleghany, Pennsylvania, passing through the graded schools. He completed the graded school course in 1878, and took up at once the task of learning all the minute details of the engraver's business.

Mr. Pannier came to Salt Lake City in 1892, and has made his home here almost continuously since. He is married, and there are three children in the family. They are Gladys H. Pannier, 17 years of age; Karl O. Pannier, 14 years of age, and Clyde A. Pannier, 12 years of age. Mrs. Pannier before her marriage was Miss Anna M. Bier.

Mr. Pannier is vice-president of the Salt Lake Stamp company, and is engaged actively in that big concern's engraving department. He is a member of Salt Lake aerie No. 67, Fraternal Order of Eagles; of Heptasophs Morehead conclave No. 82, German Turnverein; and is assistant instructor in Haru Gari lodge. He is a member also of the Manufacturers' association of Utah, and of the Iowa State Traveling Men's association. His place of business is at 65 West Broadway, Salt Lake.

Mr. Pannier is an earnest advocate of the political principles taught by the Progressive party, and is an admirer of the personality and policies of Theodore Roosevelt. He has sought no political office, but has been one of the most active workers, in a quiet way, in the Progressive party in Utah. His circle of influence is large in both business and politics, and his counsel is valued by his friends and associates.

DENNIS ALPHONSUS SMYTH

TYPIFYING in the broadest sense the appellation, "a self-made man," Dennis A. Smyth, proprietor of the European Hotel, 242 Twenty-fifth street, Ogden, Utah, represents today what may be accomplished by the immigrant coming to these shores with the foundation of frugality, integrity, and a high personal moral and business sense combined, the qualities for which Mr. Smyth has been noted since his advent in Utah in January, 1890.

The details of the rise in life of Mr. Smyth, if itemized, would be comparatively devoid of any semblance of fiction, for his position today as one of the leading citizens of the second city of Utah is due primarily to hard work and the possession of that faculty commonly denominated "an eye for the future," which enabled him to look forward and take advantage of opportunities to make for himself.

Born in Bally Hally, County Caven, Ireland, December 23, 1859, his parents were Andrew Smyth and Margaret Smyth. He emigrated to Scotland at an early age, thence coming to America. Beginning life in this country on the lowliest plane, that of a section hand on the railroad, the brains and energy of the young Irishman carried him up the ladder until he became a locomotive engineer, in which capacity he served for several years with the Union Pacific.

Becoming dissatisfied with working for wages, however, he entered business for himself, and today, in addition to owning the European Hotel, he is president of the D. A. Smyth Investment Co.; director in the Commercial National Bank; vice-president of the J. P. O'Neill Construction company; vice-president of the Intermountain Land & Live Stock company; prominently identified with the Pingree National Bank, and formerly one of the directorate of the Portland Cement company at Devil's Slide, Utah, of which latter corporation he was one of the promoters. He also is president of the Intermountain Fair Association.

E. P. WEAVER

THE Globe Service company, of which E. P. Weaver is the president, represents a system of efficiency covering all branches of industry. It is an effective and practical means of eliminating all conditions interfering in any way with the successful and continuous operation of factories, mines, smelters, railroads, etc. Its president and originator has spent a life time in the study of the labor question and industrial problems.

Mr. Weaver is a firm believer in the fact that true efficiency begins with the Human Element—the re-establishment of personal touch between the executive heads of a concern and the workers—which invariably insures an uninterrupted and therefore maximum production. The Globe Inspection Service takes the position that employers, by giving the human element the same consideration as is given the machinery or other plant equipment, succeeds best in eliminating friction and restoring confidence.

This service, as Mr. Weaver firmly thinks, is invaluable to the employer, as it insures freedom from labor worries, and, as a result of increased efficiency, more than takes care of service charges. The company issues what is known as the Busy Man's Digest, a weekly paper reflecting briefly the trend of business throughout the country, keeping its clients closely informed and in touch with the business world. In other words, a reliable guide to the progressive business man.

The company has offices in Salt Lake City, Denver, Colorado, and in San Francisco, Cal.

FREDERICK CHARLES CRABBE

ONE of the most successful of the younger business men of the city; one of the best athletes of the intermountain country and known in all sections of the United States as an advocate of clean sport, Fred C. Crabbe is probably one of the best known of Salt Lake City residents. Since his graduation in 1909 from the L. D. S. university, he has been connected with the A. H. Crabbe Company and is now secretary of that organization. He finds time from his business duties to keep up his athletic training, and frequently appears in exhibition wrestling bouts before fraternal and political organizations. In addition, Mr. Crabbe has promoted some of the premier sporting events of the past several years and several world's championship titles have been won and lost in bouts given under his direction.

Mr. Chabbe early showed prowess in athletics and has an extensive collection of medals. In 1909 he won the 115-pound Northwestern wrestling championship in a tournament at Seattle; in 1910 he won the Rocky Mountain title in both the 115 and 125 pound classes, and has five Utah championships to his credit—the 125-pound title in 1908, 115-pound in 1909 and 1910, and the 125-pound honor in 1911 and 1912.

Devotion to athletics, however, has not interfered with Mr. Crabbe's business pursuits and he is regarded as one of the most progressive of the younger business men. He is the son of Albert Henry Crabbe and Edith Hocking Crabbe, both of whom were born in Salt Lake City, where the subject of this sketch saw the light of day July 18, 1892. He was married recently to Miss Grace Burrell.

Mr. Crabbe is a Republican in politics. He is a member of the Woodmen of the World. His residence in Salt Lake City is at 824 East Second South street.

HERSCHEL BULLEN

HERSCHEL BULLEN believes that in making two stalks of wheat grow where one grew before he is doing a real service to the state of which he is native. As secretary of the Promontory-Curlew Land company he is identified with the campaign to induce farmers to settle on the rich lands along Promontory Point.

Mr. Bullen was born in Richmond, Cache county, November 13, 1870, the son of Herschel Bullen and Emma Gibbs Bullen. The father left New York in the ship "Brooklyn," February 4, 1846, with 235 aboard, and rounded Cape Horn, arriving in Honolulu June 25, with the ship in bad shape. He arrived in Yerba Buena, now San Francisco, July 29, 1846. He came to Salt Lake City later and finally settled in Cache valley.

Herschel Bullen is editor of the Logan Republican, and his pen often has been wielded in promulgation and defense of Republican principles. Mr. Bullen was graduated from the University of Utah in 1901, and since that time has been one of the state's most influential citizens. He is a member of the Logan Commercial club and of the Boosters' club.

Mr. Bullen married Miss Mary Hendricks and to this union were born four children: Herschel Keith, Helen, Reed and Thurlow Hendricks Bullen.

The land owned by the company of which Mr. Bullen is secretary comprises about 500,000 acres and was obtained from the Charles Crocker estate.

FREDERICK CURTIS RICHMOND

FREDERICK CURTIS RICHMOND traces his ancestry in an unbroken line to the founders of Taunton, Mass., which came into existence in 1632. His forefathers participated in every war that is recorded in American history since that date. He therefore is entitled by his lineage to membership in the most exclusive genealogical societies on the western hemisphere.

Mr. Richmond is a son of James Henry Crocker Richmond and Hannah Katherine Curtis Richmond. He was born at New Bedford, Mass., November 19, 1862. He was educated in the Friends' college, Providence, Rhode Island, from which he was graduated in 1878.

He was attracted to the west and on July 11, 1897, he came to Salt Lake City, making his home here since that time. The family home is at 1116 East South Temple street.

Mr. Richmond is married to Laura Trelore Osborne, and they have two children: Laura Gladys Richmond and Marguerite Richmond. Mr. Richmond is a member of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, and has attained the Thirty-second degree. He also is Knights Templar commander.

He has been an active worker in the Salt Lake Commercial club, and is serving his third year as a member of the board of governors of that organization. He also is a member of the Rotary club and of the Salt Lake Country club.

Mr. Richmond is president of the F. C. Richmond Machinery company, dealing in mining, milling and smelting machinery and supplies, and furnishing these supplies to virtually every mining district in Utah, Idaho and Nevada.

DR. FRED STAUFFER

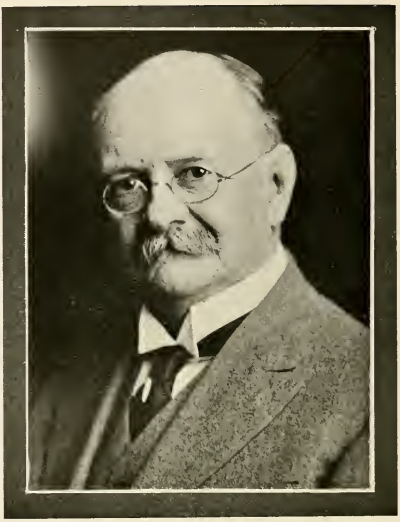
FRED STAUFFER, M. D., F. A. C. S., 310 Templeton building, Salt Lake, is one of the most noted men in his profession who have elected to make Salt Lake their home. He is a son of John and Elizabeth Nussli Stauffer, and was born at Willard City, Box Elder county, Utah, October 24, 1866. His parents were early pioneers of Utah, coming to this state from Switzerland. Both died, however, before Dr. Stauffer was 8 years of age.

Born and reared on a farm, he spent his boyhood in Box Elder county near the place of his birth. He succeeded in gaining an education of the highest order in the University of Kentucky; the School of Medicine, University of Vienna, Austria; later taking post-graduate work in London. He was graduated from the School of Medicine, University of Kentucky, in 1893; from the University of Vienna in 1900, and from the London Royal Opthalmic hospital in 1903.

Dr. Stauffer limits his practice to specialization in diseases and treatment of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Mary Leaver. They have two sons, Fred Leaver Stauffer and John Harold Stauffer.

Dr. Stauffer has no political affiliation, but was mayor of Eureka, Utah, in 1898 and 1899. He is president of the Union State bank of Bountiful; director National Savings and Trust company, Salt Lake; Fellow American College of Surgeons, 1914; member of Salt Lake County (Utah) and American Medical associations; Fellow American Academy Opthalmology and Otolaryngology.



HORACE T. HAINES

HORACE T. HAINES is a wizard with figures and statistics. It is essential that he have this quality, because he is commissioner of immigration, labor and statistics for the State of Utah, and in that office juggles many columns of complicated figures and statistics and puts them in such form that the average person can understand them.

Mr. Haines was born February 13, 1860, at Philadelphia, Pa. His father was Mark Haines and his mother Mrs. Frances Kinney Haines. His mother was a descendant of General Greene of Revolutionary fame; and his forefathers settled in Philadelphia when William Penn established that city. Mr. Haines's parents died when he was 8 years of age.

Attending the common schools of Philadelphia for a few years, he laid the foundation of a self-made education. He attended Allen's academy at Medford, New Jersey, but was not graduated, going to the printer's case in his early manhood. He came to Utah in 1891 and was connected with country newspapers at Green River, Wyoming; Ward, Colorado, where he was burned out; the Emery County Progress at Castle Dale, and thence to Salt Lake, making his home in this city since 1908.

Mr. Haines is a Republican. In his office he has enforced the law forbidding employers to permit women to work longer than nine hours a day; and has enforced also the minimum wage law as applied to women in Utah. During his residence in Castle Dale he was town president and held other positions of trust and responsibility. Mr. Haines is married. His wife formerly was Miss Belle Tuckett. There are no children. Mr. Haines is interested in a number of mining enterprises in this state. His family home is at 1129 Roosevelt avenue, Salt Lake City. He is a member of the Fraternal Union of America, and of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City.

SAMUEL ABBOTT MAGINNIS

AMONG the members of the Utah bar who have attained to a most enviable position of honor is Samuel Abbott Maginnis. Born in Lauraville, Ohio, on October 23, 1885, Mr. Maginnis is among the numerous instances of "an eastern student taking a post-graduate course in the west."

His parents were William L. and Mrs. Letie Abbott Maginnis. His father was born at Lauraville, while his mother was a native of Tennessee.

After finishing the preparatory education Mr. Maginnis took up the study of law. He is a graduate of St. Mary's college at St. Mary's, Kansas, attending that institution from 1902 to 1904, and being graduated the last named year.

It was in 1890 that Mr. Maginnis first saw Utah. He liked the state so well that he decided to make this state his home.

He is married, his wife having formerly been Miss Margaret McKenna.

Three lodges claim him as member; the Elks, Eagles and Knights of Columbus. He is also a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club, and is ever active in the work of that organization which has done so much to build up Salt Lake City and Utah generally.

Membership in an organization does not mean mere nominal honor with Mr. Maginnis. He throws himself into the work of the order. He was Past Exalted Ruler of the Elks, 1913 to 1914, and state deputy for the Knights of Columbus, 1911-12 and 1912-13.

Politically he is a Democrat and admirer of President Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Maginnis is a member of the law firm of Warner & Maginnis, with offices at 320 Boston building, having been a member of that firm since October, 1912.

DAVID HENRY CHRISTENSEN

ALMOST fourteen years has David Henry Christensen been at the head of the public schools of Salt Lake City, and he belongs to the "than whom" class of superintendents. The public school system of this city ranks second to none in the United States, and is the wonder of visiting educators. Superintendent Christensen is to be credited with much of the development of this splendid system.

Among other things to be said about Professor Christensen might be mentioned the fact that he is a native of Utah, born in Manti, March 28, 1869. His father was Herman J. Christensen, of Manti, and his mother is Anne Poulson Christensen, now living in this city.

Superintendent Christensen began graduating from schools in 1890, when he was handed his diploma by the state normal school and later received the degree of bachelor of arts from the state university. In 1898 and 1899 he attended the University of Goettingen in Germany and followed this by courses at the summer schools of Yale and Columbia universities. His early education was gained in the Presbyterian mission schools of this state.

Prior to entering the German university, Professor Christensen served as superintendent of the Utah county schools from 1893 to 1897. During four years in the later "nineties" Superintendent Christensen traveled extensively in Europe, visiting schools and studying the continental educational system. In this he was aided greatly by a special permit from the royal minister of education for the Kingdom of Prussia.

He married Miss Katie Dean, who was also a graduate of the normal class of '90, and they are the parents of eight children—five girls and three boys. Superintendent Christensen is a member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake and is president of the Christensen Construction company, a firm of railroad contractors.

GEORGE H. WATSON

GEORGE H. WATSON, prominent mining man and active in the development of the Little Cottonwood district, was born in Hancock, Michigan, April 30, 1883, the son of James and Julia Watson. His father is dead but his mother is living at the family home in Hancock. Mr. Watson has been a resident of Utah since April, 1903, and during the subsequent years has been following mining work. He is president and general manager of the South Hecla Mining company, president and general manager of George H. Watson & Company and secretary and treasurer of the Michigan Contact Mining company.

The South Hecla Mining company, whose splendid ore showings are the result of the aggressive development campaign waged by Mr. Watson, came into existence September 15, 1910, taking over a number of properties in the district. After spending $207,576.55 in acquiring these properties it was believed that some of the richest pieces of ground in the camp of Alta had been brought together.

Mr. Watson is married, his wife's maiden name being Miss Agnes B. Kisselburg. There are two children issue of the marriage, Agnes B, 3½ years old, and Alta, about one month old.

Mr. Watson is a member of the following fraternal orders: Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He is also an active member of the Commercial club.

Mr. Watson is a Republican in national politics and takes a lively interest in all matters that affect the welfare of Salt Lake, the state of Utah and the nation.

GEORGE MORGAN BACON.

GEORGE MORGAN BACON was born at Worcester, Mass., March 28, 1872, son of George Andrew Bacon, and Susan Lyman (Hillman), both of old Massachusetts families. The family moved later to Syracuse, New York, where Mr. Bacon attended the public schools. He was graduated from the College of Civil Engineers, Cornell University, in 1893, and immediately left for Europe where the summer was spent in travel, followed by a year at Hanover, Germany. In 1894 he entered the employ of the Boston Transit Commission, which was starting work on the Boston Subway, and remained with them four years. On February 5, 1898, he married Isabel Gerry Dame, who traces her descent back to John Alden. They have five children. In 1899 he went to Colorado Springs, and was for one year resident engineer on the Short Line, then building from Colorado Springs to Cripple Creek. In the spring of 1900 he came to Salt Lake City, where he has since made his home. He has been engaged on hydraulic, irrigation, and construction work in Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Nevada. During 1906 he was special engineer employed by Salt Lake City with direct charge of the expenditure of $1,000,000 for water supply, and the big intercepting sewer. In 1907 he had sole charge of the construction of the $500,000 concrete diverting dam built by the reclamation service on the Boise river, near Boise, Idaho.

He is a member of over a dozen social clubs, scientific and technical societies, including the Alta Club, Salt Lake City; Authors Club, London; American Society of Civil Engineers; New England Water Works Association, and Wasatch Lodge, No. 1, F. & A. M. While still maintaining his office as consulting engineer, practically his entire time and attention are devoted to his duties as receiver, appointed by the federal court of Nevada, of the Pacific Reclamation Company and the Metropolis Improvement Company.

HUGH W. DOUGALL

HIS SUPERVISOR of music in the public schools of Salt Lake, a great responsibility rests upon Hugh W. Dougall. The impetius he may give the children may result in brilliant careers for the chosen few whom genius may touch, while for all he can be instrumental in developing an influence that will brighten their lives and those about them.

Hugh W. Dougall was born in Salt Lake City, March 6, 1875. His father was William B. Dougall and his mother Maria Young Dougall. His father was a native of England and came to the United States in 1868. His mother was a daughter of Brigham Young and was born in Salt Lake.

Hugh W. Dougall attended the public schools of Salt Lake, the Latter-day Saints' college, and for postgraduate work attended the University of Utah. His foreign training was at Stearn Conservatory, Berlin. His graduation from the Latter-day Saints' college was in 1892. He has followed the profession of voice culture since his early manhood.

Mrs. Dougall's maiden name was Ella Smith. Their children are Willard Bernard Dougall and Virginia Dougall.

Mr. Dougall studied under Bicknell Young in Chicago; John D. Mehan in New York; Alexander Heinemann, the greatest of German liedersingers, in Berlin; and Jacques Bouhy, in Paris. His studies in music covered a period of eight years, four years at home and four years abroad.

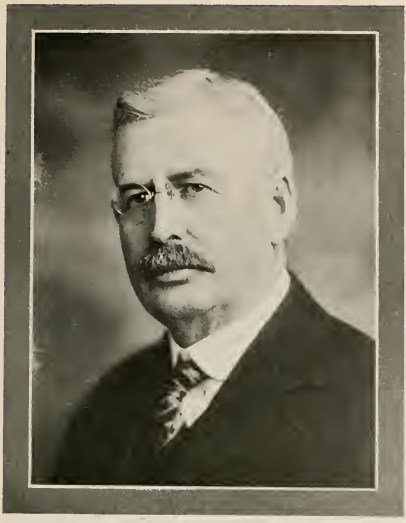
IMER PETT

PROMINENT among the mining men of the state is Imer Pett, general manager of the Bingham Mines company, the Eagle & Blue Bell Mining company and the Yosemite Mines company. That the properties are in the dividend paying class is due in great measure to Mr. Pett's efficient management. Imer Pett is a "nephew of Uncle Sam," born as he was on Independence day 1875, at Brigham City, Utah. His father, James Pett, came from England to this state in the early '50s, and his services as architect and builder were in great demand. The mother, Jane Brandon-Pett, was born in Tennessee.

Mr. Pett attended the grade schools at Ogden and later the High School, from which he graduated in 1896. Being of studious turn of mind, he devoted his spare moments to taking private courses in various subjects. He completed a course in shorthand and typewriting and then read law for two years. For some time he was in the general offices of the Denver & Rio Grande.

Mr. Pett was associated with the Bingham Mines company first as superintendent and then, as his executive ability was recognized he was made general manager. The properties of this company formerly were owned by the Bingham Consolidated Mining company, which went under during the panic of 1907. The mines have been paying dividends under Mr. Pett's management.

Mr. Pett is married, Mrs. Pett's maiden name being Josephine Arnold. Four boys are issue: Imer Arnold, Frank Russell, James Arthur and Stewart Brandon Pett. Mr. Pett belongs to the Commercial and Alta clubs and is a Republican in national politics.



FRANK J. McGANNEY

WITHOUT the products of the powder industry the great mines of the world never would have added their billions of dollars to the wealth of the world. Powder is the great power, utilized by human intelligence, that blasts the precious metal-carrying ore from the rocky depths of old mother earth. A prominent figure in the explosives industry is Frank J. McGanney, sales manager of the Hercules Powder company, which has a big plant at Bacchus, Utah. He was born in California May 9, 1868, and is the son of Mary and Daniel McGanney.

Mr. McGanney received a common school education and then attended St. Mary's college at San Francisco, from which he was graduated in 1889. Early in life he went into the explosives business and soon mastered the details of the industry, especially of the selling end. In 1903 he came to Utah, where the wonderful development of the mining industry made a great demand for explosives.

When the Hercules Powder company, a New Jersey corporation, erected a plant at Utah for the manufacture of explosives, Mr. McGanney became associated with the company as sales manager. He brought to the position a large fund of experience and his selling campaign kept pace with the big demand for the goods. Because of the excellence of the explosives produced by the company and the publicity given that excellence by Mr. McGanney ready sale was found in the various mining and construction camps of the west.

Mr. McGanney is married, his wife's maiden name being Georgie Gray. Two children are result of the union: Frank, 17 years old, and Noreen, 9 years old. The family home is at 460 East Broadway, Salt Lake City.

LEWIS LORAINE BAGLEY

AMONG the younger attorneys of the state who are rapidly forging to the front in their chosen profession is Lewis Loraine Bagley, member of the law firm of Stokes and Bagley, Templeton building. Mr. Bagley was born in Montpelier, Idaho, May 7, 1884, and is a son of John Allen Bagley and Sarah Lawson-Bagley. The young attorney comes of pioneer stock, both grandmothers, Margaret V. Lawson and Mary J. Bagley, having been pioneers of 1847. His grandfather, John Bagley, came to Utah in 1854, and pioneered the way into Bear Lake county, Idaho, in 1865. His father, John A. Bagley, was attorney general of Idaho in 1903-04. Mary J. Bagley, his grandmother, was second cousin to General U. S. Grant.

Mr. Bagley completed the common school course and then attended the Brigham Young University at Provo from 1899 to 1902, leaving this institution to study law at Grant university. He was graduated in May, 1907, and immediately thereafter took up the practice of law in Salt Lake.

Mr. Bagley was married to Miss Elaine Neff, and to them were born: Lewis Neff Bagley, 6 years old; John Allen Bagley, 4; Stuart Bagley, 2 years, and Benedict Grant Bagley, 8 months.

Mr. Bagley is a wide-awake, progressive member of the legal profession and is associated with a number of comparatively new corporations. He is a Republican in national politics.

JOHN F. ERDMANN

DEVOTION to the interests of the city where he had chosen to make his home resulted in the election of John F. Erdmann as mayor of Brigham City. Mr. Erdmann is what is termed a "self-made" man, winning his education in the school of experience. He was born in New York state, August 23, 1860, the son of Michael Erdmann and Hannah Peters-Erdmann.

During his youth in New York state, Mr. Erdmann engaged in various pursuits, principal of which was farming. He heard the call of "Westward Ho!" in 1889, in which year he came to Utah, settling at Brigham City. There he engaged in farming, fruit raising and live stock raising. He was always to the fore in any campaign for the betterment of civic conditions at Brigham City and he is rated as one of the substantial men of the community.

Mr. Erdmann is a prominent member of the Commercial club of Brigham City, and has taken a big part in its various activities. His support could always be counted on when any move was on foot, the fruition of which meant a greater and better Brigham City.

Mr. Erdmann is a Republican in political life, and has always taken an active part in the councils of his party in his county.

He was married to Miss Ada R. Brown and there are two children issue of that union.

LEWIS A. JEFFS

THE development of the mining industry to its present stage of efficiency is due in great measure to the mining engineers who, with their trained minds, have solved many perplexing problems that were wont to vex operators. Prominent among the mining engineers and mining operators of the state is Lewis A. Jeffs of 309 East South Temple, whose ability has won him a reputation throughout the whole west. Mr. Jeffs was born in Rockland, Michigan, in 1877, and is the son of Julia Sutter-Jeffs and Benjamin Jeffs.

Following attendance at school in his home city, Mr. Jeffs attended the Michigan College of Mines at Houghton, from which he was graduated in 1898 with the degree of B. S., and in 1899 with that of E. M. The west at that time looked the most promising as a field for his profession, and to Utah he came in 1890. His thorough study of every mining district in this and nearby states has given him a keen insight into mining conditions and his advice is sought by a large clientele.

Mr. Jeffs is a member of the University club and of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. He has become identified with a number of mining and industrial companies and is greatly interested in the development of his adopted state. He is vice-president of the United States Phosphate company of Michigan, vice-president of the Daly Mining company of Park City, vice-president of the McDonald-Ely Mining company and director of the Chirique Land & Sugar company.

Mr. Jeffs is married, his wife's maiden name being Selma Wall. To that union was born one daughter, Mary Sutter Jeffs, now about two years of age.

BERNARD P. MANLEY

THE mysteries of coal mining are as an open book to Bernard P. Manley, mining engineer, who, at present, is general manager of the Keystone Coal company. While specializing in coal mining, because of extensive interests, Mr. Manley has a profound knowledge of mining generally, and is conceded to be one of the best informed mining engineers in the state. He was born at Peterborough, England, and is the son of Elizabeth Spencer-Manley and Patrick Joseph Manley.

Mr. Manley completed the common school courses and then attended St. George college at Brampton, England, from which institution he was graduated in 1900. He followed his profession in England for some time and then, like many others, he was attracted to the United States, where opportunities for men of his profession were greater. He came to Utah in 1912 and soon became identified with the coal mining industry, where his ability was recognized. He is now general manager of the Keystone Coal company, which has extensive coal land holdings.

Mr. Manley is married, his wife's maiden name being Elizabeth McAlpine. Three children were born to the union: William Spencer, 11 years old; Evelyn Elizabeth, 9 years old, and Paul Clelland, 4 years old. The family home is at 170 North First West street.

Mr. Manley is a member of the Masonic fraternity, being a 32nd degree Mason and a member of the Shrine. He is deeply interested in the development of the coal mining industry of the state, and his wide experience is considered a big asset not only to his own company but to the industry in the whole state as well.

FRANK M. DRIGGS

IT HAS been said that two armies mould the destinies of a state. One is that army armed with saber and musket, which stands as a guard at the frontier to ward off its country's foes. The other is the army of teachers. The Duke of Wellington said that the battle of Waterloo was won on the football fields of England's public schools.

Among the more prominent leaders in Utah's educational system is Frank Milton Driggs. Mr. Driggs is superintendent of the Utah School for the Deaf and the Blind, at Ogden.

With that infinite patience and tact which marks any true teacher, but particularly the teacher of those afflicted as are the students at the Utah School for the Deaf and the Blind, Prof. Driggs has shown his aptitude for the profession of instructor of the young. The entire state appreciates his ability for the delicate and responsible position which he occupies.

Prof. Driggs is a native son of Utah, having been born on November 20, 1870, at Pleasant Grove, Utah. His father was Benjamin Woodbury Driggs and his mother Mrs. Rosalie Ellen Cox Driggs.

Early in his life Mr. Driggs decided upon teaching as his profession. He is a graduate of the University of Utah and of Gallaudet college of Washington, D. C., receiving his diploma from the latter institution in 1898. He came to Salt Lake City two years previous to that date, in 1896, but left for the capital to take up his studies in the eastern institution.

Prof. Driggs married Miss Maude Elise Short. Two children have blessed this union: Nellie Clarice, 14 years of age, and Milton Short, 10 years of age.

Prof. Driggs is vice-president of the Volker Lumber company and is a member of the Weber club. He is a Republican in politics.

JOHN HELD

AS A MUSICIAN and an inventor of note no one in the state is better known or more thoroughly appreciated than John Held. Whenever a band is heard in the distance the first name thought of is Held. As an engraving stationer he is known by practically every one in this and the adjoining states. The famous Held fountain pen, of which he is the inventor, is now used throughout the United States. He has for many years been identified with both the stationery and engraving business, and his ability as a musician and a leader has won fame for him.

He has the confidence of his fellow men and is highly esteemed by all who know him.

John Held, the son of Marie Held and Jacques Held, was born August 22, 1862, in Geneva, Switzerland. His ancestors, all of whom have assisted in making history for Switzerland, are old residents of ancient Heidelberg. Like his ancestors, Mr. Held has done and is doing everything within his power to perpetuate the name of Held.

As a member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City he is known by his friends as an ardent worker and promoter of affairs pertaining to the uplifting of the community. As a public worker and one who will do anything that may tend to better the general conditions of the community he is always ambitious, willing and ready to give every assistance. Fraternal organizations never appealed to him as his entire time has been devoted to his family and to his duties as a musician and his business as an engraver.

His education was perfected at the University of Utah from which institution he was graduated in 1880. Since that time Mr. Held has followed his profession. His wife was formerly Miss Anna Evans. They have six children: Jack Held, 22 years of age; Julian Held, Bessie Held, Geneva Held, Melville Held and Albert Held.

FRED P. NELSON

AS exalted ruler of the Salt Lake lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Fred P. Nelson has made an enviable record. He has been in the front ranks of those who have lent helping hands to those less fortunate and is known as a consistent booster for a greater Salt Lake and a greater Utah. He is the son of Fred C. Nelson and Camella T. Nelson, and was born in Salt Lake June 13, 1881.

Mr. Nelson began his schooling in the public schools of Salt Lake, for upon completing the common courses he entered the great school of experience, where he proved an apt student. He followed various lines of business and finally went into the manufacturing business, becoming associated with the Utah Bedding & Manufacturing company, of which company he now is secretary and treasurer. The company has enjoyed a merited degree of success and its products are well known in this and other states of the west.

Mr. Nelson gave personal attention to details of the Elks' exenrsion to California in 1915 and to his efforts is due in great measure the success of that trip. He is a member of the Rotary club and has always taken an active part in its deliberations.

Mr. Nelson is married, his wife's maiden name being Josephine M. Valentine. Two children were born to the union, Clark V., 6 years old, and Virginia Lucile, 2 years old.

Mr. Nelson has shown his faith in the state by investing heavily in the Utah Bedding & Manufacturing company.

CHARLES EDWIN LOOSE

ONE of the most successful and best known mining men in the west is Charles Edwin Loose of Provo, Utah. He is the son of Robert Loose and Becky Jane Loose, descendants of French and English pioneers, and was born in Quincy, Illinois, September 19, 1853. The father died when young Charles was nine months old. In the spring of 1860 the widow and her three sons came to Utah, the journey taking about six weeks.

After residing in Salt Lake City for a time, the family went to Payson, Utah, where the subject of this sketch attended the public schools until 14 years of age. Then he went to California with his brothers, first locating at Bodie. Later, he made his way about the various mining camps, getting hold of valuable mining properties.

Mr. Loose still has large interests in California, though his principal operations are confined to this state. He jumped into the limelight as one of the big mining men of Utah when he discovered the Grand Central mine in the Tintic district in 1898. Confident that the ore body was to be struck at depth between the Mammoth and the Centennial Eureka properties, Mr. Loose kept at work when others were ready to call quits. The result was a mine that has so far paid between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 in dividends.

Mr. Loose at present is operating the Central Hill, Grand Central and the Gold Chain properties, controls the Iron King, is manager of the Sioux Consolidated and is interested in many other properties in the state, including the Albion at Cottonwood. He is vice-president of the Provo Commercial and Savings Bank and a director of the Utah Power & Light company. He has been active as a Republican in politics for years; has been twice state senator and twice state committeeman. He is now serving his second term as state chairman for the party.

FREDERICK H. VAHRENKAMP

WELL-KNOWN among the mining engineers of Utah is Frederick H. Vahrenkamp of 208 Mecklenburg apartments, Salt Lake City. Although he has only been in Utah two years, Mr. Vahrenkamp has made a careful study of the geology of all the established mining camps throughout the state and his opinion has been much sought by those interested in the promotion of the mining industry.

Mr. Vahrenkamp was born in Concordia, Lafayette county Missouri, and is the son of Henry W. Vahrenkamp and Elizabeth C. Vahrenkamp. Following his graduation from High School, he went to Heidelberg, Germany, where he studied geology and mining engineering privately under Professor L. H. Mitchell, former professor of engineering and geology at the University of Heidelberg and Cornell university. His studies consisted of five years of actual practice in the field under Professor Mitchell, after which he became his business associate in the firm of Mitchell & Vahrenkamp, with offices at Los Angeles and San Francisco, which were maintained until Mr. Mitchell's death.

Mr. Vahrenkamp was married about eighteen years ago to Miss Mollie A. Schell. One son, Alexander F. Vahrenkamp, 17 years old, was born to this union.

Mr. Vahrenkamp is a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Mr. Vahrenkamp is president of the Boston Development company which has extensive holdings in the Little Cottonwood district. The company has a bond and lease on the Maxfield mine and the development work there has been crowned with success as the property has been made one of the big producers of the district.

In politics Mr. Vahrenkamp is a Republican.

GEORGE H. BRIMHALL

POSSESSED of strong personal magnetism, keen intellectual powers and rare executive ability, Dr. George H. Brimhall, president of Brigham Young university, Provo, Utah, is considered one of the foremost educators of the state and of the west. He was born in Great Salt Lake City, Utah, December 9, 1852, the son of George W. Brimhall and Rachael Ann Mayer-Brimhall. Mr. Brimhall, sr., was one of the founders of Utah, coming here in 1849.

Dr. Brimhall, at the age of seven, ran away from a cow herd to his first school on Ogden Bench. During his youth he was cowherder, farm boy, canyon hand, mule driver and freighter, but at all times a student. With forty other young men of Spanish Fork, Utah, he erected a school building known as Young Men's academy, where he afterwards taught. He served later as member of the Spanish Fork city council.

Dr. Brimhall has served as superintendent of Spanish Fork City, Provo City and Utah County schools and as janitor, instructor, professor, acting president and president of Brigham Young university. He was honored by the Utah State Teachers' association by election to its presidency.

At the age of 22 Dr. Brimhall married Alsina E. Wilkins and to them were born: Lucy Jane, Alsina E., George W., Mark H., Wells L. and Milton H. At 32, he married Flora Robertson and the following are issue: Dean R., Fay and Fawn (twins), Burns R., Ruth Afton, Paul R., Alta, Golden H. and Areo.

Dr. Brimhall is noted as a lecturer and orator throughout the west. He is a member of the General Board of Education for the Mormon church and is prominently identified with other educational organizations. He is a Republican.

CHARLES F. BROWN.

CHARLES F. BROWN is one of Salt Lake City's leading civil engineers. Born in this city August 4, 1874, he resided here with his parents until he was eight years of age, when they moved to Lehi and later to Loa, Utah. His parents, Charles A. Brown and Mrs. Pauline Grover Brown, were of New England extraction. His grand parents moved from there to Ontario province, Canada, and thence to Michigan, Illinois and Utah. Mr. Brown is of Canadian-American stock, his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Tupper Grover, having been born in Labrador, Canada.

After receiving his common schooling in the graded schools of this city and Lehi, Mr. Brown went to the Utah Agricultural College at Logan, in 1897, and was graduated in 1903.

After graduation Mr. Brown took up the work of civil engineering and contractor. His work is that of reclaiming swamp and alkaline lands and installing municipal improvements. He is a partner in the firm of Brown & Kleinschmidt, his partner being Henry S. Kleinschmidt.

Mr. Brown is a widower, his wife, Mrs. Bertha May Brown, having died November 5, 1912. Three children were born to them, Bert Franklin, 10 years of age; Elliott Mitchel, six years of age, and May, four years of age.

Mr. Brown is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and of the Utah Society of Engineers. He is an associate member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, elected to that society in 1908.

Four years of his life were spent in the United States department of agriculture as drainage engineer and as a pioneer in reclamation of swamp and alkaline irrigated lands; in development of methods of reclaiming and also in making such reclamation permanent features of contracting. Politically he is a Republican.

CHARLES L. STILLMAN

ONE of the most substantial and progressive citizens of the state is Charles L. Stillman, Democratic member of the Board of County Commissioners of Salt Lake county. He was born in Salt Lake county, September 26, 1865, and is the son of Charles Stillman and Elizabeth Neff-Stillman. Both the father and mother came to Utah in the late '40's, and to them were born fourteen children. Mr. Stillman was the second oldest son.

Mr. Stillman has made a success of farming, livestock raising and the growing of fruit. He has made a thorough study of practical horticulture and is considered somewhat of an authority on that subject throughout the county. He owns a number of thoroughbred cattle and horses, and is interested financially in a number of corporations in the county.

Mr. Stillman is a Democrat and has been active in the work of the party in Salt Lake county. He had never sought political preferment, but the voters at the last election honored him by making him county commissioner. He has been especially interested during his term of office in getting measures through for the benefit of the rural districts.

Mr. Stillman is married, his wife's maiden name having been Marian B. Neff. To them were born seven children; Charles N., 22 years old; Garrie W., 20; Francis B., 18; John, 16; Marian W., 12; Ann E., 9, and June, 7.

ABRAHAM F. DOREMUS

RECOGNIZED as an authority on engineering problems connected with irrigation work and with a wide reputation as a railroad construction engineer, Abraham Fairbanks Doremus has done much for the upbuilding of Salt Lake, his native city. The son of Dr. Henry I. Doremus, one of the most prominent educators of his day, and of Harriet Fairbanks Doremus, he was born in Salt Lake May 24, 1849. He had the advantage of securing more than an ordinary education under the tutelage of his father. His mind early turned toward civil engineering and he directed his energies toward acquiring a thorough knowledge of that profession, which he has followed continuously for a period of 45 years.

Mr. Doremus is a descendant on his father's side of Cornelius Doremus of Middleburg, Holland, who came to America and settled at Paterson, New Jersey, about the year 1680. And on his mother's side of Johnathan Fairbanks of Sowerby, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, who came to America in 1633 and settled at Dedham, Mass. Members of both of these families participated in the early Indian wars and also in the Revolutionary, Mexican and Civil wars.

Mr. Doremus married Miss Pauline Richards, daughter of Dr. Willard Richards, and five children blessed the union, of which three are living: Mrs. Hattie D. Hagman, Henry R. Doremus, and Cornelius R. Doremus.

As an engineer and railroad builder his services were in great demand. He engaged in the work of location and construction for the Union Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Atlantic & Pacific, Oregon Short Line and other railroads.

Mr. Doremus has been honored by various elective and appointive offices, having been city engineer, chairman of the Board of Public Works, state engineer of Utah and member of the State Board of Health.

Mr. Doremus is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Commercial Club and is a director of the "Fairbanks Family in America."

HOWARD PENDLETON KIRTLEY

ONE of the leaders in the profession and practice of medicine in Salt Lake City, and in the state of Utah, is Howard Pendleton Kirtley, M. D., who has forged steadily to the front rank by reason of his keen and analytical processes of reasoning from cause to effect, and from human physical ills to their cure.

Dr. Kirtley has risen steadily in his profession since beginning practice in 1907. He is a native of Woodbury, New Jersey, where he was born October 9, 1877. His parents were Lycurgus Kirtley and Ophelia A. Tidball Kirtley. He is descended from a purely American family, the American branch having been begun in 1710 when the first of that name landed in Virginia and aided in wresting that rich territory from the thrall of the wilderness.

In 1900 Dr. Kirtley entered the Chicago university and was graduated from Rush Medical college, a branch of that institution of learning, in 1904. At the time of his graduation he was president of his class. He spent the following two years as an interne in the Cook county hospital at Chicago. During his years at Rush he was a fellow in physiology under the tutelage of the renowned Professor Jacques Loeb.

Dr. Kirtley was married to Adelaide E. Odell and they have one child, Jean Kirtley, born in 1913. Dr. Kirtley is a Republican in politics; he is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, and the Nu Sigma Nu medical Greek letter fraternity. He is also a member of the University club of Salt Lake City.

Dr. Kirtley is prominent professionally as a member of the staff of St. Mark's hospital. He is treasurer of the Utah State Medical association, and is an officer in the medical reserve corps of the United States army.

EDWARD H. CALLISTER.

EDWARD H. CALLISTER, general manager of The Herald-Republican Publishing Company, was born in Salt Lake December 29, 1862, and has been prominent in civic affairs in Utah since young manhood. Ann Cowley Callister and Edward Callister, his parents, were born on the Isle of Man and came to Utah in 1854.

Edward H. Callister's youth was spent in Utah where, with his father he engaged in the agricultural and business activity of the community, gaining his education in the schools of the territory in the winter seasons. He was a member of the Salt Lake City council from 1889 to 1893, having been elected with the first Republican State ticket nominated in Utah and he has been an active worker in the Republican party since its organization in the State. He served as state chairman in 1900 and was appointed United States internal revenue collector in July, 1901, serving until November, 1913, during which time he administered the affairs of the local office in a manner that was marked by efficient service.

Mr. Callister was one of the incorporators of The Inter-Mountain Republican Company and served as chairman of the board of directors of that company and held the same position after the purchase of the Salt Lake Herald and consolidation until his election as president of The Herald-Republican Publishing Company. He resigned as president to take the position of vice-president and general manager. Mr. Callister is also vice-president and a director in the Birdseye Marble Company of Utah, which owns immense quarries of superior quality of marble in Utah county.

Mr. Callister married Louise Eddington and they have seven children living: E. R. Callister, Marguerite Callister, Irene Callister, Paul Q. Callister, Norval E. Callister, Reed E. Callister and Louis H. Callister.

FRANK M. WILSON

PROBABLY none of the occupations taken up by citizens of Utah are used with better advantage to develop the state and its latent resources than is that of mining. Among the mining men of the intermountain country, none is more respected and looked up to as an authority on this wide and diversified subject than is Frank M. Wilson.

Mr. Wilson is in the prime of life and is a typical prosperous mining man of the west. He is a native son of Utah; he is a devoted son of his state.

Born in Fairview, Utah, June 5, 1865, he has grown up in this state and imbibed her history and traditions at first hand.

He received the common school education which the state afforded, and made the most of it, carving out for himself a successful career. He did not go to college, but early took up his life work.

He came to Salt Lake City in August, 1899, and has lived here ever since that date. He is married, his wife's maiden name being Elizabeth J. Hammond. They have four children: Jane, 25 years of age; Robert E., 22 years of age; Earl M., 20 years of age, and John H., 18 years of age.

The Wilson home life is ideal and the many friends of the family love to gather within the hospitable doors of this dwelling.

Mr. Wilson belongs to Salt Lake Lodge No. 85, B. P. O. E., and is an energetic and enthusiastic worker for that order.

One of the best known hotels in this city and state, the Wilson hotel, is owned by him. He had this hostelry remodeled and furnished in an up-to-date manner throughout and it is well known to the traveling public throughout the west generally. He also owns quite a number of mining properties.

L. R. WOOD

FROM stenographer in a general freight office at Omaha to auditor of the Oregon Short Line Railroad company at Salt Lake in the short space of 16 years is the record of L. R. Wood, considered one of the most capable railroad men in the state. He was born at Denison, Iowa, November 20, 1875, and is the son of Josephine S. Marks-Wood and Charles Taylor Wood. A brother, Henry Wood, is European correspondent for the United Press association.

The subject of this sketch took a business course, including shorthand and typewriting, at Fremont, Nebraska, and this was completed in 1890. His railroad career began February 10, 1899, when he became stenographer for the general freight department of the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley Railroad company at Omaha. On February 20, 1900, he became stenographer for R. Anderson, auditor of disbursements, Union Pacific Railroad company, Omaha. On July 1, 1905, he became general clerk for Erastus Young, general auditor, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines, and on January 1, 1910, became chief clerk to C. B. Seger, general auditor of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads, Chicago and New York. Mr. Seger now is vice-president and controller of the Union Pacific system.

Mr. Wood was appointed chief clerk to the auditor of the Oregon Short Line at Salt Lake March 1, 1912, and on April 11, 1914, was named assistant auditor. Just about a year later, April 15, 1915, he was promoted to his present position, auditor of the Oregon Short Line.

Mr. Wood is married, his wife's maiden name being Jessie Maud Azbill. One son was born to this union, Robert, aged four years.

EDWARD BENJAMIN CRITCHLOW

POSSESSING a deep knowledge of the law and great ability in the unraveling of perplexing legal points, Edward Benjamin Critchlow is considered one of the most brilliant lawyers in the State of Utah. He is a member of the firm of Pierce, Critchlow & Barrette, which firm has a large and constantly growing clientele. He was born in Mississippi in 1858, and is the son of John J. Critchlow and Mabel H. Ayer-Critchlow.

After obtaining a good common school and high school education, he attended Princeton university and later became a student in Columbia Law school, from which institution he was graduated as lawyer. He has been a resident of Utah since 1873.

Mr. Critchlow has been uniformly successful in the practice of law in the State. He is especially well informed on corporation law, and his services have been retained by numerous large corporations in important cases.

Mr. Critchlow was married to Mary W. Martin, and to that union were born Elizabeth Y., Francis B., George A., Maurice M., Anna J., Margery W., and Walter M. Critchlow.

Mr. Critchlow belongs to the Masonic fraternity and is a member of the Alta, University and Country clubs. He is one of Salt Lake City's most influential men of affairs and is interested in any movement for the betterment of conditions generally in the State.

In politics, he is a Republican.

WILLIAM G. PATRICK

WELL known among the business men of Salt Lake and the whole state is William G. Patrick, member of the firm of Decker-Patrick company, wholesale dry goods. He is the son of Rachel Baird-Patrick and Robert Patrick, and was born in Salt Lake April 29, 1869. His parents came to Utah from Scotland in 1863. His residence is at 283 Sixth avenue, Salt Lake.

Mr. Patrick started to work for Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution in the wholesale dry goods department 26 years ago. His ability attracted the attention of other firms and eleven years ago he accepted an offer from John Scowcroft & Sons company of Ogden to take charge of its dry goods department. He was with this firm a little more than four years. The possibilities of the dry goods business in the west appealed to him and he associated himself with Joseph Decker in the organization of the Decker-Patrick company. This was just six and a half years ago and today the firm is considered by the dry goods trade of the country to be one of the leading dry goods concerns of the west.

Mr. Patrick is an ardent booster for his native city and state and never overlooks an opportunity to tell people on the outside about its sterling advantages. He is an active member of the Commercial club and a strong component element in the business fabric of the community.

Mr. Patrick claims no political party as his own. He is independent and votes for the man, not the party.

ANDREW SMITH, JR

ELECTION to the office of sheriff in a county of more than 125,000 population, comprising in its area many mining and smelter camps and a large floating and foreign population, bring unusual responsibilities. The people of Salt Lake county, looking over the record of Andrew Smith, Jr., who has served for many years as a policeman and as a deputy sheriff, had confidence in his ability to handle the civil and criminal affairs of the county, and elected him as sheriff. His office has made its record in the matter of keeping order and preventing crime, and in punishing those criminals that are caught and brought to face the courts. Securing sufficient evidence, and of the right kind to secure a conviction is as essential as arresting the malefactor, and this Sheriff Smith and his deputies have done in many cases.

Andrew Smith, Jr., was born in Salt Lake March 24, 1864. He was a son of Andrew Smith and Jane McKay Smith. His father was a native of Scotland and his mother of Ireland. His parents came to Salt Lake with the hand cart party of pioneers.

In his early manhood Mr. Smith was a carpenter and builder, later becoming a policeman. He married Miss Henrietta Mitchell, after he had attended the common schools of the state and the state university. He is a member of the Commercial club and of the Native Sons of Utah.

During all his life Mr. Smith has been an earnest worker for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in various ecclesiastical capacities.

EUGENE L. WILLE.

EUGENE L. WILLE, the genial and popular manager of the Wilson cafe, was born in France November 30, 1867. His father, Benjamin Wille, was a caterer in some of the principal cities of France and Alsace-Lorraine, and has been employed as manager in some of the finest cafes in these metropolitan cities. Gene, as he is familiarly known by his many friends in this city, naturally followed in the footsteps of his father, and since coming to this country has been at the head of many of the country's most popular cafes.

In addition to being manager of the Wilson cafe, Mr. Willie has held the same position in the Maxim cafe, Semloh Louvre, and one or two other cafes which have become popular because of his association with them. He was a member of the Kenyon Hotel Cafe Co. and is a prominent Elk.

Mr. Wille came to the United States August 2, 1886. He spent a few years in New York, where he was employed in many of the best hotels. For three years he was manager of one of Buffalo's most famous cafes and later held similar positions in Niagara Falls. In 1897 Mr. Wille married Miss Fay E. Black.

At the time of the Alaskan gold rush, Mr. Wille left for the gold fields. In Dawson and Nome he entered the hotel business and operated some of the best dining rooms that Alaska has ever known. He later returned to San Francisco, where for ten years he was associated with the best cafes in the Paris of America.

Mr. Wille came to this city from Denver in 1897, and with the exception of one year that he spent in Denver as manager of the Lynhaven, has lived here ever since.

The fact that Mr. Wille has risen in the cafe business from the position of assistant pastry cook to his present capacity demonstrates his complete knowledge of the cafe business. His good fellowship has made for him a host of staunch friends in this city.

BERNARD O. MECKLENBURG

BERNARD O. MECKLENBURG, young in years and old in experience, ranks among the leading architects of the intermountain country. He is a member of several fraternal orders and clubs, a progressive citizen, a consistent booster for a greater city and State, an ardent patron of baseball and other sports, and stands very high socially in the capital city of Utah. He was born August 1, 1878, in Fremont, Nebraska, and during his boyhood and early youth had the advantages of an excellent education. He came to Salt Lake about fifteen years ago.

Mr. Mecklenburg is an architect who has made good with a big G. As superintendent of construction for buildings of his own design he has won an enviable reputation for executive ability, efficiency and dispatch in operations.

The new Holy Cross hospital is among the latest efforts of Mr. Mecklenburg in the building line. The structure is thoroughly modern in every particular, and the plans as drawn by him embrace the best ideas in hospital construction. Many buildings in Salt Lake and other cities, including church edifices and business blocks, stand as tributes to his ability as an architect. In addition, he has received commissions for big jobs throughout the whole intermountain country.

Mr. Mecklenburg is a heavy realty owner, big tax payer and is interested in all movements tending to the upbuilding of Salt Lake. He is owner of and lives at the Mecklenburg apartments, L and South Temple streets, considered one of the most modern electrically equipped apartment houses in the country.

GEORGE C. LAMBERT, JR.

GEORGE C. LAMBERT, JR., was born in Salt Lake City December 10, 1873, being the eldest son of George Cannon Lambert and Mary Alice Needham Lambert. His grandparents on both sides were early pioneers of Utah, and of English birth, and have figured prominently in the community in a business way, as well as religiously, all being devout and consistent members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He started life with all the advantages of honorable ancestry, but without the enervating influence of wealth. His father previous to his birth had been manager of the Deseret News, the leading newspaper of the west, but resigned from that position and undertook the management of the only paper mill in the State when George was 19 years of age. The accidental burning of the paper mill six months later changed the current of the family. The father decided to continue in the paper business, and organized the Lambert Paper company, his sons being associated with him.

George has now actively devoted himself to this business for the past twenty-two years, during the past two years as manager. He has had a broad and varied experience in business, and is noted for his steady habits, sagacity and poise.

He was married June 23, 1898, to Kate Young Clawson, daughter of General H. B. Clawson, and granddaughter of Brigham Young, who, after bearing him four children, died. He married again September 11, 1914, to Avery Clark, granddaughter of Ezra T. Clark, pioneer of Davis county.

In connection with his father and brothers he has also helped to organize and conduct successfully the Lambert Manufacturing company, the Lambert Roofing company, and the Lambert Calendar & Novelty company, of which corporations he is also an officer, as well as being treasurer of the Utah Printing Ink & Roller company.

He is a member of the Commercial club and the Rotary club, in both of which organizations he has taken an active part.

EDWARD GALLAGHUE O'DONNELL

EDWARD GALLAGHUE O'DONNELL, well-known Salt Lake undertaker, was born in County Limerick, Ireland, March 1, 1863. His father was John O'Donnell, and mother, Margaret Gallaghue-O'Donnell. The O'Donnells and Gallaghues belong to two of the oldest families in the southern part of Ireland. The subject of this sketch attended the National School at Galbally, Limerick county, and the Albert Model School at Clonmell, County Tipperary, and was graduated from the latter school in 1879. He came to the United States in 1885, taking up his residence in Chicago, where he was in the coal business until 1889. Leaving Chicago in 1889 he passed through Salt Lake City on his way to San Francisco. He stayed in San Francisco two years and then came to Salt Lake to make his permanent home.

Mr. O'Donnell made friends on all hands by his ready wit. He was elected city councilman for two terms, but served only six of the eight years, going out of office when the commission form of government was inaugurated. Among the fraternal orders of which he is a member are the following: Elks, Eagles, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Columbus and Woodmen of the World. He is an active member of the Commercial club, and is president and general manager of the Eutonia Mining & Milling company.

Mr. O'Donnell was married to Miss Mary A. Miller and to them were born, John E., Margaret Mary, Cornelius F., Mary A., Edward J., and Catherine O'Donnell.

In national politics Mr. O'Donnell is a Republican.

DR. E. D. WOODRUFF

DR. E. D. WOODRUFF has carved out an enviable name for himself in the business world. He was recently chosen as president of the Salt Lake Security & Trust company, in which concern he has acted as chairman of the board since its organization in 1903. He is also president of the Brown, Terry, Woodruff company, owners of the Troy Laundry.

Dr. Woodruff was born in Illinois, September 24, 1850. He is the son of John Woodruff, farmer, and spent his youth on the farm in Illinois. He obtained his education in his native town and afterwards graduated as physician and surgeon from the Chicago Homeopathic Medical college. After his graduation, he settled in Chicago for ten years, after which he acted for a period of over ten years as surgeon to Union Pacific Railroad and Union Pacific Coal company at Rock Springs, Wyoming. He came to Utah in 1890 and retired from active practice of his profession. Since coming here, in addition to his high professional standing, he has occupied a prominent place in the business world, and is looked upon as one of Utah's most substantial citizens.

Dr. Woodruff married Minnette M. Roberts. They have four children: Mrs. Lesley D. W. Riter, Helen M. Woodruff, Edward R. Woodruff and Virginia M. Woodruff.

Dr. Woodruff is a Mason and a member of the Commercial club, of which he is a past president. He is also active in the affairs of the Sons of the American Revolution, and acted as head of that organization for some time.

FRANK J. GUSTIN

SENIOR member of the law firm of Gustin, Gillette & Brayton, one of the best known firms in Utah and the west, is Frank J. Gustin. During his residence in Salt Lake City, Mr. Gustin has taken a leading part in all the affairs of the city and state, and is well known and highly esteemed.

Early in his life Mr. Gustin took up the active practice of law. He is always known to be alert and wide-awake and level-headed. His uniform success in handling big cases has brought him a large volume of valuable business, and he is at this time acting for some of the largest financial institutions in Utah.

Mr. Gustin was born July 27, 1877, at Princeton, Illinois. His parents were Marianna Wemple-Gustin and Albert J. Gustin. His early school days were passed in the public and high schools of his native town. His desire being to enter the legal profession, Mr. Gustin entered the University of Nebraska at about the age of 18 years. After attending that institution four years, he received his degree of LL. B. He was graduated from the university in June, 1897, and immediately started on his career as an attorney-at-law.

His first appearance in Salt Lake City was in October, 1898, since when he has been a resident here. He was married to Dora Harley and has three children, namely, Harley W. Gustin, 11 years of age; Adele M. Gustin, 9 years of age, and Frances J. Gustin, 8 years of age. While at college he was honored by being elected a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. Mr. Gustin is also a member of the Masonic fraternity, having taken the degrees in the various branches. As a member of the Alta club, the University club, the Country club, and an associate member of the Press club of Salt Lake City, Mr. Gustin is widely known and highly respected. Mr. Gustin is also a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, of the Utah State Bar association and the American Bar association.

DR. HUGH B. SPRAGUE

THE name of Dr. Hugh B. Sprague, assistant health commissioner and police surgeon of Salt Lake City, is known to every reader of daily newspapers in the state. Dr. Sprague has extended valuable aid to his chief, Dr. Samuel G. Paul, head of the health department, in making the capital city of Utah one of the most healthful places in the United States. Hundreds of patients who were treated at the emergency hospital at police headquarters remember him for prompt services given when speed and efficiency meant the saving of human life.

Dr. Sprague is a native of Utah, having been born in Salt Lake on August 16, 1879. His father was Sam L. Sprague, and his mother Marian Sprague.

The subject of this sketch obtained his early education in the public schools of Salt Lake. Following a high school course, he attended Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated as physician and surgeon in 1904. Since that time Dr. Sprague has practiced his profession in his native city. Much of his time, however, has been devoted to the public health service during recent years.

Dr. Sprague belongs to the Masons, Eagles and Moose, and is a member of the University club. He has a large circle of friends and is a wikeawake booster for his home city and state.

Dr. Sprague is vice-president of the Rocky Mountain Insurance agency. In politics, he is Republican. He is married, his wife's maiden name being Lillian Eaken. They reside at the Eagle Gate apartments.

RICHARD A. JOHNSON

"ALL the world loves a well-tailored man," said one of rare wisdom. Whatever may be said or believed concerning the philosophy of clothes, it is a fact that the man whose attire is neat and in vogue wins his way in business and in love, more easily than the sartorially careless. It is appreciation of this fact that has won distinction for the firm of Johnson Brothers, of which Richard A. Johnson is the senior member.

Richard A. Johnson was born at Kalmar, Sweden. He there learned the essentials of his trade from his father, Carl August Johnson. Old-country training is proverbial for its thoroughness. Richard A. Johnson served an apprenticeship that made him an artist.

Ambitious to try his fortune in the New World, he came to America. He "Saw America First," and settled after a long tour in Chicago. There he made rapid progress. He added modern, up-to-the-minute ideas to his thorough training.

He soon was made superintendent of one of the largest and finest tailoring establishments in Chicago. "Efficiency" and "Mastery" were the words used by his employers in describing him. He had become a factor in the world of good clothing.

He returned to Sweden after several years of life in America to visit his parents. Returning to America he brought with him his brother Arthur, who also had served an apprenticeship with their father. They saw the opportunities of the West and came to Salt Lake, establishing the tailoring firm of Johnson Brothers, tailors, in 1913.

CHARLES ALBERT BIRTCH.

THE term of "Colonel" comes more nearly rightfully to Charles A. Birtch, than to many others, for in the pioneer days he saw six years of frontier work as a government scout, under the command of William F. Cody, known to the world as "Buffalo Bill."

Charles A. Birtch is a son of Thomas Birtch, native Kentuckian; and Sarah Carl Birtch, native of St. Mary's, Ontario, Canada. He was born at Louisville, Ky., October 17, 1857. He was a student at the Louisville High school and was graduated from St. Mary's, Ontario, Canada, High school with the class of 1875.

Entering the scout service under "Buffalo Bill" in 1882, he served six years in that capacity in Arizona, New Mexico, California and Oregon. He was involved in many skirmishes and suffered several slight wounds. In Arizona he was detailed to protect small settlements and mining camps from Indian raiders. After the Indians had been subdued, he became a horse dealer, handling thoroughbreds. He lived in Seattle from 1888 to 1892 and then went to New York opening a pool room on 29th street between Broadway and Sixth Avenue. Two years later he went to Hot Springs, Ark., and had charge of the Southern Club for eight winters, and was with Canfield at Saratoga for seven summers. He managed a club at Chesapeake Beach, Md., for three years and then drifted west again. He located at Colorado Springs for a time, and came to Utah with the rush to the Uinta Indian reservation when it was opened.

Colonel Birtch is married, but has no children. He is a member of the Pike's Peak, Country and Driving Clubs at Colorado Springs.

OTTO E. BRANNING

OTTO E. BRANNING was a sign writer. Then he went into business for himself. He sold beans at 10 cents a dish, and in twelve years made $84,000 at that occupation, and saved most of it. "The Chili King" was born at Logansport, Ind., in 1860. His parents were Ferdinand and Mary Kiefer Branning. The future chili king lived in poverty in his childhood, and his education was gained between 1871 and 1873 in a little red school house on a hill.

He left school at the age of 13 years and shifted for himself. He learned sign writing in the school of experience, and came to Utah in 1901. His father, who was a cobbler and shoemaker in Colfax, Indiana, was unable to give the youth financial aid, so he proceeded to help himself, with the result that has built up a splendid business.

Mr. Branning married Miss Lucy Haier, and they have one son and one daughter, Lillian Emma Branning, 26 years of age, and Ralph Ivan Branning, 22 years of age.

As a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Order of Owls, Mr. Branning has a wide fraternal acquaintance. His place of business is at 103 and 105 East Second South street, Semloh Hotel building.

Mr. Branning is a life member of the Don't Worry Club, and says he is an ardent collector of United States coins and current coins for the reason that most people have them and are willing to part with them. He is not interested in politics.

EDWARD DAIGORO HASHIMOTO

TO THE question: "Who is the best known and the most influential member of the Japanese colony in Utah?" the answer undoubtedly is Edward Diagoro Hashimoto, of Salt Lake, merchant and importer of oriental goods. He is the recognized leader of his countrymen in the state and his activities always have been for the betterment of conditions among them. Everywhere throughout the intermountain region and in fact the entire west, where there are natives of the Flowery Kingdom, he is well and favorably known. He was born in Japan on November 24, 1875. His parents are Seki Hashimoto and Tomekichi Hashimoto.

Believing there were greater opportunities for him in the United States, young Hashimoto left Japan in 1890 for this country. Arriving here he made the best of every opportunity presented and within a comparatively short time had acquired a splendid knowledge of English, both spoken and written. He was employed in various positions, principally as office boy and clerk in stores for a number of years, and finally went into business for himself in Salt Lake. The E. D. Hashimoto company, of which he is president, operates a large general merchandising and importing business at its store on South Temple street.

Mr. Hashimoto is a director of the Farmers' & Stockgrowers' bank of Salt Lake and is interested in various industrial and financial projects.

Mr. Hashimoto is married. His wife formerly was Lois Hide Niiya. To them was born one son, Edward Ichiro Hashimoto, now 5 years old.

JOHN R. EDGHEILL

JOHN R. EDGHEILL, former State senator from Juab county, is one of the most progressive citizens of Utah. He is the son of John and Harriet Edgheill and was born at Nephi, Utah, February 6, 1866. He received a common school education and then became an apt student in the school of practical experience. He followed various vocations and finally specialized in the raising of live stock and in the wool growing industry.

Mr. Edgheill is a big sheep owner and also has extensive real estate interests. He long has been recognized as one of the most public spirited citizens of his native city, Nephi. In politics, he is a Republican. Members of his party honored him by electing him to the State senate, where he served creditably from 1911 to 1915. He was active in the State's law making body and at all times stood for measures which he thought would prove of benefit to the whole people.

Mr. Edgheill is married, his wife's maiden name having been Alice Udall. The following children were born to that union: Jacquita, 25 years old; L. U., 23; Louise, 20; Alice, 13, and David Edgheill, 6. The family home is at 1344 Fillmore street, Nephi.

Mr. Edgheill takes a keen interest in public affairs and always may be counted among the boosters for a greater destiny for his home State.

HARRY B. COLE

RANKING high among the best known stock brokers of the state is Harry B. Cole, 332 Judge Building, Salt Lake City. Mr. Cole has been a member of the Salt Lake Stock Exchange for many years, and enjoys the confidence of a large and growing clientele. No man in the state, perhaps, is better informed on both listed and unlisted mining properties, and his advice is much sought by dealers in stocks. Mr. Cole is the son of Thomas H. Cole and Sarah J. Cole, and was born in Pennsylvania, January 10, 1860.

Following completion of the common school courses, Mr. Cole attended Duff's college at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, from which institution he was graduated in 1881. About eight years later, he obeyed an impulse which had been gaining momentum for some time and came to the great west, taking up his residence in Salt Lake. During the greater part of the time since then he has followed the stock brokerage business. In addition to mining stocks, Mr. Cole now is also engaged in handling real estate. He is heavily interested in the Salt Lake Realty Owners company, which has valuable real estate holdings in the city. He also is a big stockholder in the Fortuna Gold Queen Mining company and the Addie Mining company.

Mr. Cole is a Shriner, belonging to Wasatch Consistory. He is married, his wife's name being Emma W. Cole. In politics he is Republican.

GEORGE A. SNOW

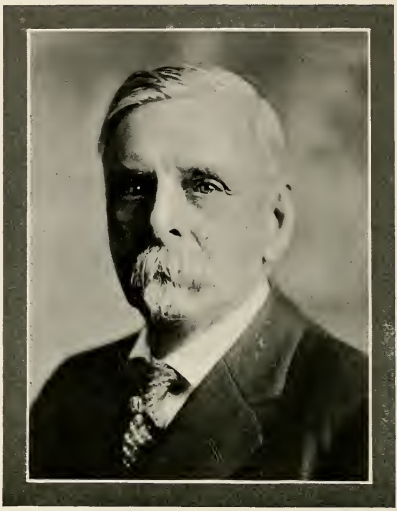
GEORGE A. SNOW, progressive citizen of the capital city of Utah, has attained an enviable reputation as promoter and builder of irrigation projects, including the colonization of vast tracts of virgin land. He is the son of Artimesia Benson Snow and Erastus Snow, and was born at St. George, Utah, October 31, 1863. He acquired the essential rudiments of education in the grade schools of Utah. This education was supplemented by six months' study at the Brigham Young university and three months at the University of Utah. Then he started a course in the great school of experience, where he is still a most painstaking student.

Mr. Snow is president of the Snow-Moody Development company; vice-president of the Delta Land & Water company, and vice-president of the Western Securities company. At present he is engaged in pushing to completion the great irrigation project of the Delta Land & Water company at Delta in the southern part of the State.

Mr. Snow is a member of the B. P. O. E. No. 85 at Salt Lake and is also a member of the Alta and Commercial clubs. In politics, he is a Republican.

Mr. Snow is married, his wife's maiden name having been Effie Luvera Stoddard. Three children were born to that union: Luvera Snow Gentsch, 25 years old; Russell Benson Snow, 21 years old, and Allen Campbell Snow (deceased). The latter, if living, would be 23 years old.

Mr. Snow is an ardent booster for a greater Salt Lake and Utah.



C. W. SHORES

GREAT success in the capture of criminals through many years of service earned for C. W. Shores the appointment as chief of police of Salt Lake City. He was formerly head of the detective force of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad company and chief of the special agents for the Globe Express company. Mr. Shores was born in Detroit, Michigan, about 53 years ago. His early life was passed in Kansas, where he was engaged in the cattle business. He began police work in 1883, when he was elected sheriff of Gunnison county, Kansas. For four terms, or eight years, he served in that capacity. During his term as sheriff, he claimed $4000 in reward money offered by the railroads for the capture of train bandits. In addition he received $1000 in rewards from the government for important captures.

Mr. Shores' success as sheriff brought him a reputation as a detective. On quitting the public service, he was given employment by the Rio Grande Express company, with headquarters at Grand Junction. He has been eminently successful in running down criminals for railroads and express companies. In 1886, he held the trail of four train robbers for three months, finally landing each of them in the federal prison at Laramie. Following the Cota Paxi train robbery, he trailed the three robbers for forty-three days, and effected their arrest and conviction. He met with similar success in bringing to account the principals in numerous other robberies.

Mr. Shores is married, his wife's maiden name having been Hattie Stephenson. Two sons, now 32 and 24 years old, were born to the union. Mr. Shores is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

EUGENE M. GRADY

WHEN the automobile industry was yet in its infancy, Eugene M. Grady was acquiring the rudiments of knowledge regarding spark plugs, carburetor, transmission, clutch, etc., and he is still keeping in touch with the latest developments in this great industry. Mr. Grady is vice-president and manager of the Grady Motor company, which has excellent quarters at 457-61 South Main street. He is considered one of the best informed automobile men in the western country.

Mr. Grady was associated with a number of large automobile concerns in the east for a number of years prior to coming west, and the information gained in the actual making of cars now is proving of great value to him in his business here. The Grady Motor company has had the agency for Reo pleasure cars and trucks for about four years in the territory embracing Utah, southern Idaho and western Wyoming. The great number of cars of this make in use in this territory is a tribute to the merit of the cars sold and the efficiency of Mr. Grady's selling force.

The growth of the business of the Grady Motor company, which has more than kept pact with the growth of the automobile business in the city generally, necessitated the securing of larger quarters. Now the firm is at its new South Main location, which is fully equipped with modern machinery. Factory experts are employed to give the very best service to Reo owners. One of the features of equipment is the turn table, which permits of the easy handling of cars and conserves space.

JOHN ANDREAS WIDTSOE

PROMINENT among the leading educators of the west is John Andreas Widtsoe, for more than eight years president of the Agricultural College of Utah at Logan. Dr. Widtsoe is an authority on farming, and his services are in great demand as a lecturer. He was born on the Island of Froyen, Norway, January 31, 1872, and is the son of John A. and Anna C. Gaarden-Widtsoe. His early education was obtained in the common schools of Norway.

Dr. Widtsoe came to Utah while a boy. He attended the normal department of Brigham Young college, from which he was graduated in 1891. Then he went to Harvard, where he obtained the degree B. S. in 1894, following which he captured the degrees of A. M. and Ph. D. from the University of Gottingen in 1899. He took a post-graduate course at the Polytechnicum, Zurich, finishing in 1900. He was traveling fellow of the Graduate School of Harvard University, 1898-1900.

Dr. Widtsoe was married to Leah Eudora Dunford of Salt Lake City on June 1, 1898. From 1894 to 1905 he was chemist at the Utah Experiment station, and from 1895 to 1905 was professor of chemistry at the Utah Agricultural college. From 1900 to 1905 he served also as director of the Utah Experiment station. He was principal of the school of agriculture at the Brigham Young university from 1905 to 1907. In the latter year he was appointed president of the Agricultural College of Utah, which position he still holds.

Dr. Widtsoe is a member of the American Society of Agronomy, American Breeders' association, Society for Promotion of Agricultural Science, and numerous other societies. He was president of the International Dry Farming congress in 1912, and is the author of several books on farming.

ANDREW PAPPAS.

SOME of the sturdiest adopted sons of the greatest Republic come from the ancient kingdom of Greece, the land of song and story. Among these sons, who crossed "the seven seas" to reach the land of promise is Andrew Pappas.

Born at Argus, Greece in 1877, he received the elementary education of the common schools, after which he entered the gymnasium or high school at Naflion, Greece, attending that institution from 1893 to 1898, being graduated in the latter year. For several years Mr. Pappas followed the profession of teaching. He taught for five years, and then, in 1903, came to Utah.

Mr. Pappas is today engaged in the merchandise business. Like many of his countrymen who have come to the United States, he has achieved marked success in business and has accumulated a comfortable fortune. His occupation as merchant, has won for him a good name, as well as an enviable income, and so well is he admired by his fellow Greek-Americans, that he has been chosen president of the Greek community of Utah. This position carries with it much responsibility. For he is at the head of a large number of people, who are strangers here, many of them just arrived, and needing the guidance and assistance of one who understands the customs of this new land.

Mr. Pappas comes of good stock in the "Mother Country of the World," his father being Athanasias Pappas and his mother, Constantina F. Pappas. Mr. Pappas is not married.

EMIL S. LUND

NO ONE is better known in the state of Utah than is Emil S. Lund, both from a public and a private standpoint. Mr. Lund was born in Copenhagen in 1850, coming to Utah when 19 years of age. Since his arrival here he has followed the building trade. Mr. Lund has also been noticeably active in state political affairs, and has continually been a strong advocate of free public schools. In 1890 he assisted in the organization of the Democratic party in Utah. Following this he went to California, returning here in 1897. His activities in Socialistic movements have been pronounced.

Mr. Lund became affiliated with the Progressive party, and since the organization of the latter has been a delegate to each convention. He stands strictly for reform measures and the general development of the state.

For two and one-half years Mr. Lund held the position of building inspector for Salt Lake City under the commission form of government. He is firmly in favor of legislation which will give Salt Lake home rule, and likewise the privilege of operating its own public utilities.

He also strongly advocates having all public work and improvements performed by residents of Salt Lake. Mr. Lund was elected as a state representative in 1914.

ALBERT NEUMEYER

EFFICIENCY in the manufacture of bakery products has been the keynote of work conducted throughout a number of years by Albert Neumeyer, proprietor of the Templeton bakery. Mr. Neumeyer believes that what is worth doing is worth doing well, and the painstaking care he devotes to his business is the result of training received in his native country, Germany. He was born in Crefeld, Germany, and is the son of Louise and Albert Neumeyer.

Mr. Neumeyer was denied the opportunity of attending higher institutions of learning, but succeeded in getting what would be called in this country a good common school education. While yet a boy he was forced more or less on his own resources, and learned through years of apprenticeship the bakery trade. This trade he has followed the greater part of his life.

Mr. Neumeyer came to Utah in 1901, and took up his residence in Salt Lake City. He engaged in the bakery business and soon established his own shop, the Templeton bakery. "Mother's Bread," the principal product of this bakery, has earned an enviable reputation throughout the city, and is considered one of the choicest products of the baker's art.

Mr. Neumeyer is married, and to the union were born the following children: Perry, 11 years old; Paul, 8, and Lucille, 5. The family home is at 728 Roosevelt avenue.

Mr. Neumeyer is a substantial member of the community, and lends every effort possible toward the upbuilding of the State.

SOLON SPIRO.

FRUGALITY and tenacity are the leading traits of the German race. This is shown in its truest sense in the case of the history of Solon Spiro. He is today one of the state's leading mine operators. But he had his beginning in business on a small scale.

Born in Kurnik, Germany, the son of Leopold Spiro and Ernestine (Ascheim) Spiro, he received his early education in Germany. In 1881 an uncle persuaded him to come to the United States and settle in Park City, Utah, and assist in conducting a large mercantile business. He began in Park City the study of ore reduction and the mining business.

With meagre capital he began investing along that line with remarkable success. Success crowned his efforts and by 1899 he was compelled to give up his mercantile pursuits to follow what had hitherto been a side issue with him. Among his greatest achievements in this new work was the formation of the Silver King Consolidated Mining Company, which is among the greatest of Park City's mining properties. He is president and general manager of the company. Another instance of his ability is shown in his undertaking to win out in the courts against the powerful Silver King Coalition Mines Company, a neighboring property at Park City. For more than three years the struggle lasted and he finally secured judgment for $750,000. The battle is remembered as one of the most notable legal contests in the mining annals of the west.

Mr. Spiro is president and general manager of the Little Bell Consolidated Mining Company, Park City; director of the Merchants' Bank of Salt Lake City, Utah, and is also a stockholder in many other mining and business enterprises.

He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Mr. Spiro is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Ida Mae Marks, of Cincinnati, Ohio. They were married there on October 16, 1909.

J. O. CARTER

AMONG the younger business men of the state few, if any, have made a more creditable record than J. O. Carter, vice-president and general manager of the Inter-Mountain Insurance company. Within less than a decade from the time he had completed his scholastic training at the University of Utah, where he graduated in 1903, he had established himself firmly in the local business world and has attained a position of prominence and influence. He organized the Inter-Mountain company four years ago. The institution now has five and a half million of life insurance in force with an income of approximately two hundred and twenty thousand per year.

Mr. Carter is also secretary and a member of the executive committee of the West States Mortgage Loan company. He was one of the main forces in organizing this company, which has assets of one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars. He is also a director of the Utah Consolidated Mining Company.

J. O. Carter was born at American Fork, Utah, in 1879, the son of James C. and Margaret Ann Carter, and grandson of William and Alice Houghton Greenwood, who were active, both in public and private life, in the early settlement and building up of American Fork. Mr. Carter married Miss M. Juliet Cutler, daughter of T. R. Cutler, and they have two children: Juliet Margaret, age 7, and Owen Cutler, age 2. Their home is at 918 South Fifth East, Salt Lake City. Mr. Carter is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club.

HENRY NEWELL

BORN in Ireland in 1844, Henry Newell has been long enough in the United States to be a good citizen, he says, and to this statement no one will make objection. Mr. Newell is one of the prominent mining men of Utah and his efforts in seeking for Old Mother Nature's hidden treasures have been most successful.

It was not long after his arrival in Utah that Mr. Newell was attracted to the Park City mining district. There he became interested in various properties, several of which developed into dividend payers. His knowledge of that camp is probably without peer. He has been over practically every foot of ground and if the rocks had Christian names he would be able to call them all.

Mr. Newell is married. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Alta club and of No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. His home address is 951 East First South street.

Mr. Newell has followed the mining game the greater part of his life and to him it has paid well. He is a director of the Silver King Coalition Mines company, having been elected to the board to fill the position made vacant by the death of Windsor V. Rice.

Mr. Newell is a large property holder in Salt Lake, having invested some of his mine earnings in business blocks and other improved realty. He is a progressive citizen and interested in all movements looking to a greater city. In political faith he is a Republican.

DR. SAMUEL H. ALLEN.

ONE of the best known physicians in Utah is Dr. Samuel H. Allen. He was born August 15, 1862, at Mount Pleasant, Utah. His parents were Samuel Allen and Mrs. Harriet Moore Allen. Dr. Allen comes of old English stock, the Allens having lived in Radcliffe, England, before 1674. Dr. Allen worked on his father's farm until he reached his majority and was graduated as a normal student from the University of Utah in 1880. He taught school from 1881 to 1883. He was a missionary to England for the Mormon church from 1883 to 1885. He returned to this country, entered Brigham Young University at Provo, and was graduated in 1887. He was the first principal of the Mount Pleasant high school, in 1887 and 1888.

His medical education was received at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Baltimore, at Johns Hopkins University and at the London University medical department. He also attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, Md., from 1888 to 1891.

In 1902 Dr. Allen came to Salt Lake City. He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and the Ensign Club. He served two terms in the Mt. Pleasant city council and was also district school trustee. He is a life patron of the International Council of Women. Dr. Allen is a member of the American Medical Association of Vienna, Austria; medical director of the Inter-Mountain Life Insurance Company; a director of the West States Mortgage & Loan Company, and a director of the New Castle Reclamation Company.

He was resident physician of the Maryland Maternity Hospital, 1890-1891; was Utah county physician, 1893 to 1898, and surgeon of the Rio Grande Western Railway from 1893 to 1901. He is a member of the Utah State Board of Medical Examiners and the State Board of Health. He belongs to the Salt Lake County and Utah State Medical Societies; and is a member of the American Medical Association and a life member of the Surgeons' club of Rochester, New York.

GEORGE M. CANNON

GEORGE M. CANNON, cashier of the Salt Lake Security & Trust company, and for years one of the most prominent real estate operators in the state, was a Christmas gift to his parents, Sarah M. Monsely-Cannon and Angus M. Cannon, at St. George in 1861, and has the distinction of being the first white boy born in the chief city of Utah's Dixie.

Mr. Cannon was gradnated from the University of Deseret, now the University of Utah, in 1881. Soon after attaining his majority he was elected county recorder of Salt Lake county, and held that position for six years, during which time he copyrighted and turned over to the county the system of abstracts still in use. At the expiration of his term he entered the real estate business and then on January 1, 1891, became cashier of Zion's Savings Bank and Trust company, holding that position until October 1, 1906. During his incumbency deposits increased from $850,000 to $4,700,000.

In politics Mr. Cannon is a Republican. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention, was elected to the State Senate and subsequently was chosen president of the first State Senate of Utah.

In 1906 Mr. Cannon resigned as cashier of the Zion's Savings Bank and Trust company, organizing the real estate company known as George M. Cannon company. At the solicitation of the Salt Lake Security and Trust company, he accepted the cashiership of that institution July 12, 1915, turning over the management of George M. Cannon company to his sons, the older of whom, George M. Cannon, Jr., was graduated in 1915 from the law department of the University of Chicago.

Mr. Cannon was married to Addie Morris and their union was blessed with nine children.

SAMUEL AUSTIN WHITNEY

CASHIER of one of the largest banks in the west, Samuel Austin Whitney has been known in the western states, especially in Utah, since his boyhood, as one who could be trusted in any manner and at any time. His business connections have continually placed him in positions of trust, and those who have had the opportunity of coming in contact with him have found Mr. Whitney true to his word in every respect.

Since having been connected with McCornick and Company, Bankers, Mr. Whitney has made hundreds of friends. He is always ready to lend a helping hand to any one that will show that he is endeavoring to help himself.

Mr. Whitney, son of Mary Cravath Whitney and Horace K. Whitney, was born February 12, 1877, in Salt Lake City. His early education was acquired in Salt Lake City. Following his public school and high school education Mr. Whitney attended the University of Utah, entering that institution in 1890. He finished his course there in 1895, after which he became connected with the firm which he now represents.

Three children, namely Katheryn Whitney, 13 years of age; Hardin Whitney, 11 years of age, and Samuel Whitney, Jr., 3 years of age, were born following his marriage to Miss Katheryn Hardin. Mr. Whitney has always been active in the Republican party. He is an ardent worker for the Republican cause. As a club member Mr. Whitney is well known and highly esteemed. He is a member of the Alta club, the County club, the Salt Lake Tennis club and the Salt Lake Commercial club. In addition to his duties as cashier of the McCornick bank, Mr. Whitney is the treasurer of the state board of education.

SAMUEL R. THURMAN

LEADERSHIP in a great political party and the personal management of a state campaign, carries responsibilities of an unusual order. Men are chosen to bear these responsibilities only when they are known by their fellow men to have unusual ability, keen insight into human nature, and the gift of magnetism and leadership.

Samuel R. Thurman has these qualities. He has demonstrated them as state chairman of the Democratic party in Utah. He was born May 6, 1850, in LaRue county, Kentucky. He was a son of William Thurman and Mary Brown Thurman. His father died during Samuel R. Thurman's infancy. Mr. Thurman's paternal forbears were preachers, farmers and lawyers; on his mother's side he counts the famous Captain Yates of Revolutionary memory as his forefather.

It was natural that Mr. Thurman should have chosen the law as his profession. He completed the academic course in Sonora Academy, Kentucky, and later the law course in the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. He came to Utah in 1869, and two years later married Miss Isabel Karren. Their sons and daughters are: Richard B., William T., Samuel D., Victor E., Allen G. Thurman, Mrs. Mabel Davis, Mrs. Margaret Irvine and Mrs. Lydia Reed.

Mr. Thurman has been a leader in Democratic politics in Utah since early manhood. He was the first man to run for Congress on any national party ticket, "the Sagebrush Democratic" ticket, in Utah. He was elected state chairman in 1912 and was re-elected in 1914. He was assistant United States district attorney during President Cleveland's last term; mayor of Lehi when he was 24 years of age; county recorder and county attorney of Utah county; city attorney of Lehi, American Fork, Pleasant Grove, Provo, Springville, Spanish Fork and Payson; he was a member of the Constitutional convention and espoused the cause of woman suffrage, and he has been a member of the legislature during several terms.

TILLMAN D. JOHNSON

TILLMAN D. JOHNSON, recognized as one of the most able lawyers in the state, recently was appointed judge of the Federal court for the District of Utah by President Wilson. He is a brilliant orator, a convincing pleader and one of the strong pillars of the Democracy in Utah. Judge Johnson was born in Tennessee in 1858, and is the son of C. M. Johnson and Mary Catherine Davis-Johnson. Following his completion of the public school course in his native city, he attended the Cumberland university at Lebanon, Tennessee, from which he was graduated in 1880.

Nine years later, Judge Johnson came to Utah and took up his residence at Ogden. There he put out his shingle as attorney-at-law, and within a few years had attained a good practice. Because of his keen wit and ready command of language, he won a reputation as an orator of ability and did considerable campaigning for the Democratic party. His opinion always has had much weight in party councils and the popularity he gained, combined with a thorough knowledge of the law, resulted in his choice as federal judge.

Judge Johnson was married to Miss Fannie McCall in Tennessee. They have three children: Wade M. Johnson, 30 years old; Ralph M. Johnson, 24 years old, and Ruth Johnson, 20 years old.

HENRY HERMANN ROLAPP

AMONG the most noted men in the State of Utah is Judge Henry Hermann Rolapp, lawyer, financier and authority on the sugar beet industry. He is the son of Fritz and Anna (Thiesen) Rolapp, and was born in Flensburg, Germany, March 22, 1860. His early education was obtained in the German grammar schools and Realschule. He left Germany in 1877 and lived in Liverpool, England, until 1880, when he came to the United States, settling in Salt Lake City in June of that year. He was admitted to the Utah bar in 1881 and in 1884 obtained an LL.B. degree from the University of Michigan.

Following his return to Utah, Judge Rolapp took up the practice of law at Ogden. On December 9, 1885, he was married to Martha Horrocks of that city. From 1885 to 1887 he was assessor and from 1887 to 1891 assistant county attorney of Weber county. He was cashier of the Utah Loan & Trust company from 1892 to 1895. During a period of seven years, from 1888 to 1895, he served as a member of the State Board of Corrections and as a Supreme Court jury commissioner.

Judge Rolapp was appointed justice of the Supreme Court of Utah territory in November, 1895, and when Utah was admitted as a state, January 1, 1896, was elected judge of the Second Judicial district, serving until January 1, 1905. In 1904 he was delegate to the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists at St. Louis.

At present Judge Rolapp is associate general counsel of the Great Western Sugar company, Denver, Colo.; president of the United States Sugar Manufacturers' association; president of the U. S. Beet Seed company; director of the Cameron Coal company, and regent of the University of Utah. He divides his time between Denver and Salt Lake.

ORSON H. HEWLETT

MEN who have invested their money in manufacturing enterprises in Utah have done much toward the general advancement of people in the state. Busy factories and widespread posperity go hand in hand. Among the manufacturers whose name is known in almost every household in Utah is Orson H. Hewlett, secretary-treasurer and general manager of Hewlett Brothers company. Mr. Hewlett is a progressive citizen, a wide-awake booster and at all times has the interests of Salt Lake and of Utah at heart. He can always be found in the thick of the fray when there is a battle on for the improvement of civic conditions. He is the son of Mary W. Hewlett and George W. Hewlett, and was born in Bristol, England, in 1869. He was brought to Utah when two years old and here he has resided ever since.

For many years Mr. Hewlett has occupied a prominent place in public life. He was president of the Utah Association of Credit Men for three terms and president of the Manufacturers' Association of Utah for two terms. He is an ardent motorist and was elected president of the Automobile Club of Utah. He served also as a director of the Utah State Fair association. Though not seeking political preferment, he was elected as one of Salt Lake county's representatives in the state legislature.

Mr. Hewlett is married, his wife's maiden name being Emily Anderson. Three children born to the union are: Grace, 23 years old; Verne O., 21, and Lester F., 19. The family home is at 125 East Seventh South street.

E. M. ALLISON, JR.

RECOGNIZED for his sound judgment on legal problems, E. M. Allison, Jr., member of the law firm of Van Cott, Allison and Riter, with offices in the Walker Bank building, is one of the best known lawyers of the state. He was born at Lehi, Utah, December 13, 1863, and is the son of Edward M. and Eliza Allison. Mr. Allison completed the common school work, following which he attended the University of Utah at Salt Lake. He was graduated with the class of 1885. Having had a leaning toward the profession of lawyer since his early youth, Mr. Allison then took up the study of law and was admitted to practice.

Mr. Allison is a member of the Masonic order and of the Alta, University and Commercial clubs. He is a Republican and his views have always had great weight in the councils of the party.

Mr. Allison was married to Miss Rowene Cook and there are three children as issue, Philip, Edward and Rowene. The family lives at 732 East First South street, Salt Lake.

Mr. Allison has been a resident of the capital city of the state for many years and here he is known as one of the most influential men of the community. He is an ardent booster for the city and the state and is interested in all movements for the general good.

While Mr. Allison is best known in Salt Lake, he is popular throughout the whole state and in fact the whole intermountain country.

WILLIAM N. WILLIAMS

WILLIAM NEWJENT WILLIAMS, state senator and owner of the Co-operative Furniture company of Salt Lake, was born in Carmarthenshire, South Wales, March 17, 1851. His parents were among the early converts to the Mormon faith and Mr. Williams emigrated with them in 1861, coming by boat and rail to Nebraska and crossing the plains with ox teams to Salt Lake, Mr. Williams walking most of the way.

Mr. Williams engaged in many of the occupations of the pioneer, attending school during the winter season, including a course in Morgan's college and the University of Deseret, now the University of Utah. He was a carpenter and builder and in 1883 was one of the organizers of the Co-operative Furniture company, of which he is now sole owner.

Identified actively with the development of Utah, Mr. Williams is largely interested in mining, real estate and other industries. Following are some of the companies in which he is interested: The Herald-Republican Publishing company, Hotel Utah Operating company, Utah Oil Refining company, Superior Mining company, and the Demijohn Consolidated Mining company. He is a member of the Commercial club, the Bonneville club, director in the Cambrian society, and a regent of the University of Utah. He has been prominent and active in the affairs of the Mormon church, serving as missionary to Wales in 1877 to 1879, and returning with a party of 625 converts.

An active and consistent Republican, he has served as representative and state senator since 1900.

Mr. Williams was married to Clarissa Smith July 16, 1877, and they have the following children living: Clarissa W. Van Law, Sarah W. Wilson, Josephine Williams, Eva Williams, Georgia Williams, Bathsheba Williams and Lyman S. Williams.

Mr. Williams has devoted much time and means in the interest of civic improvements and to the promotion of music and higher education. He is genial, sympathetic and generous and is beloved and respected by a wide circle of friends and associates.

EDWIN LESSEL CARPENTER.

EDWIN L. CARPENTER was born in Bloomington, Ill., August 22, 1860, but has been closely identified with Utah and her industries for so many years that Illinois can have scarcely any claim upon him now. He is a son of Erastus S. and Martha B. Carpenter, and among his ancestors was Major General Carpenter, founder of Elmyra, N. Y. He has followed the mining profession virtually all his life, and though he has never attended college, and cannot append a title or degree to his signature, he has risen to the top of his profession and is recognized as one of the state's most competent experts in the coal mining industry.

Mr. Carpenter came to Salt Lake City in 1882, remaining twenty years here, and identifying himself closely with the development of the coal industry of the state. He then left, returning in June, 1912, and now makes his home in Salt Lake City.

Mr. Carpenter is president of the Consolidated Fuel Company, one of the largest coal mining corporations in the west, and is also president of all of the affiliated and subsidiary companies. The list of his corporation connections is a long one. He is a Republican in politics.

Mrs. Carpenter was formerly Myra Cameron. Two sons were born to the family. They are James R. Carpenter, 27 years of age and E. Leon Carpenter, 24 years of age.

Mr. Carpenter is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and has attained the thirty-second degree. He is a member of the Exchange Club, Boston; the Brae Burn Country Club, Boston; the Rocky Mountain Club, New York City; the Lawyers' Club, New York City; the Alta Club, the Commercial Club, the Rotary Club, the Transportation Club, and the Country Club of Salt Lake City.

FRANK ERATH

AMONG the successful business men of Utah is Frank Erath of 488 East Ninth South street, Salt Lake. He is the son of Frank and Josephine Erath and was born in Wurtenburg, Germany. He attended the common schools of his native city, from which he was graduated. Early in youth he started to learn the trade of flour milling and showed such remarkable aptitude that he soon was listed among the master millers.

Mr. Erath came to Utah in 1884. In 1887 he was married to Miss Ella Bergel, and there are two sons issue of that marriage, Frank Erath, 26 years old, and Amos Erath, 23 years old.

Mr. Erath is a 32nd degree Mason and also a member of the Knights of Pythias. He is a Republican in national politics.

Mr. Erath is well known as a conservative, substantial business man of Salt Lake. He is always a consistent booster for a greater Salt Lake and a greater Utah, and can always be found among the ranks of those whose watchword is "Progress."

Mr. Erath is principal proprietor and manager of the Superior Baking company, which has a large plant at 935 Denver street, Salt Lake. His thorough knowledge of the business and his strong executive ability has placed the company among the big concerns of the state.

WILLIAM CHARLES ANDREW VISSING

AMONG the citizens of Salt Lake City who, years ago, had faith in its future; who saw possibilities for its growth and advancement; who encouraged its development, who has shown his faith by his works, is W. C. A. Vissing. William Charles Andrew Vissing was born in Veile, Denmark, August 23, 1874, the son of W. C. A. Vissing and Anna Johanna Jacobsen Busk Vissing. At the age of eleven he accompanied his parents to Utah. Not long after his arrival here he organized the first Newboys' union, and was its first president and treasurer. This was in 1887. At the age of sixteen years he became an apprentice in the plumbing trade. After becoming a journeyman he had charge of some of the most important work in that line in the state.

Mr. Vissing was for a period of about eight years in the employ of George G. Doyle & Co., Plumbing and Heating, and then became Mr. Doyle's partner.

On March 28, 1898, Mr. Vissing married Jessie A. Covey, who died April 2, 1915. A daughter, Daryl, is the result of the union.

In the spring of 1907 Mr. Vissing saw an opportunity in the erection, sale and management of apartment houses, and, meeting with success, has continued in this business until today, being recognized as an expert in the construction of flats and apartment houses. He has erected both for himself and others splendid buildings that house upward of 1,500 families.

Perhaps the most prominent of apartment houses erected by Mr. Vissing is the Fairmont, No. 50 East Fifth South street. He is now engaged in the construction of the large Covey apartments on East South Temple. Mr. Vissing takes a keen interest in civic affairs. He belongs to no fraternal organization and takes no active part in politics, but at the same time he is in the front ranks of Salt Lake City's real boosters.

ANTHON H. LUND.

REVERED by the members of his own faith, and honored by men and women of differing faiths, Anthon H. Lund, of the first presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, holds a remarkable place in the respect and admiration of the people of Utah.

President Lund is a son of Henrik Lund and Anna Christina Anderson Lund, and is a native of Aalborg, Denmark. He was born May 15, 1844, and despite his three-score years and ten, bears many burdens of trust and responsibility with a light heart, and a smile that bespeaks broad sympathies and a tender heart.

In addition to rendering such notable service to his church that he has risen to the rank of counsellor to the president, President Lund has served his state. He is a member of the board of regents of the University of Utah; and is a member also of the state capitol commission, which has charge of the construction of the capitol. He is closely identified with the church school system, being president of the board of trustees of the Latter-day Saints' university and president of the board of trustees of Snow academy. He also is vice president of Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution, and chairman of its executive board.

President Lund gained his early education by attending the common schools of his native town for eight years. He came to Utah in 1862, and married Sarah A. Peterson. Their sons and daughters are Anthony C. Lund, 43 years of age; Henry C. Lund, 41 years of age; Herbert Y. Lund, 37 years of age; Othniel Lund, 32 years of age; A. William Lund, 28 years of age; G. Cannon Lund, 23 years of age, and Eva A. Lund, 21 years of age. The family residence is at 127 West North Temple street, Salt Lake City.

HANS A. PEDERSEN

EQUIPPED with a superlative understanding of the weak and the strong points in the characters of children, Hans A. Pedersen of Logan, Utah, has made a commendable record as judge of the juvenile court of the First Judicial district. His success in handling successfully many a perplexing case he attributes to great measure to the fact that he has reared a large family himself, thus gaining invaluable experience. Mr. Pedersen was born in the northern part of Norway, "the land of the midnight sun," on August 13, 1862, and resided there until he was 19 years old, when he came to Utah, arriving here in September, 1881.

Mr. Pedersen attended the Brigham Young college at Logan and on leaving this institution hearkened to the "call of the land." He followed farming for a number of years, acquiring big holdings, and now is considered one of the most successful farmers in Cache valley. Later, he launched into the business of handling real estate and loans, in which business he now is engaged, in addition to looking after his farming interests.

In politics Mr. Pedersen is a Republican and has been honored by election to the state legislature and to the city judgeship of Logan. At present he is judge of the juvenile court at Logan.

Mr. Pedersen is one of the most influential citizens in his community. He is connected with the First National Bank of Logan, is director of the Magdalena Land company and is manager of H. A. Pedersen & company.

Mr. Pedersen is married, his wife's maiden name having been Mary Jeppesen. To them were born ten children, nine of whom are living.

FRANKLIN SNYDER RICHARDS

FRANKLIN SNYDER RICHARDS was born at Salt Lake City, Utah, June 20, 1849. His parents, Franklin Dewey Richards and Jane Snyder Richards, were pioneers of 1848. He was educated in the public and private schools. Mr. Richards married Emily S. Tanner. He was principal of one of the largest schools in Salt Lake City from 1866 to 1869, when he removed to Ogden, where he served as County Clerk and Recorder for Weber county from 1870 till 1877. He was admitted to the bar in 1874 and filled the office of prosecuting attorney from that time till his removal to Salt Lake City in 1884. He was city attorney for Salt Lake City, from 1884 till 1890, and since that time has been special counsel for the city in a number of important suits. He has been general counsel for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints since 1880, and has represented the church and its members in several cases before the Supreme Court of the United States, involving important questions of constitutional law. He has been in active practice since 1874 and is attorney for Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution, the American Smelting & Refining company, and other large business concerns in Utah. He was a member of the Upper House of the Utah Legislature in 1884 and again in 1890. As president of the legislative council he appointed the committee which drafted our first free school law. He was a member of the Constitutional Conventions of 1882 and 1887 and was sent to Washington, D. C., as a delegate, to present the proposed constitutions to Congress and urge the admission of Utah into the Union. He was also a delegate to the convention which framed the constitution upon which the state was finally admitted into the Union. Since that time he has devoted himself to the practice of his profession, and has declined to accept public office.

RT. REV. JOSEPH S. GLASS, C. M., D. D.

JOSEPH SARSFIELD GLASS, bishop of the Salt Lake diocese of the Roman Catholic church, was born March 13, 1874, in Bushnell, Illinois, his parents being James and Mary Edith Kelly-Glass. Less than a year before, on August 15, 1873, Father Scanlan entered Salt Lake to become the missionary rector of the largest parish in the United States, and following his death in the spring of 1915, Father Glass was appointed his successor.

Joseph Sarsfield Glass began his education in the parochial schools of Sedalia, Missouri, where he completed the course of St. Vincent's college, afterward taking up his studies in St. Mary's Apostolic college at Perryville, Missouri. Later he entered the novitiate of the Congregation of the Mission and became a student at St. Mary's seminary in Perry county, Missouri, in which institution he took a course in philosophy and theology. He was ordained a priest by Bishop George Montgomery in St. Vincent's church, Los Angeles, August 15, 1897.

After finishing his schooling in the United States, Bishop Glass went to Rome, where he became a student of philosophy and theology. He attended the University of the Propaganda and graduated from the University of Minerva in 1899 with the degree of D. D.

In June, 1901, he was appointed president of St. Vincent's college and pastor of St. Vincent's church at Los Angeles, where he remained until his appointment as Bishop of Salt Lake. As an orator, he is looked upon as the peer of any in the state. Wherever Bishop Glass has been called upon to work, there his Christian zeal and indomitable spirit proved his worth.

HYRUM L. MULLINER

WHEN Hyrum L. Mulliner was a youngster he burned with a desire for an advanced education and for professional training. Though his parents could not pay for his education, he found a way, and by sheer pluck and persistence won in his fight for intellectual development and mental training. He was born at Lehi, Utah, July 23, 1883, of Joseph S. and Emily A Woodard Mulliner. His parents moved to Iona and Idaho Falls, Idaho, where he was reared. His grandfather, Samuel Mulliner, came to Utah from Scotland, and erected an extensive tanning plant on the site now occupied by Walker's store, Main and Third South streets, Salt Lake City. Later the grandfather operated a grist mill at Lehi. This was one of the first grist mills in Utah.

H. L. Mulliner worked his way through the common schools by doing odd jobs to supply his clothing. Then he entered the classes of the L. D. S. high school and worked as a chore boy. After preparing for the University of Utah, he enrolled in that institution, and served as a chore boy for President C. W. Penrose, to earn his expenses. After graduating from the University of Utah he went to Chicago, entering in Chicago University Law School. His old habit of earning his way continued and during his law studies he taught accountancy in the Chicago Y. M. C. A. to meet his expenses.

Throughout his school life Mr. Mulliner was active in amateur athletics. He was manager of athletics in the L. D. S. high school, and after his school course there was finished, he was in charge of the business accountancy department for two or three years. He is a stockholder in several small and well founded corporations. He is married to Cornelia James, and they have three children: Richard, 5 years of age; Miriam, 2 years of age, and Frances, an infant.

Mr. Mulliner is a Democrat, and was elected county attorney of Salt Lake county on the fusion ticket in the election of 1914.

GEO. O. RELF

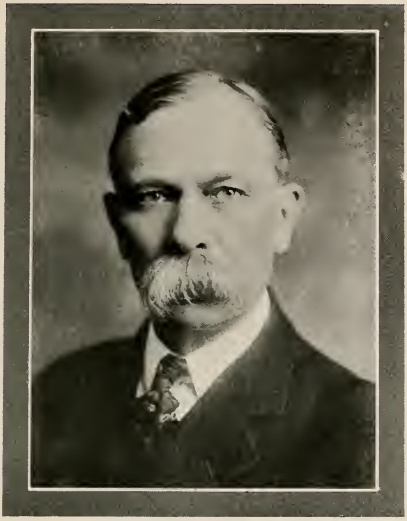
MANAGING a great hotel as a business and presiding over the destinies of a baseball club as a side issue, George O. Relf of Salt Lake City has his hands full, or nearly so, though he finds time for other activities as well. George O. Relf, one of the best known hotel men in America, was born at Sherman, New York, in 1877. His father was Orvis A. Relf and his mother was Anna C. Relf.

During 1895 and 1896 Mr. Relf attended Alleghany college, at Meadville, Pennsylvania, between two periods of activity in the hotel business. Virtually his entire life, since early manhood, has been spent in the hotel business, and he has mastered its infinite variety of intricate detail. He lived in Jamestown, New York, until 1899, and lived in Kansas City, Missouri, for ten years before he came to Salt Lake City in November, 1910. At the time he left Kansas City he was manager of the Hotel Baltimore.

Coming to Salt Lake City while the Hotel Utah, one of the most magnificent hostelries in the country, was still in process of construction, he assumed the duties of managing director of the Hotel Utah Operating company. Thousands of details of furnishing and equipment were under his personal supervision until the house was thrown open to the public, and he has continued to handle that big and complicated business since with unusual success.

Mr. Relf is married, his wife having been Miss Grace Fleming. Their first child, William Fleming Relf, was born February 13, 1913.

Mr. Relf is a member of Delta Tau Delta and Theta Nu Epsilon, college fraternities. He is a member of the Rotary club of Salt Lake City and of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City. In addition to being managing director of the Hotel Utah Operating company, he is a director of the Salt Lake Baseball club of the Pacific Coast league.



JOSEPH T. KINGSBURY

THE prestige Utah enjoys in an educational way is due in great measure to educators of the type of Dr. Joseph T. Kingsbury, president of the University of Utah. As president of the leading educational institution in the state, Dr. Kingsbury is known in circles of learning over the entire United States. He has lectured before many of the large colleges of the east and has won friends for the state by his masterly addresses. Dr. Kingsbury was born in East Weber, Utah, November 4, 1853, and is the son of Dorcus Adelia Moore-Kingsbury and Joseph C. Kingsbury. His ancestors came to America with John Winthrop and included among them was Governor William Bradford of Plymouth. Many of the ancestors fought in the war of the Revolution and the Civil war. In addition to soldiers, his forefathers included ministers, teachers and doctors of medicine.

Dr. Kingsbury attended the University of Utah, 1872-75; Cornell university, 1876-77, and did work with Wesleyan university, Bloomington, Ill., in absentia from 1898 to 1904. In 1891, he received the degree Ph.B., in 1892 that of A. M. and in 1894 Ph. D.

Dr. Kingsbury is a member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake, American Association for the Advancement of Science and numerous educational societies and associations. He is married, his wife's maiden name being Jane Mair. To this union were born the following children: Khalil M., J. Waldo, Eric M., Edith, Ruth and Orpha.

Dr. Kingsbury is a progressive citizen and a consistent booster for a greater Salt Lake and Utah. While formerly he was a Democrat, he is not affiliated with any political party at present.

COL. JOSEPH J. DAYNES, JR.

A GRADUATE of the Latter-day Saints University of Salt Lake City and later of the University of Utah, Joseph J. Daynes, Jr., has had a splendid educational equipment for a successful business and social career. Colonel Joseph J. Daynes, Jr., was born in Salt Lake City November 7, 1873, and is a son of Joseph J. and Jennie Daynes. His schooling was obtained in the city of his birth in the institutions already mentioned, and he entered upon his business career immediately upon leaving college.

Colonel Daynes is president and general manager of the Daynes-Beebe Music Company; he is president of the Inter-Mountain Electric Company; vice-president of the Fidelity Trust Company and is a director in the Deseret National Bank.

There are six children in his family. His wife, formerly Winnifred B. Woodruff, was a daughter of President Wilford Woodruff of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Colonel Daynes was lieutenant-colonel of the staff of Governor John C. Cutler for four years, and was re-appointed to that position by Governor William Spry, serving four years.

Colonel Daynes is a Republican in politics, and is deeply interested in the growth and welfare of his party. He is a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City, and is one of the most earnest and consistent workers in that organization for the commercial and industrial development of Salt Lake City and the State of Utah.

Because of his connection for many years with the Daynes-Beebe Music Company, one of the pioneers in the field of musical instruments and supplies, Mr. Daynes is widely known throughout the State.

JAMES MERCER KIRKHAM

THE Utah farmer is a state institution whose reputation and incidentally subscription list is nation wide. Its position today in the field of agricultural magazines is due to the enterprise of J. M. Kirkham, one of the leaders of Utah journalism. He has made an agricultural paper which is different. Its popularity is shown by its circulation list of over 15,000, which is not approached in the inter-mountain west.

Of sterling English stock—his grandfather died fighting with Nelson at Trafalgar—Kirkham himself was born in Lehi, Utah, November 18, 1872. His father was James Kirkham, and his mother, Martha Mercer.

Educated at the Lehi and Los Angeles High schools, Mr. Kirkham for a while occupied himself with mercantile pursuits. Soon, however, he felt the lure of printer's ink and entered journalism, in which he has made a notable success, first as the owner of the Lehi Banner and later with the Utah farmer.

The esteem in which he is held by his brother journalists was shown when he was elected and then re-elected without opposition as the president of the Utah Newspaper association. Also he is the secretary of the Utah Development League.

Mr. Kirkham was married some years ago to Miss Kate Woodhouse. They have nine children and live at Lehi, Utah.

TOM PAINTER

WHILE Tom Painter, prominent stockman and sportsman, is mayor of Evanston, Wyoming, the state of Utah claims him for her own during a season of each year at least. His figure is a familiar one on the streets of Salt Lake, where he is known by almost everybody on account of his keen interest in clean sports, especially the art of the squared circle. He has refereed scores of boxing arguments in this and other states, and has always given satisfaction to fans of the game. He is known to be absolutely fair in his decisions and a thorough sportsman of the first water. For a number of years past he has arranged boxing exhibitions of merit to take place in Salt Lake during the annual convention of the wool growers.

Tom Painter was born in Southampton, England, February 28, 1862, and is the son of Aaron Painter. When only nine years of age, he was brought to Wyoming, where, for the greater number of years since, he has made his home. He is married, his wife's maiden name being Jennie Downs. One son, Tom Painter, Jr., is issue of that marriage.

Mr. Painter has big sheep and cattle interests and has always taken a prominent part in the gatherings of men engaged in the livestock industry. For ten years he was a member of the board of county commissioners at Evanston, Wyoming. At the last city election, he was elected mayor of Evanston. In politics, he is a Republican.

Mr. Painter is a director of the Evanston National Bank. He has the distinction of being a life member of B. P. O. E. No. 85, at Salt Lake.

BRADFORD N. C. STOTT

AN ATTORNEY-AT-LAW who has hosts of friends throughout Salt Lake City and the state, one who is second to none in his profession as a lawyer, and a man that can at any time be depended upon when his services are needed, is Bradford N. C. Stott. He has an excellent clientele and those who have secured his services have been the ones who have become his most staunch friends. His principles and his upright manner in attending to his duties in connection with his profession have been the cause of many favorable comments.

Mr. Stott, son of Elsie A. Bradford and George Stott, was born in 1866 in Keosauqua, Iowa. His ancestors were very well known throughout the middle western states and have the credit of being one of the first families to settle in Iowa. The family have always followed the teachings of the Democratic party. Like his forefathers, Mr. Stott has always upheld the principles of the Democratic party, and is always the first to give his assistance in any manner that will be of service to the cause.

His early education was acquired in Iowa. His collegiate education was received at Valparaiso university, Valparaiso, Indiana, which institution he attended from 1889 to 1894, receiving the following degrees: B. S., 1889; A. B., 1890; M. S. and LL.B., 1893, and A. M., 1894.

Mr. Stott's arrival in Utah was in 1912, prior to which time he was married to Miss Emma N. Drast. Four children have been born; George F. Stott, 19 years of age; Desdemona Stott, 17 years of age; John H. Stott, 12 years of age, and Joseph D. Stott, 7 years of age.

As a member of fraternal societies Mr. Stott has gained much distinction. He is a well-known and enthusiastic member of Utah Consistory No. 1; Utah Commandery No. 1, Independent Order of Odd Fellows; Knights of the Maccabees, and the Modern Woodmen of America. Mr. Stott is also a well-known and ardent worker in matters in connection with the Salt Lake Commercial club.

HOYT SHERMAN

HOYT SHERMAN is a member of the Ohio Sherman family; his father, James Sherman, being a brother of General William Tecumseh Sherman, and of the Ohio Senator and Financial Secretary, John Sherman. His mother was Sophia Connell Sherman of Connellsville, Pennsylvania.

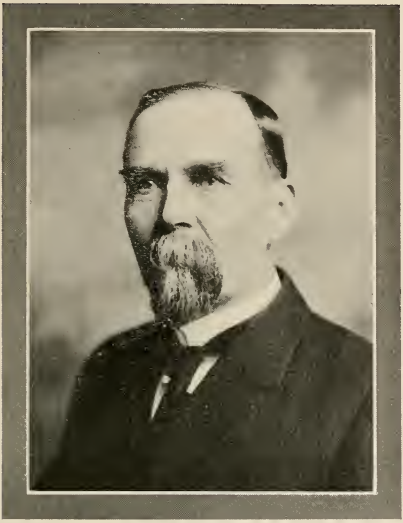
His father moved to Iowa in early days and Hoyt Sherman was born in Des Moines in 1851. He was graduated from the Des Moines high school in 1869 and turned his attention to financial and railway business. In 1874 he was married in Des Moines to Hattie M. Warner. He came to Salt Lake City in 1885 as general agent of the Union Pacific railway and took an active part in the business and policies of the then territory of Utah. In 1888 he was appointed by President Harrison as receiver of the United States land office, serving five years. He then was appointed by President Cleveland a member of the Utah commission.

The commission had charge of the election machinery of the territory and it was during his term that elections were held pertaining to the adoption of a state constitution, the selection of constitutional delegates and all the final requirements leading to statehood. In 1900 he was elected to the State Senate, serving until 1904.

At the death of Secretary Sherman in 1900, Hoyt Sherman assisted in the formation of the John Sherman Estate company, and became its president and manager.

The family in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Sherman consists of Eloise Sherman Gibson of Salt Lake City, Mrs. Laura Sherman Gray of Fairfax, California, and Roger Sherman of San Francisco.

Mr. Sherman is an old time Republican and takes an active interest in patriotic and historical societies. He has practically retired from business, and spends much of his time in travel in this country and abroad. His legal residence is at Salt Lake City.



JOHN C. SHARP

JOHN C. SHARP, business man and livestock raiser, son of Joseph Sharp and Jeannette Sharp, was born on the Kaw river, Kansas, May 28, 1850, and was brought by his parents to Salt Lake City in the same year. Joseph Sharp, his father, was a well-known freighter across the plains and the owner of a large number of livestock. He died in 1864.

John C. Sharp was educated in the schools of Salt Lake City. On February 12, 1872, he was married to Bethula Palmer and of this union two sons were born, Joseph Palmer Sharp and James Palmer Sharp. The year he was married Mr. Sharp moved to Vernon, Tooele county, where an ecclesiastical ward of the Mormon church had been organized. He was ordained bishop, which position he held twenty-five years. At Vernon, Mr. Sharp rapidly became a well-to-do man. He had acquired lands and cultivated them successfully; he had flocks of sheep and herds of cattle and they thrived and multiplied.

Meanwhile, in Salt Lake City, he was acquiring heavy holdings in the Deseret National Bank, Z. C. M. I., State Bank of Utah, Utah-Idaho Sugar company, Alaska Ice & Storage company, Intermountain Sand, Brick & Cement company, Standard Furniture company and other enterprises. For a number of years he served as president of the State Board of Sheep Commissioners.

In 1897, he transferred a large portion of the extensive sheep business he had been doing in Utah to Idaho and there continued it with success until 1906, when he sold it. He owns a large ranch in northern Utah, where, in addition to general farming, he raises thoroughbred live stock. The uniform success of his extensive operations has placed Mr. Sharp in affluent circumstances.

EDWARD F. McDANELD

RAILROADING as a career has always appealed to Edward F. McDaneld, who has risen to his position as general agent in charge of this territory for the Chicago & Alton railroad, from the lower ranks of clerical service. Mr. McDaneld is a native of St. Paul, Nebraska, and attended the Grand Island High school at Grand Island, Nebraska, near the place of his birth.

Coming to Utah August 5, 1905, in the following year Mr. McDaneld began his service in the railroad world, as a bill clerk for the Oregon Short Line railroad, in the local freight offices. Advances came steadily, through the grades of tracing clerk, tariff clerk and rate clerk in the general freight office of the Oregon Short Line.

In August, 1911, Mr. McDaneld went to the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake railroad, known popularly as the Salt Lake Route, in the same capacity. On December 12, 1912, Mr. McDaneld was appointed traveling freight and passenger agent for the Chicago & Alton railroad, with headquarters in Salt Lake City. May 1, 1914, Mr. McDaneld was advanced to the position of general agent for the same road, with no change of headquarters. His offices are at 523 Judge building.

Mr. McDaneld is not married. He is a member of the Royal Arcanum; Salt Lake lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and the Salt Lake City Transportation club; and of the Inland club, at Spokane, Washington. In politics Mr. McDaneld is a Democrat.

By reason of his years of training in railroad work, and because of his thorough knowledge of Utah, her resources, her opportunities, her advantages, Mr. McDaneld is qualified in every respect to carry on, as he does, a great work toward developing those resources, and toward inducing those who are not so fortunate as to live in Utah to cast their lot with this state and participate in the benefits that arise from residence here. As a loyal and consistent booster for Utah, Mr. McDaneld has done much to promote the prosperity of the state by reason of his activity in the interests of his railroad.

JOSEPH JONES

THE name of Joseph Jones, chief special agent for the Oregon Short Line railroad, is a terror to box-car thieves, bandits and other evildoers. As a peace officer Mr. Jones has pursued criminals with zeal and success, and he has broken up the worst gangs of railroad and box-car thieves that ever infested the west.

Mr. Jones is a son of Benjamin Jones, and was born in South Wales in 1859. His parents came to the United States when he was six years of age, locating in Utah. He attended the public schools of Utah in his boyhood.

He entered the railroad service when he was 20 years of age, with the Utah & Northern railroad, serving successively as section hand, brakeman, freight conductor and passenger conductor. He left the service when he was elected sheriff of Bear Lake county, Idaho, which office he filled for several terms. He became special agent for the Oregon Short Line railroad in 1894, and has served continuously since in that capacity. He has obtained a greater number of convictions than perhaps any other officer in a similar capacity in the west.

Mr. Jones is high in the councils of the International Association of Railway Special Agents and Police, and is a prominent figure in all of their conventions. He was a dominant factor in the convention of that body in Salt Lake City in June, 1913. He has captured a great many notorious criminals and has engaged in many man-hunts for daring desperadoes and noted bandits. His life story is one of the most thrilling of any that could be written about the old and the new west.

Mr. Jones has been twice married, his present wife having been Miss Emily Anderson. He is the father of eleven sons and daughters. His family home is at 1421 Edison street, though he now is stationed at Pocatello, Idaho.

DR. A. R. IRVINE

AMONG the most noted practitioners in the medical profession of Utah is Dr. Alexander Ray Irvine. His parents were born in Scotland and came to America in the early fifties. They walked from the Missouri river to Utah, making the difficult journey across the plains, which tested and tried the pioneers and proved them before they entered upon the duties of building up the new western settlement.

Dr. Irvine was born in Utah October 11, 1879. He received a good education before taking up the study of medicine, attending the Agricultural College of Utah and receiving the degree of bachelor of science. Pursuing his medical studies, he attended the Medico-Chirurgical college of Philadelphia, Pa., where he received the degree of doctor of medicine.

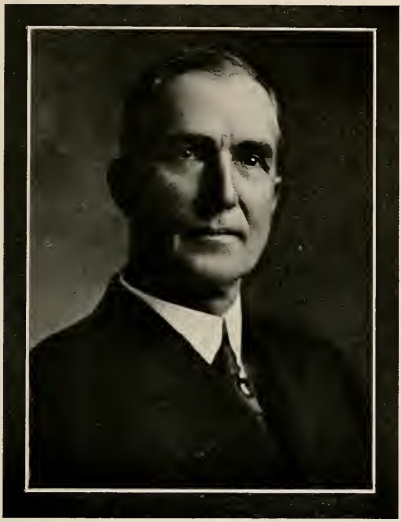
Thorough preparation marked his training and while still a young man Dr. Irvine went abroad to continue his medical studies. He went to Vienna, Austria, taking up special features of medical and surgical work at the University of Vienna. He returned and continued his studies at the Polyclinic of Philadelphia. He was graduated in 1906, receiving the degree of M. D.

Dr. Irvine is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Margaret Thurman. They have two children, Samuel Rodman Irvine, 7 years of age; and Richard Fyfe Irvine, 4 years of age.

Dr. Irvine lived in Germany from 1900 to 1902, as missionary student. He traveled in England, Scotland, France, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Austria, Russia and Belgium.

He is a member of the Alta club and also belongs to a number of medical and surgical associations.

His practice today is limited to diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, on which subjects he is a specialist. He is a Progressive Republican.



SETH WARNER MORRISON

A DESCENDANT of the early American pioneers and a member of the lower house of the first legislature of Utah, Seth Warner Morrison, son of Alonzo March and Fanny Amelia Warner Morrison, was born in Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, December 13, 1856. He went to Denver in 1872 and has been a resident of the west since that time, though he attended college at Ripon, Wisconsin in 1874-75. He married Fannie F. Pettit of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, December 6, 1881, and they have two children, Ione P. (Mrs. C. P. Overfield), and S. W. Morrison, Jr.

Mr. Morrison came to Salt Lake in 1890, organized the Morrison, Merrill Lumber company and was engaged in the wholesale lumber business until 1906, and is now president of the Park City Lumber company, treasurer of the Quincy Lumber company and of the White Pine Lumber company and a director of the Merchants bank. He is a member of the order or Hoo Hoo's and of the University, Commercial and Country clubs of Salt Lake.

As a member of the Republican party he was elected to the lower house of the first legislature of Utah by one of the two largest majorities given to any member of that legislature. He was chairman of the committee on claims and public accounts and made a record for fairness and good judgment. As a member of the committee on railroads and common carriers he was leader in the movement for railroad legislation. He was also an active member and a director in the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce when it made its successful fight against overcharges and discriminations by railroads.

Mr. Morrison is of distinguished Revolutionary ancestry on both sides and is allied by blood and marriage to some of the oldest and most prominent New England colonial families. The Warners on his mother's side came to America in 1689 and the Morrisons in 1727.

CHARLES A. WEAVER

CHARLES A. WEAVER was born on a farm in Douglas county, Nebraska, June 26, 1877. His father was John A. Weaver, now of Los Angeles. His mother's parents were early settlers in eastern Nebraska, owning and farming lands now occupied by Omaha's business center. They later homesteaded a section of land two miles west of the present site of the Omaha Federal building.

Mr. Weaver attended the district schools, and at the age of fifteen years moved to Omaha to gain the advantages of advanced schools. He completed the commercial course of the High school at the age of 17 years, and entered the retail hardware business as clerk and bookkeeper. He came to Utah five years later, March 8, 1899, to enter a similar line, remaining in that position until 1906, when he turned his attention to special auditing and bookeeping.

He became active in politics and entered the service of Salt Lake City as accountant in the city auditor's office, under the American party administration. This position he retained from early in 1908 until the fall of 1912. He was active in the organization of the Progressive party in Utah, and was nominated by that party for the office of county recorder in September, 1912. The campaign was vigorous but he was defeated, and returned to the business of accounting and auditing. He was nominated again for auditor in 1914, and was elected November 3. During his residence in Utah Mr. Weaver has been identified with mining, and is interested in companies operating in Beaver county. He was married in October, 1912, to Miss Maude Mills, a native of Oxford, England. They have one son, 1 year of age.

JOHN H. M'CHRYSTAL

OF SCOTCH extraction on his father's side and English on his mother's, John H. McChrystal comes of excellent forbears. Born in Franklin, Michigan, April 1, 1863, he received his early education in the public schools of Michigan. The remainder of his training was received in the public schools of his adopted state, Utah.

In the United States a peculiar interest is taken in those whose lineage dates back to the founders of this great republic. Mr. McChrystal's great-grandfather was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

On July 5, 1875, Mr. McChrystal came to Utah. He completed his education in this state. John McChrystal and Mrs. Sarah A. Handcock McChrystal were his parents. They saw that he had the opportunity to attend the schools in his adopted city.

When it came to taking up a life work, the mining industry appealed to Mr. McChrystal after a few years of preparatory work along more general lines of work. He is today a mining engineer and superintendent. He is superintendent of the Gemini Mining company and a stockholder in the same concern. He is also superintendent of and stockholder in the Godiva Mining company, and vice-president of the Southern Eureka Mining company.

On April 17, 1888, he married Miss Isabella Robbins. They have three children: Francis, Arthur J., and Eugenie.

Mr. McChrystal is a member of the Knights of Columbus and of the B. P. O. Elks. He also belongs to the Salt Lake Commercial club and to the Goshen Duck club, of which he is president. Politically he is a Democrat.

A. J. WEBER

HONOR of no uncertain quality is attached to the bar in the United States. To be a member of this profession is to mean in most cases that the holder of this position or follower of this profession is himself an honorable member of the community. And as the years pass on and experience develops the strength of study and research the position held by an older member of the bar in a state is one to be envied.

Utah's bar includes many men of the highest ability in their chosen calling. Their records are such as to be followed by the other citizens of the community. To the older members of the profession certain distinction is attached.

Among the older members of the State Bar association of Utah is Albert J. Weber, the subject of this sketch.

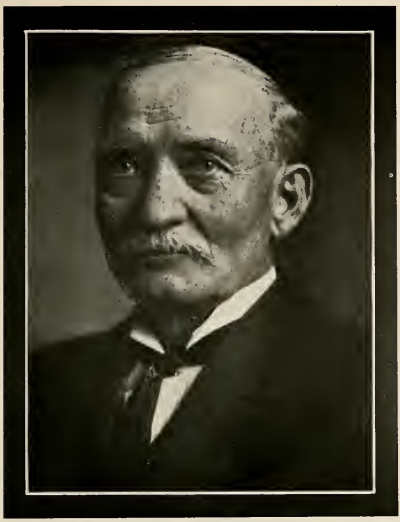
Mr. Weber is an adopted son of Utah, having been born at West Point, Iowa, November 19, 1859. His father was Henry Weber, and his mother Mrs. Clara True Weber.

Mr. Weber received the school training such as the middle west afforded, and in early life showed an inclination to take up the law as a profession. Determination and studious habits enabled him to perfect himself in these studies, which fitted him to become a lawyer. Finally the lure of the west sounded in his ears, and he removed from the state by the great river to the state with the great lake.

It was in 1902 that Mr. Weber settled in Salt Lake City, and he has won for himself an enviable position in the ranks of the local legal profession.

He is married, and his home is blessed with three children: Dorothy, Weber and Laura.

He is a Mason and a Knight of Pythias, besides being a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club. Politically he belongs to the Democratic faith. He has won for himself distinction as a campaign orator and was at one time a candidate for district attorney on the American ticket.



JAMES H. ANDERSON.

RISING from a humble beginning to positions of power and responsibility, James H. Anderson has won the confidence of his party and the respect of the people. He is a son of James and Catherine M. Anderson, and was born in Salt Lake City February 11, 1857. Attending the common and preparatory schools, Mr. Anderson was well equipped for his collegiate course when he entered the University of Utah. He attended that institution through 1869, 1870 and 1871, when he entered the newspaper profession with the Deseret News of Salt Lake City, becoming editor-in-chief.

Interested in his youth in politics, Mr. Anderson attached himself to the Republican party, and his energetic and faithful labors have not been diminished by the recognition given him by his party.

Mr. Anderson was the prime mover in planning the division of the schools of the county into the district system which has attracted favorable attention in American educational circles. He installed the first electric lighting system for the thoroughfares of an entire county in the United States. That was in Salt Lake county in 1902, and from that beginning the best county lighting system in the country originated.

Mr. Anderson was County Commissioner two terms, from 1901 to 1904, for Salt Lake county, and inaugurated many reforms and improvements. He was state chairman of the Republican party from 1902 to 1904, and member of the Republican National committee in 1904. He has been an enthusiastic advocate of good roads. He became United States Marshal in 1908, serving until 1914.

Mr. Anderson has been twice married. His first wife, Annie Abbott, died 1903, and in the following year he married Elise Schneider, who recently was called to her reward. His children are Florence M. Horsley, Mabel E., Dessie M., Alta E., and Ellen E. Anderson. Two have died. They were Edgar J. and Albert H. Anderson.

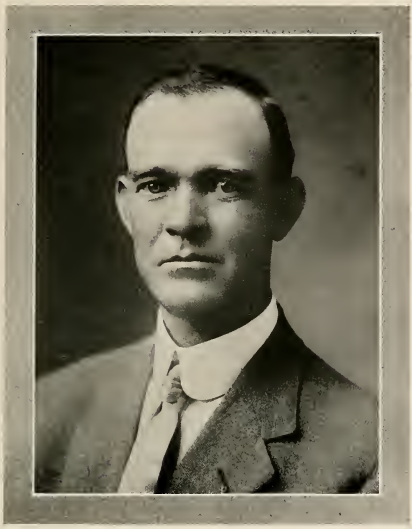
CULBERT L. OLSON.

AS an attorney at law and representative of several influential corporations in the west, Culbert L. Olson is a leader in his profession in the west. His connections with the legal department of the state and his position as president of the First National Bank of Burley, Idaho, have made scores of friends for him through his integrity and his progressiveness. Mr. Olson, son of Delilah K. Olson and George Daniel Olson, was born November 7, 1876, at Fillmore City, Utah. He came to Salt Lake City in 1897, since which time he has been following his profession.

Mr. Olson's mother was the daughter of Thomas R. King, a pioneer of Utah from New York State, and the first settler at Fillmore. His father came from Copenhagen, Denmark, arriving at New York at the age of nineteen years. He settled in Salt Lake City in the early sixties. Mr. Olson's parents are well known throughout the state and have been instrumental in many ways in the uplifting of the general interests in connection with public matters and the Mormon church.

He is a Democrat and he has always been an ardent worker for the party.

His early education was acquired in the public schools of Utah. After his school days Mr. Olson chose the profession of law, attended the University of Michigan Law School for one year, after which he took a three years' course at the Columbian University Law School, now the George Washington University, at Washington, D. C. He was graduated in 1901, having attended that University since 1897. Shortly after his graduation he was married to Kate Jeremy, and is now the father of one boy, Richard C., six years of age. Mr. Olson is a member of the Phi Delta Phi Greek letter fraternity, the Native Sons of Utah, the Salt Lake Commercial Club and the Press Club of Salt Lake.



JOSEPH W. MELLEN.

WHEN curb and gutter extension No. 20 was authorized by the city commission of Salt Lake and bids were asked for, contractors, cement men and the general public sat up and took notice. It meant that 240 blocks of curbs and gutters were to be laid in this city, making the first step towards paving and improving a vast district.

The contract for this work, which entailed about 125,000 cubic yards of excavation, was awarded to Joseph W. Mellen, one of the most successful contractors of some of the most important buildings and improvement work in the city and was, by the way, the first contractor to handle dirt from the city streets with steam shovels into automobile trucks.

He has furnished sand and gravel to practically all street work in Salt Lake and contributed this important material to the following principal buildings of the city:

Cullen Hotel, Culmer Block, Deseret News Building, Tribune Building, Scott Building, Dooly Block, St. Mary's Cathedral, Union Depot, Rio Grande Depot, Boston Building, Newhouse Building, Kearns uilding, McIntyre Building, Commercial Club Building, Stock Exchange, Hotel Utah, Newhouse Hotel, Orpheum Theatre, Utah State Capitol, American Theatre and Walker Bank Building, as well as hundreds of the finest residences in the city.

Mr. Mellen was born in Salt Lake City, March 8, 1873. His father was Joseph H. Mellen and his mother was Martha Mellen. Mr. Mellen was married to Miss Stella M. Jacobson. He is a Republican and a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake.

C. L. McFAUL.

LIKE the greater number of railroad men who have attained positions of trust and responsibility, C. L. McFaul of Salt Lake City, district freight and passenger agent for the Southern Pacific company in Utah, Idaho and Montana, has devoted virtually his whole life to railroading.

Mr. McFaul was born February 1, 1872, at Hampshire, Ill. His father was Archibald David McFaul, and his mother Sarah Huston McFaul. His father was born in Canada of Scotch-Irish parentage, and was engaged in the lumbering and manufacturing business. His father came to the United States in 1869, engaging in the same business in Illinois. His mother was born in Ireland, of Scotch-English parentage, and came to America when a child.

Mr. McFaul attended the University of Denver, from 1889 to 1891, and came to Utah April 10, 1913. He is married, his wife having been Miss Cora B. Terwilliger. They have two children, Irene Margaret, 17 years of age, and Donald Jesse McFaul, 12 years of age. Mr. McFaul is a Thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, a member of San Jose lodge No. 10, A. F. & A. M. He also is a member of the Commercial club, the Salt Lake City Transportation club, and the Weber club of Ogden.

He began railroading with the Burlington in 1887, serving in various capacities until 1892, when he resigned as train dispatcher. He took service with the Southern Pacific in July, 1892, serving in various capacities as clerk, dispatcher and chief clerk to the superintendent, until 1899. From 1899 until 1901 he was general manager Nevada Central Railroad; and from 1901 to 1913 he was city ticket agent and traveling freight and passenger agent for the Southern Pacific. On April 10, 1913, he was appointed district freight and passenger agent for the same railroad with headquarters at Salt Lake City.

GEORGE K. SMITH

GEORGE K. SMITH was born at Montreal, Canada, May 23, 1867. His father, David Smith, Esq., was a native of Perth, Scotland, and his mother, Helen Seath, of Cupar of Fifeshire, Scotland. His father owned the largest floral establishment of Montreal, Canada.

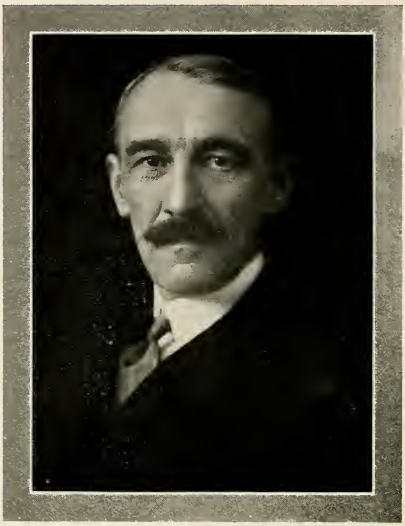
Mr. Smith is a graduate of McGill Normal school, White's school of stenography, and Professor Weston's Art school. He was employed by the Grand Trunk railway for a short time, resigning August, 1886, to accept a better position with the Burlington railroad at Omaha, Nebraska. After staying with the Burlington for six months, Mr. Smith resigned to accept a higher position in the accounting department of the Union Pacific railroad.

In March, 1894, he was promoted to position of chief clerk to the general superintendent, Mountain division, of the Union Pacific railroad, with headquarters at Ogden, Utah, remaining there until March, 1897. He was then appointed chief clerk and assistant to the vice-president and general manager of the Oregon Short Line railroad at Salt Lake City, which position he still holds.

On September 16, 1890, Mr. Smith was married to Miss Annie Robinson, youngest daughter of Thomas Robinson, of Whitby, England, and Elizabeth Seanor of Montreal, Canada. Mrs. Smith is a graduate of the Montreal Senior school and Mary Rose academy. They have three daughters and one son: Jasmine Robinson, Vivian Seath, Theodosia Victoria and George Kirk, Jr.

Mr. Smith owns an artistic home at 919 East First South street, where the family reside. He also owns considerable other real estate throughout this state and in Idaho. He is also interested in various industries in the west.

In fraternal circles, Mr. Smith is well known. He is a thirty-second degree Mason, a member of Mount Moriah lodge No. 2, F. & A. M.; past regent of the Royal Arcanum; a member of the Salt Lake Transportation club and the Commercial club



MAURICE M. JOHNSON

BEGINNING his practical education as a mining engineer, as a boy of fourteen years in a coal mine near Scranton, Pa., Maurice M. Johnson, one of the best known coal and metal mining experts in the west, advanced during the twenty years of his employment with that company, the coal department of the Erie Railway company, until he was assistant engineer. He then became engineer, and later superintendent of collieries for the same company. He came to Utah in 1893, and engaged in metal mining at that time. In 1898 he became connected with the Utah Consolidated or Highland Boy mine of Bingham. He was afterward manager of the Boston Consolidated Mining company, now a part of the Utah Copper holdings; and later of the Cactus mine. He was consulting engineer for the Dominion Copper company of British Columbia, and consulting engineer for Samuel Newhouse. He is now consulting engineer for the Gilmore Mining company and the Pittsburg-Idaho company with mines at Gilmore, Idaho. He acts also in an independent capacity in the examination and direction of work on mining properties in general, with headquarters in Salt Lake City.

Mr. Johnson is a son of Sarah Dininger and George W. Johnson. He was born at Beaver Meadow, Pa., Nov. 11, 1857. He is a Republican in national politics but stands for the best government in local politics. His early education was obtained in the common schools of Tomaqua, Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania. He came to Salt Lake in 1893.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Isabel B. McCaa. There is one daughter, Louise R. Knight, wife of H. S. Knight. There are three daughters and one son in Mrs. Knight's family. Mr. Johnson is a Scottish Rite Mason of the thirty-second degree. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers and the National Geographic society. He is also a member of the Alta club of Salt Lake.

LELAND R. WATTIS

AMONG Salt Lake City's most successful railroad contractors is Leland Ray Wattis. He was born at Ogden in 1879. His father was E. O. Wattis, and his mother Mrs. Martha Wattis. Mr. Wattis was educated in the Ogden public schools. It was not until December 27, 1912, that he removed to Salt Lake City to make his home. But he is now one of the well-known business men of the community, and as railroad contractor he is active in commercial life. He is president of the L. R. Wattis Co., which is carrying on many extensive enterprises. He is affiliated with other corporations, including the Wattis & Beektel Co., the Wattis Realty company, and the Oregon-Idaho Orchard company.

The list of his business activities reveals the fact that Mr. Wattis is a believer in the "back to the farm" movement, for ranching occupies a considerable portion of his time. Although he is a city man, he has made a marked success in ranch work.

Mr. Wattis finds time, outside of business, for lodge duties. He belongs to the Elks club, and is also a Mason, a member of the Scottish Rite, a Knight Templar and a Shriner.

Mr. Wattis and his wife, Mrs. Helen Wattis, have one son, E. O. Wattis, Jr.

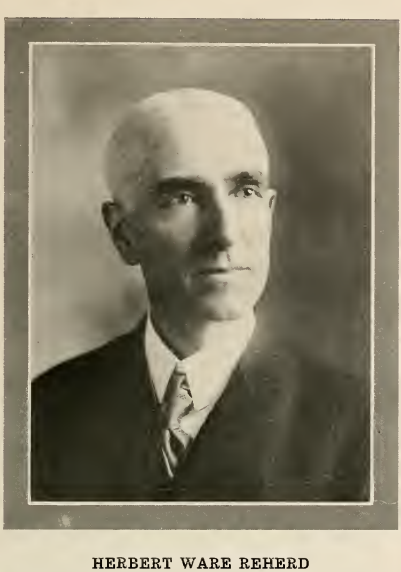
Mr. Wattis is a Republican and is an energetic worker for the interests of that party. He has a bright future in the intermountain country, and is firmly assured of the coming greatness of Salt Lake City and Utah generally.

DR. EPHRAIM G. GOWANS

FIGHTING fire with fire has been the policy of society for ages in its dealings with the erring. It is only within the last few years that a loftier spirit, the spirit of encouragement and helpfulness, that lends a helping hand to the erring or morally deficient, has gained a foothold. Dr. E. G. Gowans, state superintendent of public instruction, who, for the last four years before his elevation to that post, was superintendent of the State Industrial School, has applied the principle of aiding the erring and encouraging the youthful offenders against society's rulings, with remarkable success. Many young lives have been reclaimed; many erring feet have been brought back to paths that are straight. It was because of his remarkable success as head of the State Industrial School that Dr. Gowans was elected in November, 1914, as state superintendent of public instruction.

Dr. Gowans is a native of Utah. His parents were Hugh S. and Betsy Gowans. Dr. Gowans was born at Tooele, Utah, February 1, 1868. His parents and his grandparents were pioneers of Utah. Dr. Gowans attended the Brigham Young college at Logan, graduating with the class of 1894; he then attended Baltimore Medical college, Baltimore, Maryland, graduated with the class of 1898, after which he took a postgraduate course at Johns Hopkins university.

He married Miss Mary Lyman shortly after his return to Utah; they have two sons and three daughters: L. Lyman Gowans, 20 years of age; Miss Lois Gowans, 18; Marjorie, 15; Emerson, 9, and Marion, 6 years of age. Dr. Gowans is a member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City; and of the Weber club of Ogden.



HERBERT WARE REHERD

HERBERT WARE REHERD, D. D., president of Westminster college and the Salt Lake Collegiate institute, and one of the prominent divines and educators of the state, was born in Geneseo, Illinois, August 23, 1869. He is the son of Jacob K. Reherd and Lucy Louise Ware Reherd. The father was of German ancestry several generations back, and the mother of Scotch-Irish ancestry, back of the "Mayflower."

Dr. Reherd had the advantage of an excellent education. After completing the common school branches, he attended Parsons college, Fairfield, Iowa, and was graduated from that institution in June, 1893.

Dr. Reherd came to Utah in November, 1913, and soon thereafter took up his work at Westminster college. He is an able, forceful talker, and frequently gives lectures on travel and on conditions in the Far East. His extensive tours abroad have given him a fund of information on commercial, political, educational, religious and philanthropic conditions invaluable for this purpose. He is joint author of "Around the World Studies and Stories of Presbyterian Foreign Missions."

Dr. Reherd is a member of the Commercial club and of the Aleph Heth Yodth fraternity. He was married to Miss Margaret Louise McClure, of which marriage two children are issue: Elizabeth Louise, 13, and Harold McClure, 8.

Westminster college and the Salt Lake Collegiate institute were originally separate schools, but now are under one board of trustees.

The latter was one of the first schools in Utah and has been in continuous operation for more than forty years. Four years of high school and two years of college work are offered at Westminster. It is planned to add the other two college years one at a time.

Fine scholarship and high moral character are ideals for which the college stands.

RAYMOND C. NAYLOR

RAYMOND C. NAYLOR, treasurer of Salt Lake county, has a brilliant military record, and a creditable political record. He was born August 27, 1873, in Salt Lake, a son of George Naylor. He attended the public schools of Salt Lake and the University of Utah, from which he was graduated in 1893, upon completing the four years' normal course. He was married September 7, 1900, to Miss Fay McCune, and they have four sons and three daughters.

The study of military science and tactics was compulsory when Mr. Naylor attended the University of Utah, and he received the highest average with three other students in these subjects. His record was published in the United States Army and Navy Register in 1893. He was graduated as senior captain, University battalion, and was awarded the distinguished cadetship for Utah by First Lieutenant Walter K. Wright, Sixteenth infantry, United States army. He taught school three years in Centerville. When the war with Spain began he enlisted, and was appointed second lieutenant, Battery A, Utah Volunteer infantry. He helped organize the National Guard of Utah, and served five years as captain of Company D. He then was elected major of the First battalion, and afterward was appointed on the First Brigade staff. He served through the Spanish-American war, and through the principal Philippine troubles. He then was promoted to rank of first lieutenant, Battery B, United States Volnunteer infantry, in July, 1899.

After his return to Utah he was elected on the Republican ticket as county recorder, 1500 votes ahead of his ticket. He resigned to go on a mission to Germany for the Mormon church, and was out of politics until the fall of 1914, when he was elected county treasurer on the Progressive ticket. He is manager of the Utah-Southern Idaho branch of the Missouri State Life Insurance company, and lives at 1028 Eleventh East street.

ANTHONY C. LUND

IS A MEMBER of the musical profession in the west, perhaps no one is better and more favorably known than is Anthony C. Lund. Professor Lund is the son of Sarah Peterson of Provo and Anthon H. Lund, and was born at Ephraim, Sanpete county, February 25, 1871. His father was born in Denmark May 25, 1844. Shortly after his arrival in Utah, Mr. Lund, Sr., settled at Mount Pleasant, where he was put in charge of the Jennings Mercantile business. Professor Lund's mother was born at Lehi January 4, 1852.

Professor Lund attended the public schools of Utah, after which he attended the Brigham Young university at Provo, from 1888 to 1891. After this course he attended the Royal Conservatory at Leipzig, Germany, where he studied for three years. He graduated from that institution July 18, 1894. Following his graduation he studied for one year in Paris and one year in London, and was later made professor of music at the B. Y. U. His political views have always been in accordance with the policies of the Republican party.

On December 24, 1902, Professor Lund was married to Miss Cornelia Sorenson of Manti, Utah. In 1895 he was married to Miss Laura Greaves of Ephraim. The following children have blessed his married life: Weber Anthony, 18; Grant, 16; Anton H., 11; Herschel, 9; Cornelia, 7; Max, 4, and Irene, 1. Mr. Lund is an honorary member of the B. P. O. E., and a member of the Provo Commercial club. He has the distinction of being the youngest member in the constitutional convention.

LORENZO NELSON STOHL

LORENZO NELSON STOHL, though still young in years, has gained an enviable reputation as one of the wide-awake, progressive business men of the state of Utah. He was born in Brigham City, Utah, April 7, 1873, and is the son of O. N. Stohl and Christena Johnson-Stohl. Both father and mother were among the early pioneers of Utah, having emigrated from Sweden. Mr. Stohl, Sr., was prominent in church and civic affairs for many years.

Following completion of common school courses, the subject of this sketch attended the University of Utah in Salt Lake and the Utah Agricultural college at Logan. He took a prominent part in school activities and was a popular student at both institutions.

Mr. Stohl now is second vice-president and manager of the Beneficial Life Insurance company, a Utah concern, and is considered one of the best posted men on insurance matters in the state. From his office in the Vermont building he is directing the operations of a company whose ramifications are extending over all the western country.

Mr. Stohl also is a member of the board of directors of the Deseret National bank, president of the First National bank of Brigham City, chairman of the board of trustees, Utah Agricultural college, and honorary member of the Deseret Association of Life Underwriters. He is an active member of the Salt Lake Commercial club.

Mr. Stohl is married, his wife's maiden name being Miss Vinnie Ralph. To this union were born: Dolores, aged 20; Hortense, 13; Camile, 11; Phyllis, 9; Vinnie, 6, and Ralph Stohl, 2.

Mr. Stohl is a Republican in politics.

MAURICE M. KAIGHN

VETERAN of the civil war, active in fraternal life and in politics, Maurice M. Kaighn, familiarly known as "Colonel" Kaighn, numbers his friends by thousands in Utah. He was born March 30, 1843, at Camden, New Jersey. His parents were William S. Kaighn and Nancy McElroy Kaighn. His father was of English ancestry and his mother of Scotch.

Colonel Kaighn attended Columbia college, now George Washington university, Washington, D. C., in 1866, 1867 and 1868, graduating in that year. He came to Utah in 1876, and has since that time resided in Salt Lake City.

Colonel Kaighn has married twice, his first wife having died many years ago. The children by his first wife are Maurice Edward Kaighn, born April 8, 1871; Jean K. Kaighn, born March 16, 1868; Herbert E. Kaighn, born August 19, 1875; and Merrill M. Kaighn, born February 16, 1882. Colonel Kaighn's present wife formerly was Miss Effie M. Coates.

Colonel Kaihn is senior member of the law firm of M. M. Kaighn and C. S. Bucher, with offices in suite 413, 414 and 415 D. F. Walker building, Salt Lake City. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Odd Fellows, the Benovlent and Protective Order of Elks, and the Grand Army of the Republic. He is receiver for the United States Land Office, Salt Lake City, and is a Republican. He has extensive mining and oil interests, in addition to his law practice, and is vice-president of the Westwood Oil Company.

DR. E. D. HAMMOND

AS A REPRESENTATIVE of the medical profession of Utah and as a man who is considered among his fellows as a man of truth and integrity and honor, Dr. E. D. Hammond stands in the first ranks. By careful study and close attention to every detail along the line of his chosen profession, Dr. Hammond has built up a large practice in this city. Possessing marked natural executive ability and the advantages of a superior education, as well as years of wide experience in the practice of medicine, he is well qualified for the positions of trust and responsibility to which he has frequently been called since he began the practice of his profession in Salt Lake.

Dr. Hammond comes of well-known parents. His mother was Olive Chadwick-Hammond; his father, De Forest Hammond. His ancestry dates back to the early days in the New England states. The Hammonds of which stock he comes were among the first settlers in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Dr. Hammond was born in Franklin county, Vermont, June 19, 1870. As his ideals were disposed to lead him in the direction of the medical profession, he eventually entered the Creighton Medical college at Omaha, Nebraska. By diligent and untiring work Dr. Hammond graduated from that institution in 1900. The following year he came to Salt Lake City, where he took up the practice of medicine. In the course of a short time he married Inez Blanche Wilson of Ann Arbor, Mich. They now have in the family three children, namely, De Forest and Evelyn, twins, and one younger girl named Florence.

In addition to his fraternal connections, Dr. Hammond is a well-known member of the Salt Lake Commercial club; is chief surgeon of the Salt Lake & Utah Railroad company; was elected president of the Salt Lake County Medical society for 1914, and chairman of the staff of the Judge Mercy hospital the same year.

Dr. Hammond has traveled extensively, having taken a trip around the world in 1910, and visited the hospitals of Vienna and London for several months at this time.

SAMUEL SHAW ARENTZ

THE GEOLOGY of the western country is an open book to Samuel Shaw Arentz, mining and metallurgican engineer, who has tramped over hundreds of miles of mineral-bearing ground during his residence of eleven years in Utah. Mr. Arentz was born in Chicago in 1879, the son of Andrew C. Arentz and Mary Shaw-Arentz. Following a common and high school education, he attended the South Dakota School of Mines, from which institution he was graduated in 1904 with the degrees of B. S. and M. E.

Utah at that time looked most promising as a field of operations for the young mining engineer, and here he came shortly after he had received his sheepskin. His success in his chosen profession was immediate. During the last ten years he has inspected and made reports on hundreds of properties in this and other states, and also has become interested financially in several properties. He is a heavy stockholder in the Lakeview Mining company, which owns valuable zinc claims on Promontory Point.

Mr. Arentz was honored by fellow members of his profession by election as president of the Utah Society of Engineers, which position he now holds. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, of the Masonic fraternity and of the University club.

Mr. Arentz was married to Miss Marriet Keep, and to this union were born two children: Samuel Shaw, Jr., about 3 years old, and Ruby Cornelia, 4 months old. The family home is at 907 First avenue.

ARTHUR FRANK

IN CLOSE touch with the people, and sensing their desire for quick means of travel from point to point within the city, Arthur Frank, retired capitalist, organized the Street Auto Service company in Salt Lake City, giving to this city the second "Jitney bus" service in the United States. The Street Auto Service company in Salt Lake City is meeting with immediate popularity.

Mr. Frank had been in business for many years in Salt Lake City and was prepared by his business experience to meet a new demand. With that point in view he formed the Street Auto Service company, putting into commission immediately a fleet of fast and serviceable automobiles for public hire. These cars travel defined routes, and passengers may transfer from one to another. The capitalization of the company is $100,000. Plans are under way for inauguration of an "owl" service; and special taxicab, and unlimited time service are also among the offerings of the company. The stock is being divided among as many small holders as possible, to make a wide personal interest in the enterprise among the people.

Mr. Frank occupies the position of president, treasurer and director in the company, and devotes his whole time to that service. His home is at 925 East South Temple street. It is his plan to extend the service to every part of the city, and to that end the company has ordered twenty additional modern service cars from the factory. The main offices of the company are in the Keith Emporium building. Meeting the same conditions offered by the electric traction company, the Street Auto Service company is issuing commutation books at the standard prices.

WILLIAM H. BYWATER

THE subject of this sketch was born in Sheffield, England, and after an education in the great city of Birmingham came to Salt Lake City in 1881. He was a son of John Bywater. His mother's maiden name was Margaret Dyson Bywater, his father being a well-known manufacturer in the busiest manufacturing district in the world.

The son, however, early showed a strong leaning for mechanical pursuits, and by untiring industry and native ability has risen to the head of his profession in Salt Lake City.

His first service was as an engineer in the volunteer fire department, where he showed singular ability and ingenuity, which soon was rewarded by his selection as superintendent of the fire alarm system of the city.

In 1910 he was appointed chief engineer of the Templeton building, but was soon again called into public life as a captain in the fire department, in which he served for sixteen years, leaving office to become assistant engineer of the Z. C. M. I., later becoming chief.

Mr. Bywater served as the chief of the fire department under Mayor Morris, and it was on the basis of his excellent record that he was again appointed by Mayor Park.

Salt Lake's best fire chief is a Democrat in politics, an Elk and a citizen of unimpeachable integrity. He was married to Annie P. Bywater and has three children: William A. Bywater, Eleanor Bywater and George Bywater.

WILLIAM C. STARK

WILLIAM C. STARK is a product of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where the steel barons, steel rails and the stogies come from. The son of William and Susan Margaret Stark, he was born in that city December 7, 1885. His ancestors fought in the Revolutionary war.

Mr. Stark was graduated from the public schools of Pittsburg and for several years thereafter, while making a place for himself in one of Pittsburg's large banks, did some special studying under the tutelage of Dr. R. J. Love, formerly of Tuskegee university.

In 1908 Mr. Stark resigned the important position to which he had advanced himself in the Pittsburg bank to go with the Kuhn irrigation and power interests in southern Idaho. He remained with the Kuhn interests there until 1911, having charge of some important phases of their vast undertakings.

When he left the Kuhns, it was to join two associates in a Nevada mining enterprise. He remained at the mine in Nevada for a year; then he came to Salt Lake City. From the time he left Pittsburg he had been a frequent visitor to Salt Lake and had determined then that some day he would take up his permanent residence in this city.

Mr. Stark was engaged by Joseph E. Caine, then secretary of the Salt Lake Commercial club, to fill a vacancy in the Publicity bureau. Later he became assistant to Mr. Caine in the club work; then assistant secretary during the regime of Will G. Farrell as secretary. When Mr. Farrell resigned the secretaryship, the board of governors of the club unanimously elected Mr. Stark to succeed him. He resigned the office in December, 1914, to devote his entire time to his personal affairs.

Mr. Stark is a member of the Commercial club, Press club, Advertising club, Utah Electric club and the Salt Lake City Passenger association. Address: Commercial club, Salt Lake City, Utah.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN REDMAN.

PRESIDENT and manager of the Redman Fireproof Storage Company, the largest and most substantial institution of its kind in the west. Benjamin F. Redman is well known in Salt Lake City and throughout Utah, and is a man who can at all times be depended upon. Since his first arrival in Salt Lake City, twenty-four years ago, at which time he came here as a paving contractor and paved Commercial street, the first to be paved in Salt Lake City, and since coming here has made many friends. Both in business and social ways Mr. Redman can be depended upon as a man of his word. His integrity and honesty is never questioned by those who have his acquaintance. Benjamin F. Redman, son of Mary Jane Fair and Joseph Redman, was born February 9, 1861, in Omaha, Neb. His forefathers came from Holland to America in 1651 and were among the first pioneers of Pennsylvania. His father was one of the first settlers in Omaha. Mr. Redman acquired his schooling in Nebraska and entered upon a business career which now puts him among the substantial business men of Utah. His political views have always favored the principles of the Republican party, and it is a well-known fact that he is one of the foremost when it comes to assisting the party in any manner within his power. Mr. Redman married Miss Amy Pickens. Following the marriage three children were born, namely: Rence Elizabeth, Frederick Grant and Benjamin Franklin Redman, Jr. In addition to conducting the storage business Mr. Redman has been more or less connected in public affairs. For three years he was a member of the board of the Utah State Fair Association, and is now the president of the Utah Automobile Club, a member of the Elks Club and an active member of the Commercial Club. For three years Mr. Redman served as commissioner of city parks. As a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club Mr. Redman is well known and highly esteemed, both as a member and as an ardent worker toward anything that may have a tendency to uplift the principles of that organization.

ROBERT WALKER SALISBURY.

PRESIDENT of the Salisbury Investment Company and engaged in the real estate and mining business, member of several corporations and a man who is identified with many public matters of vital interest, Robert Walker Salisbury is well known throughout the state in connection with private as well as public matters. His interests are vast and by reason of his active participation in public matters he has acquired hosts of friends. Mr. Salisbury, son of Margaret Blaine Walker and Orange James Salisbury, was born December 27, 1883, in Salt Lake City. He is the grand nephew of James G. Blaine. His father first came to Utah in 1868, and has always been identified as one of the early pioneers of the state. Mr. Salisbury, Jr., is now a director in the well known banking corporation of McCornick and Company. His politics, like those of his noted ancestor, have been Republican.

His early school days were passed in Salt Lake, after which he attended Cornell University. From that institution Mr. Salisbury was graduated in 1906, having attended at that university from 1901 until his graduation. Since his marriage to Miss Genevieve McCornick two children have been born: Evelyn, three years of age, and Margaret B, one year of age. As to local clubs Mr. Salisbury is a well known and enthusiastic member of the Alta Club, the Salt Lake Commercial Club and the local Country Club. His work in those organizations has brought his name before those organizations in a most favorable light. He is popular, both among his business and social associates, as it is a recognized fact that where he can be of any service, in any capacity, Mr. Salisbury is the first to offer his services. For the past four years Mr. Salisbury has been a member of the state board of equalization. At the present time he is the president of the Alta Club.

EDWARD HOLDING EARDLEY

THE parents of Edward Holding Eardley were among those pioneers of Utah who crossed the plains with handcart companies, walking the long distance from the Missouri river to Utah, pushing before them small handcarts in which they had loaded all their earthly possessions. The story of the privations and suffering of the handcart companies forms one of the most fascinating chapters of the history of Utah, and Mr. Eardley's father and mother did their part in making that history.

Mr. Eardley was born in Salt Lake City December 5, 1878. His parents were Mary Ann Holding and Bedson Eardley, both natives of England. His father came to Utah in 1855 and his mother trudged her weary way across the plains in 1875.

Mr. Eardley gained his education in the public schools of Salt Lake, and in his youth became fascinated by the study of electricity. He engaged in the electrical contracting business, and in the sale of electrical appliances and materials in his early manhood. He is a member of the Eardley Brothers company, electrical contractors, and is president and general manager of that concern. He also is a director in the Wasatch Realty company.

Mr. Eardley is married, his wife having been Miss Alice Pixton. They have three children: Lamore P. Eardley, nine years of age; Kenneth P. Eardley, six years of age, and Edward P. Eardley, three years of age.

Mr. Eardley is a member of the Commercial Club, and is identified prominently with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, being one of the high counsellors of Pioneer Stake. The family home is at 412 South First West street, Salt Lake City.

HENRY WALTER WALKER

DURING the past few years the mercantile world has experienced a revolution of method, in the "store beautiful" idea. The light, airy, luxurious, orchestra-and-tea-room type of department store building had its birth in the east, and the new order of things swept across the country.

When the wave of architectural and sales reform struck Salt Lake, it found Henry Walter Walker ready to take advantage of it as executive head of the Keith-O'Brien company's great establishment. The result is that firm's modern structure in this city.

February 12, 1868, was the birthday of Henry Walter Walker, and the place was Salt Lake City. His father was David F. Walker and his mother Emoline Holmes Walker. Both were natives of Yorkshire, England.

The mercantile business early occupied the attention of Mr. Walker, and he rose through various stages to the position of persident and managing director of the Keith-O'Brien company. His education was secured in the private and public schools of Salt Lake City, at Princeton University, and in the University of California at Berkeley.

He was married in California in June, 1890, to Grace L. Putnam. Mr. and Mrs. Walker have six children: Erminie Walker, 22; Ralph Putnam Walker, 20; Ethlene Walker, 17; Natalie Walker, 14; Vern Randolph Walker, 12, and Carlton Holmes Walker, 10.

Mr. Walker is a Mason, an Odd Fellow and an Elk. His clubs are the Alta, Commercial and New State Gun clubs of Salt Lake.

Mr. Walker was distinguished as one of the organizers of the National Guard of Utah in 1886, and assisted in the formation of Companies A and B of the infantry in Ogden. He retired two years later as lieutenant colonel of the First regiment of infantry. Mr. Walker is a member of the Republican party.

GEORGE T. ODELL

FOR more than thirty years George T. Odell has been recognized as a pillar of strength in the commercial and financial life of Salt Lake City, and has been prominently identified in the growth and upbuilding of Utah and the whole intermountain country. He was born in London, England, December 4, 1848, the son of Thomas George Odell and Ann (Newman) Odell, who emigrated to Utah in 1861. The elder Odell was a printer and publisher.

The family first located at Ogden, Utah, and the early life of young Odell was passed on a farm until 1869, but he had some newspaper experience about that time also as a reporter on the "Ogden Junction," a paper then being edited by Mr. Penrose and printed by Odell's father. From 1869 to 1878 he served as brakeman and conductor on the Central Pacific, leaving the service in 1878 to engage in the produce and shipping business at Ogden. He went next to Bullionville, Nevada, as manager of the mercantile interests of the Bullionville Smelting Company.

Mr. Odell came to Salt Lake City in 1882, where he has resided ever since. In 1883 he organized the vehicle, implement and machinery business of Grant, Odell & company, which later was merged into the following institutions: First, to the Cooperative Wagon & Machine company, and on February 13, 1902, into the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company, which latter concern took over the business of the Consolidated Implement company, with Mr. Odell as general manager. The business has steadily grown until today it is the largest concern of the kind in the world, and is a tribute to Mr. Odell's executive ability.

Mr. Odell is interested in scores of business enterprises and is a member of the Alta and Commercial clubs. He belongs to the Masonic fraternity.

ELIAS A. SMITH

ELIAS A. SMITH was born in Salt Lake City, March 21, 1857. At the age of 14 years he entered the offiec of the County Clerk of Salt Lake county, and remained there until 1876, when he entered the Deseret National Bank as its general bookkeeper. In 1884 he was elected probate judge of Salt Lake county and assumed the duties of the office in March of that year, continuing until the 1st of January, 1889, at which time he was elected one of the selectmen of Salt Lake county, and served in that capacity for two years. He was a member of the territorial legislature during the sessions of 1887 and 1889, being a member of the legislative council and served as its presiding officer. He was a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Uath from 1887 to 1889, and was chairman of the first territorialboard of equalization, serving in that capacity for four years. At the organization of the Deseret Savings Bank in 1889 he was elected cashier and has served in that capacity up to the present time.

CHARLES A. FAUS

AS MANAGER of one of the best known and most popular drug stores in Utah, and a place of its kind that cannot be excelled in any city for efficiency and service, Charles A. Faus knows the drug business from every point of view, and can be depended upon by both those who do not, as well as those who do, know him.

Charles A. Faus was born April 2, 1873, in Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania. His parents were Amelia Driesbach and J. R. Faus. His education was obtained at the Highland Park college, Des Moines, Iowa, he attending that institution in 1893 and 1894. He is the descendant of an old German stock well known in the New England states. At this time he is the manager and vice-president of the Smith-Faus Drug company, successors of the Smith-Bailey Drug company. Mr. Faus first came to Utah in August, 1910, since which time he has installed himself permanently in matters concerning Utah finances and in business as well as social circles. He married Miss Bess Rita Taft before his arrival here, and has one child, Norton Taft, five years of age.

He is a well known and highly esteemed member of local fraternal organizations and clubs. Mr. Faus was a registered pharmacist in Iowa and Missouri, and was in the retail drug business for seven years. For a period of three years he acted in the capacity of traveling salesman, and has had twelve years' experience in the wholesale drug business. Before coming to Salt Lake City he was interested in the same line of business in St. Joseph, Missouri. Shortly after his arrival here he became a member of the local Commercial club, and has the distinction of having been elected a member of the Rotary club of this city. He is also an ardent fraternal worker and in excellent standing with the members of the B. P. O. E. and K. of P. lodges, and a member of both these organizations.

MARCUS HARRIS

ONE of the leaders in the wool industry of the intermountain region is Marcus Harris. Mr. Harris is an adopted son of Utah, having been born at Hannibal, Missouri, on August 5, 1866. Salt Lake City and St. Louis today share most of his time. His parents, Gustav and Sette Harris, were also natives of Hannibal, the birthplace of Mark Twain. It was there that Mr. Harris attended the public schools, receiving his education in the grades.

In 1898 he obeyed the impulse to try his fortune in the west, and came to Utah. He soon took up the wool business and met with unusual success.

Today he is vice-president of the B. Harris Wool company. This firm handles from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds of wool annually, handling, in fact, half of the Utah wool output every year. This is a record of which any firm might well be proud, and fixes the rank of the company in the western wool industry. This success is due in no little degree to the business acumen and energy of Mr. Harris.

Politically he is a Republican. He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club, the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis, the Columbian club of St. Louis and the Westwood club of St. Louis.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Edith Abeles. They have six children: Marion, Gustavis, Simon, Laura May, Virginia and Mark.

Although an eastern by birth and education, Mr. Harris is an enthusiastic supporter of the west, and among the most energetic supporters of Salt Lake City and of Utah. Outside of business he is ever praising the merits of Utah and is one of the many Utah business men whose eastern connections hear much from him concerning the many advantages of the intermountain region.

WILLIAM H. ELLISON

NO MAN in Utah is more enthusiastic about one line of public utility than is William H. Ellison, concerning the subject of good roads. Mr. Ellison is president and manager of the Anderson Insurance agency of this city. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias, the Alta club, the Automobile club of Utah and the Salt Lake Commercial club. Mr. Ellison is a "booster" for Salt Lake City and Utah, and also overwhelmingly in favor of highway improvements of all kinds. He is a Republican.

Born at Wausau, Wisconsin, January 19, 1862, he is another example of the eastern born making his fortune in the west. His parents were Richard Ellison and Margaret Lash Ellison, his father being a pioneer of Nebraska in 1868. One point of interest is that he left home at sixteen years of age with 35 cents and a handkerchief containing his personal effects.

In 1901 the younger Ellison came to Utah, settling in Ogden in March of that year. He moved after two years and a half to Salt Lake City.

Mr. Ellison is married, his wife having been Miss Rosa M. Frost.

Mr. Ellison is most proud of his position as president of the Midland Trail association. He spent one-half of his time during 1913 getting the $50,000 appropriation through the state legislature and getting the Indiana party of autoists to come over the road.

He has been a constant advocate of the idea that Utah has enormous scenic assets that can be made to produce a large annual revenue by building roads which will make it possible for automobile tourists to come here, and inducing them to come by letting them know what is to be seen in Utah.

Mr. Ellison also is a supporter of an automobile touring route taking in Colorado, Utah, and Yellowstone park.

"Salt Lake City is the hub and the automobile tourist going to Yellowstone park, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and the Grand canyon should first come to Salt Lake City."

CHARLES M. MORRIS

AMONG the rising members of the Utah Bar association is Charles M. Morris. He is a native son of Utah, having been born in Salt Lake City June 18, 1882. His parents were Robert and Mrs. Josephine Meyer Morris. After receiving his graded school education, he showed an aptitude for law, and determined to enter college, with the purpose of taking up that profession. He spent the years 1895 to 1898 inclusively at the L. D. S. college. Then, in 1898, he entered the University of Utah, and in 1901 he finished his work there. After three years' time he took up the special study of law at the George Washington university, from 1904 to 1908. Mr. Morris made an excellent record there, and when he was graduated in February, 1908, with the degree of LL. B., he was well prepared to enter the practice of law.

He returned to Utah and located in its capital city, where he has grown to be prominently identified with the legal profession. Mr. Morris finds time for many interests outside those of his profession. He is a member of the Utah State Bar association, of the Native Sons of Utah and of the Salt Lake Commercial club.

He is a staunch Republican. He served as secretary of the congressional printing investigation committee from 1909 to 1911, and also as deputy county attorney of Salt Lake county from 1911 to 1913, inclusive.

Mr. Morris's wife formerly was Miss Elizabeth Bowring. They have been blessed with two children: Jack B., 4 years of age, and Jean, 1 year of age. Their daughter Ruth died in 1909.

CHARLES M. HECKER

CHARLES M. HECKER, printer, musician, writer, was born in Miamisburg, Ohio, January 27, 1873, son of Benjamin F. and Eliza J. (Zimmer) Hecker. He attended the public schools of his native town, at the same time learning something of the printing trade in the office of the Miamisburg News, and receiving instruction in violin playing. Later he attended the Indianapolis High school. After completing his schooling he followed the profession of musician for a time, teaching, and playing in the Henry Beissenherz orchestra and the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, and then returned to the printing business. For five years he was an instructor in the Indiana Institution for the Education of the Deaf, and then went into business in Indianapolis as a member of Hecker Brothers, Printers. He was married in 1900 to S. Jean Cummings, a teacher in the Indiana School for the Deaf. The next year he sold his interests in Indiana and came to Salt Lake with his family in February, 1902. He worked on the daily papers in Salt Lake as proofreader and compositor for several years. He was head proofreader for the commission which compiled the State laws of 1907. Since 1914 he has been a member of the Independent Linotypers, where he has been eminently successful.

As a writer Mr. Hecker has contributed much to the magazines devoted to the printing trade. In 1915 he was awarded first prize in the open competition conducted by the Commercial club for an article about Salt Lake, which competition attracted the foremost writers of the city.

As a printer and musician Mr. Hecker has traveled from Toronto to Los Angeles and San Francisco. He is a member of the Typographical Union, and since coming to Salt Lake has been twice honored by being elected delegate to the convention of the International Typographical Union, in Cleveland, 1912, and in Nashville, 1913. He is also a member of the United Typothetæ and Ben Franklin Clubs. He is a member of no other society. His children are Charles Todd and Margaret E. Hecker. The family resides at 1112 East Second South.

NATHANIEL G. STRINGHAM.

DIRECT descendant of the Utah pioneers, Nathaniel George Stringham is a typical example of the successful Utah man. He was born in Salt Lake on November 1, 1871. His father was Briant Stringham and his mother Harriet M. Stringham. Mr. Stringham inherits his natural pride in Utah and its history, for his father was a member of that heroic band of pioneers who crossed the plains and entered this valley with Brigham Young in 1847. His mother was a pioneer of 1848, one of the brave women who dared the dangers and vicissitudes of pioneer travel.

The subject of this sketch received a good education. In addition to the public schools' training, he was a student later at the University of Utah in 1890, spending that year to good advantage.

Mr. Stringham has lived all his life in Salt Lake City. He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Mary Freeze. They have four children, Ruth, eighteen years of age, Paul F., fourteen years of age, Hugh G., twelve years of age, and John J., nine years of age.

Insurance is the calling to which Mr. Stringham is devoting all his energies. He is foremost in the ranks of life insurance men of this state and has made for himself an enviable record in that line of business.

He was one of the organizers of the Beneficial Life Insurance company in 1905, which entering the field of life insurance as a new concern, has already proven to be a wonderful success.

Mr. Stringham also helped organize the Farmers and Stockgrowers bank in 1913. He withdrew from the organization just after its incorporation.

TRACY Y. CANNON

UTAH has gained world-wide fame from her sons and daughters who are gifted in music. One of the leaders in the musical life of the state is Tracy Y. Cannon of Salt Lake. Mr. Cannon is a son of Caroline Young and Mark Croxall. After his father's death Mr. Cannon's mother married George Q. Cannon, and the young man took the name of his stepfather.

Tracy Y. Cannon was born in Salt Lake July 27, 1879, and at an early age showed a marked tendency for music. His father, Mark Croxall, was distinguished in the early days of the state as a cornetist, hence music came naturally to the son.

Educated in the University School of Music, University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, Mr. Cannon later had for his teacher the renowned Alberto Jonas. He remained at Ann Arbor two years, 1898 to 1900, and five years later went to Berlin, studying with Jonas from 1905 to 1908. In 1908 he went to Paris and was accepted by the renowned Alex Guilmant, with whom he studied harmony, composition and orchestration. He studied also with Albert A. Stanley, Walter Meyrnitz and Albert Roussel.

Mr. Cannon is assistant organist at the Salt Lake Tabernacle of the Mormon Church, where he has played for hundreds of thousands of tourists at the free organ recitals, on one of the largest and finest pipe organs in existence. He also is director of music for the Pioneer stake Choristers' and Organists' association, and had an extremely large following in his own studio.

Mr. Cannon is married. His wife formerly was Miss Lettie Taylor. They have two children, Taylor, 3 years of age, and Melvin, 18 months old. Mr. Cannon has written a large number of successful songs and other music, which is distinguished for its splendid and pleasing arrangement and for its originality of conception and construction. His home is at 1200 South Eighth West street, Salt Lake City.

LAWRENCE GREENE

WITH twenty years' experience as general manager of a big mining company in Idaho, Lawrence Greene was well equipped to assume the responsibilities of president and manager of the Utah Fire Clay company when it fell to his lot to assume that position. Mr. Greene was born at Ottawa, Canada, January 25, 1865. His parents were Robert Young Greene, a native of Ireland, and Mary Jane Monk Greene, a native of Canada.

He attended the Collegiate Institute at Ottawa, from 1880 to 1883, in which year he was graduated.

Mr. Greene was a resident of Idaho for twenty years, as general manager of the Clayton Mining & Smelting company, during which period he perfected his knowledge of the details of the mining and smelting business. He then became president and general manager of the Utah Fire Clay company at Salt Lake City. This company is the largest of its kind between the Mississippi river and the Pacific coast, and it makes a greater variety of fire clay products than any other plant in the United States.

Mr. Greene is married. His wife is Katherine Colvin Greene, and they have four children: Godfrey C. Greene, 23 years of age; Claudia Lloyd Greene, 19 years of age; Robert Harold Greene, 16 years of age, and Lawrence Greene, Jr., eight years of age.

Social life has its charms for Mr. Greene as well as the more exacting duties of business. He is a member of Salt Lake Lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks; the Alta Club and the Commercial Club of Salt Lake. In the latter Mr. Greene is specially prominent in his efforts to develop Salt Lake City and add to its prosperity.

The principles of the Republican party are espoused by Mr. Greene. He is interested financially in the Utah Fire Clay company; the Intermountain Life Insurance Company and the Clayton Mining & Smelting company. The family home is at 156 First avenue, Salt Lake City.

JOHN A. BURT.

A MEMBER of one of the most widely known real estate brokerage companies in Utah, and a director and officer of seven local corporations, is John A. Burt, who came to Salt Lake City several years ago with no possessions but an excellent reputation. For eleven years Mr. Burt struggled for what he now possesses, having had no pulls nor any financial assistance from any source whatsoever. Since his star began to ascend Mr. Burt is in a position to point in most any direction in Salt Lake City and say with pride that landmarks of various descriptions, such as residences and business houses, have been erected through his efforts. He has at the least two hundred such structures to his credit.

John A. Burt, son of Mary E. Seddon and John Burt, was born in Salt Lake City, February 7, 1881, and when six years of age his parents moved to the country, where he toiled with his father until sixteen years of age. At this age Mr. Burt, who was desirous of acquiring an education, left the farm for Mercur and Eureka, where he worked and saved his earnings with which to carry him through school.

After working for some time with the Consolidated Wagon & Machine Company he left his position to take charge of Fifth Ward Co-operative store and was first secretary and organizer of the Butchers and Grocers' Association.

Since that time he has devoted his time to the real estate brokerage business. His success in that line is well known. Mr. Burt's education was eventually gained at the Latter-day Saints College, he having graduated from the public schools of Utah county, Utah, in 1898. Although not a member of any fraternal organization he is one of the most active members of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. His wife's maiden name was Luella H. Harrow. Included in the family are three boys, Emerson, six years of age; Lester, four years of age and Milton, one year of age.

CHARLES F. PINKERTON.

AMONG the leaders in the medical profession which stands guard over the health and lives in Salt Lake City, is Dr. Charles Frederick Pinkerton.

This eminent physician and surgeon was born March 16, 1876, in Peria county, Illinois. He received the common school education which was afforded by the graded schools of that section. Then he decided upon his life's work. His enthusiasm for things medical resulted in his beginning the medical course at Creighton University, Omaha, Neb., in 1895, and was graduated from the medical department in 1899.

He did thorough work, his medical studies being followed with that adherence to faithful duty that has since been a feature of his career.

He remained in the middle west for two years. Finally he decided to come west, and located in Salt Lake City in 1901. He quickly won for himself a reputation and has gained an enviable standing throughout the state.

Dr. Pinkerton is married. His wife formerly was Miss Lylith Zenger, and they have two children: Lylith Louise Pinkerton, eight years of age; and Clare Ernesta Pinkerton, two years of age.

Outside of his many professional duties, Dr. Pinkerton devotes much time to those social duties which mark the broad and liberal-minded man. He is a member of the Masons and the Odd Fellows. In addition to this, he is an active worker for the good of the Republican party, being a firm believer in the tenets of that organization.

Still comparatively young, for the success to which he has attained in his chosen calling, Dr. Pinkerton has brought great credit to the names of his parents: Charles Frederick Pinkerton and Mrs. Mary Jane (Stevenson) Pinkerton.

FRANCIS JOSEPH HAGENBARTH

FRANCIS JOSEPH HAGENBARTH was born April 15, 1868, at Leesburg, Idaho; his mother, Catharine Veit, was born in the city of Vienna, Austria, and his father, Francis Joseph Hagenbarth, was also a native of Austria. After serving as captain of the Ninth Wisconsin Volunteers and after the war the father moved to Denver, where he married; moving to Salt Lake City in 1866. In 1867 Mr. and Mrs. Hagenbarth went to Virginia City, Montana, and subsequently to Leesburg, Idaho, near Salmon City, where the subject of our sketch was born.

Mr. Hagenbarth graduated from the University of Notre Dame at South Bend, Indiana, in 1887, going from there to the state of Idaho, where he has since resided, his present residence being at Spencer, Fremont county, Idaho.

Mr. Hagenbarth's business interests are diversified, as he is interested largely in mining and in livestock growing and ranching, being president of the largest sheep and cattle company of the northwest. He is also interested and affiliated with the banking, insurance and other interests in Utah and Idaho. He is president of the Continental Life Insurance company, treasurer of the Guardian Casualty & Guaranty company, and president of various mining companies, among which are the Thompson-Quincy of Park City, and the Yerington Consolidated Copper company of Yerington, Nevada.

He is a member of the Alta and University clubs of this city; also the Rocky Mountain club of New York City, the Chicago Athletic association, and the Jonathan club of Los Angeles. He has also been a consistent member of the Republican party, but has never held office except as presidential elector on two occasions and delegate to state and national conventions. After the death of Mr. Hagenbarth's father, his mother married the late J. D. Wood, and she now lives in this city, where she is well known and highly esteemed.

WILLIAM W. TORRENCE

WHEREVER professional engineers gather, the word "Gunnison tunnel" is an open sesame, and wherever the Gunnison tunnel is spoken of the mention of the name of William W. Torrence is essential. It was Mr. Torrence who, as a young government engineer, as he modestly puts it, "did most of the exploring" in connection with the tunnel. Which means that in the early days of that project Torrence "was" the Gunnison tunnel. His work has been fully commended and described in news reports, magazines and professional papers. As a result, he was appointed manager of the General Electric company at Salt Lake and is now a Salt Lake resident, with his office in the Newhouse building.

Mr. Torrence is still a young man with an extended future in his profession. He was born in Senecaville, Ohio, March 1, 1873. His parents were James Torrence and Sarah J. (Clark) Torrence. After making a name in his profession principally through his work in the Gunnison tunnel, which was of nation-wide renown, Mr. Torrence came to Salt Lake in June, 1911, and although a recent arrival has already made a name in social and business circles. He is a member of both the Alta and the Commercial clubs.

He was one of the first of Utah's prominent professional men to affiliate with the Progressive party.

Mrs. Torrence was born Frances E. Swickard.

WILLIAM ROBERT CALVERT

THE subject of this sketch is of Scotch-Irish parentage, and was born in the Province of Ontario, Canada. At an early age he was taken to eastern Nebraska, and received his education in the public schools of that state, graduating from the University of Nebraska in 1904, after specializing in geology and engineering, and completing later, in absentia, the work necessary to obtain an A. M. degree. After graduation he was chemist with two metallurgical plants.

He then taught geology and mining in the University of Washington, having charge of the Department of Geology in that institution during the summer session of 1906. He then entered the United States Geological Survey, attained the rank of Geologist in 1911, and was chairman of the Coal Classification board from January, 1911, until his resignation in April, 1912. After resigning from that position he came to Salt Lake City to take up private practice as consulting geologist and engineer.

Mr. Calvert is still affiliated with government scientific service, and holds an appointment as consulting geologist in the United States Bureau of Mines, for which bureau he has examined various oil fields in the states, and the Bering River coal field of Alaska. He is affiliated with various scientific societies, and is the author of numerous government bulletins dealing with coal and oil resources, besides being a regular contributor to various scientific and technical journals.

NICHOLAS JOHN BULLER

NICHOLAS JOHN BULLER of 1045 South Fourth East street, one of the best known members of the Greek community in Salt Lake, was born in Athens, Greece, in 1877, his mother being Katherine Buller and his father John Buller. Young Buller was given a common school education and then went out into the business world to shift for himself.

The lure of America captured him, and about eighteen years ago he emigrated from his native country. He lived in Chicago for three years, where he was engaged in business, later going to Butte, where he spent nine years, and finally coming to Salt Lake, where he has been resident six years. While in Butte, he was president of the Greek community. In Salt Lake, he was for several years treasurer of the Greek community.

Mr. Buller was married to Miss Helen Kelperis, and to them were born two daughters: Katherine, now 8 years old, and Thelma, 4 years old. Mr. Buller is a member of the Knights of Pythias, Modern Woodmen and the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Catering to the wants of the public is Mr. Buller's long suit. As a restaurateur he has had many years' experience. He is owner of the State cafe on Third South street, and is part owner also of a large restaurant in Butte.

WILLIARD WEIHE.

THERE is no more distinguished musician in the west than Willard Weihe. Mr. Weihe is not only a consummate artist but a director second to none. His parents were born in Christiania, Norway. His father and mother were Bolleta Aas-Weihe and Andreas Weihe. Professor Weihe's father died in England.

At the age of ten years the artist, accompanied by his mother, brother and sister came to Salt Lake City, as converts to the Mormon faith.

With the exception of his European trips Mr. Weihe has made his home in this city. At a reception at the Hotel Templeton, given to the wife of the English explorer, Henry M. Stanley, during Mr. Weihe's young manhood, the noted English woman became so enthusiastic over his ability that she invited him to go to London where she would introduce him to the best society.

Madame Melba had heard of Professor Weihe in the east. On learning of his presence at her concert at the Mormon tabernacle, she changed the program in order to sing Bach-Gounod's Ave Maria to his violin obligato. The Mendelssohn Quintette Club of Boston offered to carry him as violin soloist. Miss Emma Thursby, at the time of her first appearance in Salt Lake City, offered Professor Weihe the position of accompanist. He was also offered the position of soloist at Daly's theatre, New York City. At the age of eight years Professor Weihe played for the celebrated Ole Bull, who offered to give him a thorough conservatory education at the noted Paris conservatory. The offer was rejected on account of his youth, by Mr. Weihe's parents. At Brussels he was at once admitted to the highest class in violin playing as pupil of the great Vieuxtemps. Later he studied with de Ahna of the Joachim quartette. Mr. Weihe has appeared on the concert platform all over America and has been a soloist at the Portland, Jamestown and Chicago World's fairs. He organized the first orchestra in Utah. He numbers among his dearest friends such artists as Ysaye, Max Bendix and other celebrities.

CARL A. BADGER.

AS A LAWYER, member and director of various Utah corporations and a member of the law firm of Booth, Lee, Badger, Rich & Parke, one of the most widely known law firms in the West, Carl A. Badger is known throughout the State. He was born October 1, 1878, in Salt Lake City, and has since made his residence in Utah. His parents, Louisa Ashby Badger and Rodney C. Badger, are persons known as well as any other family in the West. He is the grandson of Rodney Badger, who was a member of the first company of pioneers who arrived in the Salt Lake valley under Brigham Young, July 24, 1847. His school days were passed in Salt Lake City. After the common school education Mr. Badger attended the Latter-day Saints' University of Salt Lake City. He later entered the George Washington University, at Washington, D. C., in 1903, graduating from that institution in 1906, with the degree of L. L. B.

His marriage to Miss Rosalia Jenkins took place June 26, 1901. The family now includes seven children, namely: Carlos J., Ashby J., Rosalia, Alice, Elizabeth, Thomas and Rodney Badger.

From 1903 until 1907, Mr. Badger was secretary to Senator Reed Smoot, and was State Senator from Salt Lake county from 1909 to 1911. He was a member of the committee appointed by the Civic League to visit Des Moines, Iowa, in December, 1908, to investigate the commission plan of government. Later he was instrumental in securing the adoption of the commission form of government for Utah cities.

Mr. Badger has been the secretary of the Utah State Bar Association since 1912; a member of the American Bar Association, and a member of the bar examination committee since 1913, appointed by the Supreme Court of Utah In addition to his other duties Mr. Badger is a director of the Builders' Loan & Trust Company, a member of the Native Sons of Utah, and a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. His political views have always been Republican.

HARRY SHELLY HARPER.

LAWYER and former newspaper man, Harry S. Harper, former justice of the peace and coroner for the precinct of Salt Lake City, is qualified as a reader of human nature.

Mr. Harper is a native of Missouri, and he has the quality that is supposed to be inherent with all natives of that state. His father was Samuel P. Harper, and his mother Martha A. Parker-Harper. He was born December 19, 1874. His father served as a captain in a Confederate cavalry troop through the Civil war. Mr. Harper's parents were natives of Kentucky.

Mr. Harper is a Republican in politics. He was educated at Clinton Academy, at Clinton, Mo., in 1892 and 1893; and later at Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va., in 1894 and 1895, being graduated in the latter year from the law department.

Two years later Mr. Harper came to Salt Lake City, and while waiting for a suitable opportunity to engage in the practice of law, entered the local newspaper field as a reporter. He then began the practice of his profession, and in 1910 was elected justice of the peace and coroner for Salt Lake City precinct, which offices he now holds.

Mr. Harper is married. His wife was formerly Miss Katherine Clough. Their children are Harry Clough Harper, 11 years of age; and Grace Edith Harper, 8 years of age.

Mr. Harper is a member of Argenta Lodge No. 3, F. and A. M., the Modern Woodmen of America, the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Fraternal Brotherhood, all of Salt Lake City. He also is a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake. The family home is at 129 D street, Salt Lake City.

JAMES W. WADE.

JAMES W. WADE was born in Kirby, England, April 26, 1882, and is of Scotch-English descent. He came to Salt Lake City with his parents in 1883. Thus practically, Mr. Kirby is a Utahn, having received all his training and education in Utah.

He received a liberal and specialized education. He attended the public schools of this city and later the School of Mines at the University of Utah, from 1901 to 1905, when he was graduated. Thus equipped, he took up the profession of a mining engineer and has made a brilliant success.

Both operation and examination of mines are the features of his work. He is a member of the Engineers' Leasing Company, and the Salt Lake Blueprint Company. He has been mining engineer for the Honerine Mining Company, the Annie Laurie Mining Company, the Western Exploration Company, the National Development Company, the Utah Apex Mining Company, and in addition to that, since 1907 he has had charge of the engineering work on the Mammoth side of the Mammoth-Grand Central litigation.

Mr. Wade is married. His wife's maiden name was Miss Caroline Atkins. One child, Lorna, was born May 1, 1913.

Mr. Wade is a member of the University Club. While at the University of Utah he was prominent in athletics, being captain of the 'varsity football eleven in 1903 and in 1904. During his four years at that institution he ran the mile and half-mile runs

Mr. Wade is a Republican and is an earnest party man. He has had marked success in leasing of mines, in addition to his other mining engineering work.

CHARLES J. A. LINDQUIST

MORE and more the profession of the undertaker is becoming a science. Those engaged in this calling are professional men in the truest sense of the word and their calling demands the highest ability to win success. Among the foremost undertakers in Utah today is Charles J. A. Lindquist of Ogden. Mr. Lindquist has the distinction of having been one of the first five undertakers of Utah to pass the examination before the state board for interstate transportation of bodies. Mr. Lindquist is a Utah man. He was born in Salt Lake City July 24, 1864. His father was Nels A. Lindquist, and his mother, Mrs. Josephine Gilbert Lindquist.

From 1868 to 1887 Mr. Lindquist lived in Logan, Utah, and then moved to Ogden. He visited in Europe twice, two years each time, his first visit being from 1883-5 and his second from 1905-6.

While still a young man Mr. Lindquist became interested in the profession of undertaker and funeral director. He first studied this calling under F. A. Sullivan, specializing on the work of embalming.

Mr. Lindquist is a graduate of a first-class school of embalming. He also studied embalming under Prof. W. S. Hohenschuh of the Iowa School of Embalming, located at Denver, Colo.

Mr. Lindquist is married. His wife was formerly Miss Amelia C. Larson. They have seven children, four girls and three boys. The oldest son, Carl A. Lindquist, is a graduate of the Renouard Training School of Embalming, and passed the examination before the New York state board of embalming and sanitary science in June, 1899.

HOWARD F. CHAPPELL

WHEN the European war checked the exportation of potash and similar products from Germany, Americans began to look about for potash fields in their own country, to supply the enormous demands made by agricultural districts and in the industries. Howard F. Chappell made a careful examination of the Utah potash deposits, resulting in the formation of the Mineral Products company, which was organized to develop the potash deposits at Marysvale, Utah. The company constructed a refining plant and began at once the production of potash exceeding in purity that which had formerly been imported from Germany.

Howard F. Chappell is a son of W. H. and Eliza A. Chappell, and is a native of St. Louis, Mo. His family have been prominent for three generations as manufacturing chemists. Mr. Chappell himself retired from many activities ten years ago, but the Utah potash proposition was so attractive to him that he accepted the presidency of the Mineral Products Corporation.

Mr. Chappell is a graduate of Yale university, the Polytechnic school at Hanover, Germany, and the Mining Academy at Friedburg, Germany, of Friedburg-Wilhelm university, Berlin, and of the Yale Scientific department, graduating from the latter institution in 1881. He came first to Utah in 1911.

Mr. Chappell is married. His wife's maiden name was Gertrude Campbell, and they have one daughter, Jeannette Chappell. Mr. Chappell is a member of the University club, New York, and of the St. Andrews Golf club, New York.

WESLEY EDWARD KING

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW and connected with several corporations, a man who has made a reputation throughout the state during his few years' residence in Salt Lake City, one who is considered second to none in his profession, is Wesley Edward King, who, since his arrival in the state has become identified with many matters in which the public has taken unusual interest. His business associates and social acquaintances are numbered among the best known and most influential men in the community.

Mr. King, the son of Harriett Forshee King and William Lovejoy King, was born May 4, 1876, at Kinmundy, Illinois.

Mr. King entered the University of Illinois in 1892. After remaining there five years he left, engaging in business until 1901. He graduated from the law department of the Illinois institution in 1902. Early in 1908 Mr. King came to Salt Lake.

Besides being a practicing attorney Mr. King is the manager of the bond department of the Aetna Accident and Liability company and manager of the Wesley King Agency company. He is vice-president of the Bettilyon Home Builders company and the Jersey Creamery company. He was married several years ago to Miss Wilhelmina Marie Groweg.

While in attendance at the University of Illinois, Mr. King was accepted as a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He was also one of the three men who, three years ago, organized the Rotary club of Salt Lake City. He is a member of the membership committee of the Salt Lake Commercial club; organizer of the local Surety association, the local Illinois Alumni association, and the Alpha Tau branch in Salt Lake. Mr. King is also a member of the Masonic fraternity and a member of the Mystic Shrine, as well as of the Naval and Military order of the Spanish-American war. His work in connection with the Salt Lake Commercial club has gained many friends with that organization. Mr. King is a member of the University club, the Press club of Salt Lake and the Salt Lake Ad club, in each of which organizations he is prominent and active.

WALTER W. BYRNE

OF ENGLISH-IRISH descent, born and educated in the United States, Walter W. Byrne is an adopted son of Utah. He occupies an enviable position in the ranks of the mining men of the intermountain region, and has brilliant prospects of continued success in that line.

It is the case, usually, of the west drawing its citizens from the east, but in this instance the intermountain region acquired one of its leading citizens from the west coast. Mr. Byrne was born at Grass Valley, California, in 1868. He came to Utah in 1900.

His parents were Michael Byrne, Jr., and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Byrne. His mother was of English extraction and his father of Irish descent.

He received a sound business training at Heald's Business college at San Francisco, being graduated in 1887.

He has represented the Giant Powder company, all the way from Mexico to Alaska, for the past sixteen years, and is well known by all prominent mining men in the western country. This concern, which he so ably represents, is one of the leading companies in that line of business. It was incorporated seventy-five years ago, and manufactures all classes of explosives for blasting, as well as caps and fuse.

Mr. Byrne has a genial nature, and is well liked in business and social circles. He is unmarried and makes his home at the Hotel Utah, Salt Lake City. Politically Mr. Byrne is a "stand-pat" Republican.

He is heavily interested in mining properties in Utah, Idaho, Nevada and California. He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club, and is a most enthusiastic "booster" for Utah.

FRED C. HATHAWAY.

FRED C. HATHAWAY, after attending the University of the Pacific near San Jose, Cal., taking a preparatory course in 1900 and 1901, with a view to entering the profession of law, decided instead to engage in the life insurance business, and has since followed that business.

He was born at Yreka, Cal., July 30, 1879, of William and Mary A. Hathaway. His mother's ancestry came from England and his father's forefathers were sea captains. His father, a woolen manufacturer, came west after serving on the Union side during the Civil war.

Mr. Hathaway, who married Ada L. Anderson of San Jose, Cal., has three children, W. Neil, Fred C., Jr., and Ada Louise Hathaway. He is a thirty-second degree Mason, and a member of El Kalah Shrine, Salt Lake City.

He is manager of the intermountain branch of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, and is a member of the executive committee of the Utah Association of Life Underwriters. He is a Republican in national politics. He is a member of the Salt Lake Press Club and the Commercial Club of Salt Lake.

Mr. Hathaway's rise in the insurance world has been rapid. He began at Albuquerque, N. M., as a clerk in the Mutual office; became assistant cashier; was transferred to Portland, Ore., becoming cashier; and later became superintendent of agents in the San Francisco office. Then he became assistant manager in that office and three years later came to Salt Lake to manage the intermountain field. He is the youngest manager the company has ever appointed. More than 100 salesmen work under his direction. He is a regular contributor of articles on agency organization and other insurance topics to eastern insurance magazines. He also is president and organizer of the Utah Association of Life Insurance Companies and General Agents.

REMBRANDT HOWARD PEALE.

REMBRANDT HOWARD PEALE, one of Salt Lake's best known brokers, comes of famous lineage. He is the great grandson of Charles Wilson Peale, the celebrated painter of portraits of George Washington.

Mr. Peale was born in Chicago, Ills., on April 22, 1875. He received his education in that city, attending the common schools of that city and later, one of the high schools. Further than this along educational lines he has gained by extensive reading and study on his own part, and by close observation of men and affairs, applied to his chosen work.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Mayme C. Chambers.

Mr. Peale has been active in the business life of several of the larger cities of the United States. In addition to Chicago, he has carried on his profession of broker in Denver, Kansas City, Mo., San Francisco and Salt Lake.

He was in San Francisco until after the earthquake, coming to Salt Lake from the coast in 1906. For a time he had his branch office of his firm here and his main office in the northern California city. But now he has transposed them, making Utah's capitol his headquarters and his home, and is proud of the city of his choice.

He is a broker in government land scrip, handling practically all the scrip used in the western country by the railroads, the cattle companies and the big corporations.

He is a Republican and has a record as a steadfast worker for the interests of that party.

As a loyal Utahn he belongs to the Salt Lake Commercial Club in fact as well as word, and is well known in the actual affairs of that "boosting" organization. He also belongs to the Alta Club and is a member of the Masonic order and of the B. P. O. Elks.

SAMUEL WHITE STEWART.

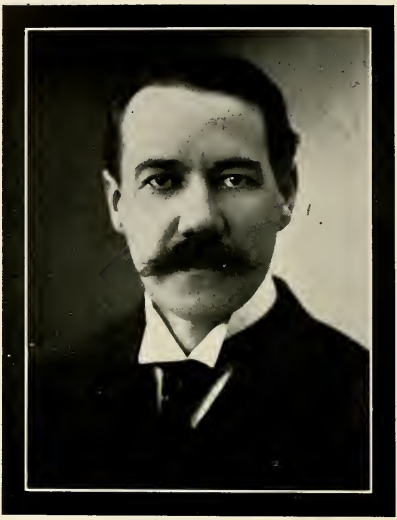
AMONG law firms of Utah, none is more prominent or successful than the firm of Stewart, Stewart & Alexander of Salt Lake City. The most prominent and successful of this prominent and successful firm is Judge Samuel White Stewart, senior member.

Judge Stewart was born May 21, 1867, at Draper, Salt Lake county, Utah. He was the son of Isaac M. Stewart and Elizabeth White Stewart. He was educated in the public and private schools of Salt Lake City, the University of Utah and the University of Michigan. He graduated from the Michigan school in 1892 with the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

He began practice in Utah and was admitted to the bars of the supreme courts of the United States, of Utah and of Michigan. He has served in the state legislature and was chairman of the judiciary committee of the House of Representatives of the Third legislature in 1898.

From 1901 to 1905 he occupied the bench of the Third Judicial district and twice since 1905 has been the nominee of the Democratic party for the district bench. In 1907, he was its nominee for the supreme court. From 1908 to the present time, he has been a member of the State Board of Corrections. He is a member of the American Society of Jurisprudence, president of the Stewart Ranch Company and vice-president of the Kamas State Bank of Kamas, Utah.

Judge Stewart was married September 19, 1894 to Ella M. Nebeker and resides at 35 East First North Street, Salt Lake City.



STEPHEN H. LOVE.

AMONG the complexities of business which have arisen during the days of careful organization, the adjustment of freight rates has to be watched constantly and the community protected in its rights to secure and hold equal advantages in trade. Thus there has arisen in every large city in the country a Commercial Club to look after the business interests of the city. One of the departments of the larger commercial clubs is the traffic bureau, which is as a sentry guarding the interests of commerce. It is as the head of the Salt Lake Commercial Club Traffic Bureau that Stephen H. Love is perhaps best known today throughout the state and the country.

Stephen H. Love is a native of Utah. He was born in Salt Lake City in 1865. His forbears were Scotch and among the sturdy pioneers who first settled in Utah.

Mr. Love received a good fundamental education and has studied business with the concentrated thought that has spelled the word "Success" in large letters. In some cases the word "expert" has been cheapened by overuse. But in the case of Mr. Love, his business associates and railroad men alike refer to him as an expert on rates.

Mr. Love is now traffic manager of Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution of Salt Lake City, a position which entails great responsibilities. The work is in direct line with that of his office as president of the Salt Lake Commercial Club's Traffic Bureau. Mr. Love is also president of the Security Storage & Commission Company, the Moapa Farm & Orchard Company, the Wandamere Amusement Company and other concerns.

He is a Progressive in politics. He was state senator for eight years and was twice president of the senate. He ran for congress from Utah, but met with defeat.

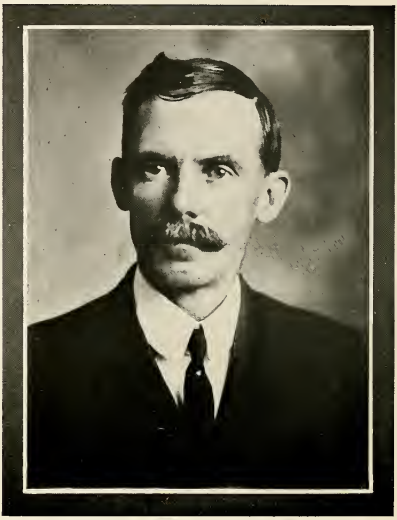
He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club, the Rotary Club, the Bonneville Club and other social organizations. He is married, his wife being formerly Miss Eleanor Wilding.

A. S. ERICKSON

A WOOL agent who handles wool totaling ten to twenty million pounds annually is not found every day, even in a state as largely devoted to wool growing as Utah. Therefore, the name of A. S. Erickson has become prominent in Salt Lake. Mr. Erickson has for several years been the resident agent for the B. Harris Wool company of St. Louis, one of the largest concerns dealing in wools and operating in this section. Every pound of the large annual total is handled through Salt Lake City by Mr. Erickson, which may account in a measure for the prominence of this city as a shipping point and wool clearing center.

Mr. Erickson was born in Grantsville, Utah, in May, 1869, the son of Mary Ann Erickson and Swen Erickson, who came to Utah with one of the pioneer companies in 1857. His education was secured in the public schools and at the Brigham Young college in Logan, from which he graduated in 1891.

In the fall of 1905 Mr. Erickson located in Salt Lake. He was married to Miss Emily L. Boothe and has five children. He is a Republican in politics, and is a member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake City.



THOMAS A. CALLISTER

THOMAS A. CALLISTER is a son of Edward Callister and Ann Cowley Callister. He was born in Salt Lake City January 15, 1868, and has lived in this city virtually all his life. Mr. Callister's parents were natives of the Isle of Man, and came to Utah seven years after the first little band of pioneers determined to settle in the valley of the Great Salt Lake. The elder Mr. Callister was a tailor, one of the pioneers in that useful trade in Utah.

Because of the predominance of agricultural and live stock interests in the early days, Mr. Callister became thoroughly familiar with the live stock industry. It was natural that he should have engaged in that business in his early manhood. He is now interested largely in the Callister Land & Live Stock company, which has extensive holdings. He also is interested financially and actively in the Star Printing company, which has an up-to-date and complete job printing establishment in Postoffice Place, Salt Lake City.

Mr. Callister attended the public schools of Utah in his boyhood, but gained a far wider practical education on the range and over the type cases. He is married. His wife was Miss Bertha James. They have the following sons and daughters: Retta, 22 years of age; Ella, 17 years of age; Elbert, 14 years of age; Ralph, 10 years of age; Mildred, 7 years of age, and Kenneth, 2 years of age.

Mr. Callister is a Republican, and is active in the work of that party. He stands high in the councils of the party throughout the state. He is a member of the Native Sons of Utah, but has not affiliated with other secret or fraternal organizations.

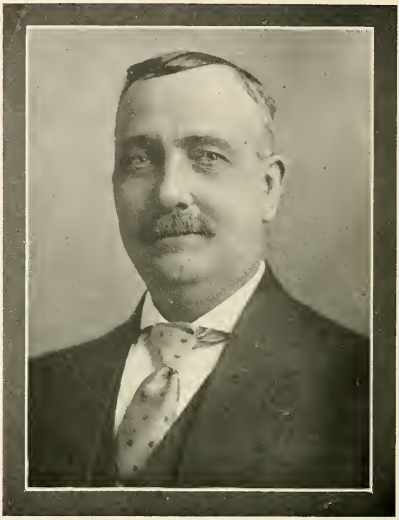
ERNEST C. McGARRY

BELIEVING that great gold mines will be developed at Fortuna, just twelve miles east of Beaver City, Beaver county, Ernest C. McGarry, mining operator, has been devoting his energies to putting that part of the state on the map in big red outlines. Mr. McGarry is president of the Fortuna Independence Mining company and is interested in other property in the district. While still a young man, he has enjoyed phenomenal success in his mining operations and has won a name as an authority on the Beaver gold district.

Ernest C. McGarry is the son of James and Elizabeth McGarry and was born in Beaver City, Utah, in 1881. The father came to this state from Vermont, while the mother was a former resident of California. Mr. McGarry, senior, was a veteran of the Civil War.

Ernest C. McGarry, following completion of the public school course, attended the University of Utah, from which he was graduated in 1901. Several years after leaving the university, he was married to Hortense Christian, from which marriage was born one daughter, Agnes, now 9 years of age.

When news of gold strikes in the mountains east of the city reached Beaver considerable excitement was aroused. Mr. McGarry went into the district and was successful in getting hold of some most likely looking property. He became associated with E. A. Hodges, the latter being superintendent and manager of the various properties jointly owned. Mr. McGarry lives at 1388 South Ninth East, Salt Lake City.



WILLIAM J. MOORE

ATTRACTED by the possibilities of development in the western part of the United States, William J. Moore left his home in Elgin county, Ontario, Canada, in 1880, and went to Watertown, S. D., where he remained ten years. Then he came to the new empire of Utah, locating in Salt Lake City in 1890, and engaging in the real estate and insurance business.

He achieved commercal success and built for himself an excellent standing among his business associates.

Mr. Moore was born Sept. 25, 1859, and attended St. Thomas high school, St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, afterward attending Helmuth academy, Toronto. His next scholastic experience was in the Belleville Commercial college, Belleville, Ontario, from which he was graduated after obtaining a thorough business education.

Mr. Moore continued in the real estate and insurance business in Salt Lake City until 1903, when he was appointed a deputy in the office of the county treasurer. He is a Republican, and has taken a deep interest in politics. He has attended every Republican state convention held in Utah during his residence in this state. He remained in the office of the county treasurer until 1915. He has been chairman of his party's precinct organization many times.

Mr. Moore is an enthusiastic and earnest member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He is affiliated with Utah Lodge No. 1, I. O. O. F., of which he is secretary, and with the grand lodge of Utah. He is grand scribe of the grand lodge, and is secretary of the Odd Fellows' Building association. He also is a member of the Knights of the Maccabees.

Mr. Moore is married and has two children. He taught school two years in his early manhood at London, Ontario, Canada. The family home is at 1154 South Eighth East street, Salt Lake City.

CHARLES N. SWEET.

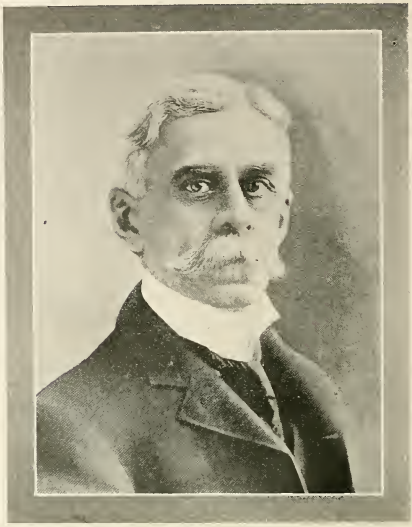
DURING the thirteen years he was employed in the traffic department of the Harriman Railroad system, Charles N. Sweet acquired knowledge of thousands of concrete facts concerning the western states, and his knowledge of the resources of these states became encyclopaedic.

The greatest lesson that was implanted in his mind during those thirteen years of service was that the resources of Utah and the nearby states had scarcely been touched, and that in that field lay wealth and success for those men of foresight and courage who would venture upon the task of intelligently directing the development.

Mr. Sweet left the railroad service ultimately, and took a prominent position in the development of those resources that build up great payrolls, add industries to the state and wealth to those interested.

He identified himself most closely with the development of the coal fields of Utah, and is associated in this with his brother, Frederick A. Sweet. With his associates he opened the Independent Coal Company's great mines to productive operation, giving employment to hundreds of workmen. A new company, the Consolidated Fuel Company, was formed later, becoming one of the greatest producers in the west. Mr. Sweet is also interested in the Standard Coal Company, and in other coal properties in Utah and Nevada.

He is a son of Alfred E. Sweet and Mary A. Sweet of Salt Lake City. He was born in Illinois in 1876. He was graduated from the common schools and took a course in the Bradley Horological College at Peoria, Ill., after which he entered the railroad are numbered among his ancestors. They were of German and English descent and several of them fought on the side of the colonies in the Revolution. Members of later branches of the family fought on the Union side through the Civil war.



NEWELL BEEMAN.

EFFECTIVELY engaged the great part of his life in various enterprises in connection with iron and coal fields and several other lines of business .

At the present time his activities have practically ceased, but his standing in the community has never diminished.

Mr. Beeman was born July 21, 1844, in Phelps, Ontario county, New York. His mother was Elvira Colwell-Beeman, of a well-known New York state family, and his father, Thomas Beeman.

For a period covering more than 31 years Mr. Beeman was superintendent of the Rocky Mountain Coal & Iron company. During that period Mr. Beeman became associated with many financial institutions in the West, and is now interested to a great extent in different lines of business.

Among the various enterprises with which Mr. Beeman is financially interested are the W. H. Dayton Drug Company, of which he is president and treasurer; he is also vice-president of Morningstar, Beeman & Company; president of the Salt Lake Photographic Supply Company; president of the Beeman & Cashin Mercantile Company, Evanston, Wyo.; part owner of the Evanston Electric Light Company; a stockholder in the Evanston National Bank, and vice-president of Beeman & Neuber Mercantile Company of Rock Sprinks, Wyo.

Mr. Beeman attended Bryan and Stratton's Commercial College in Buffalo, New York, from which institution he was graduated in March, 1863. He first came to Salt Lake City in September, 1890. He was married twice, his first wife's maiden name having been Damaris A. Peck. Two daughters were born by the first wife, namely: Edna Louise, now Mrs. Walter H. Dayton, and Damaris Annette. His second wife was formerly Anne J. Harvey, from which union one daughter, Alice Isabel, now Mrs. W. F. Bowerman, was born.

P. W. MADSEN

SELF-MADE is the distinction claimed for himself by P. W. Madsen, prominent banker, business man and realty owner. Mr. Madsen's technical education was obtained in the school of experience. He has no sheepskin to show for this, but has a goodly quantity of the world's goods which came as reward for untiring application to business throughout many years.

Mr. Madsen was born in Denmark in 1852, and is the son of H. H. Madsen and Louise Madsen. While a boy, he had little opportunity to go to school, but with a naturally alert mind he was quick to learn from the few books he was privileged to own. He had a retentive memory and, once learned, the facts were never forgotten.

Mr. Madsen came to Utah in 1875, and shortly thereafter engaged in business for himself. He now is owner of a large furniture store on First South street. Much of his attention is devoted to the Western Loan & Savings company, of which he is president and manager. He is also interested financially in banks at Lehi, Springville and Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. Madsen was married to Miss Elise C. Jensen, and to them were born eight children: R. W. Madsen, E. W. Madsen, Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Louise Lund, V. R. Madsen, H. H. Madsen, Mrs. F. Meredith and J. W. Madsen, Jr.

Mr. Madsen is one of the best known merchants of the city. He is a charter member of the Commercial club, and is active in boosting for his adopted city and state.

FRANK E. M'GURRIN

FRANK E. McGURRIN is a son of Ellen Malone and Manis McGurrin and comes of pure Irish ancestry. He was born at Grand Rapids, Michigan, April 2, 1861, and came to this city in 1886. He had the advantage of only a common school education in his boyhood, but has traveled extensively, is a careful and studious reader and has acquired a broader range of useful knowledge than comes to the majority of men.

Mr. McGurrin is a Republican in political affiliation and is a member of the Alta club, the Commercial club and the Country club of Salt Lake; of the Victoria club at Riverside, California, and the Sequoia club at Oakland, California. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, and is married, though there are no children. Mrs. McGurrin was, before her marriage, Miss Jane Darling.

Mr. McGurrin has held a prominent place in the business world for many years and is closely identified with many large and growing financial institutions. By profession he is a banker and he is president and general manager of the Salt Lake Security and Trust company, and is also president and manager of the Commercial Bank of Tooele, Utah.

Among his other business interests he is a director in the Inter-Mountain Life Insurance company; a director in the Mutual Realty company; a director in the Hammond Packing company; a director in the Realty Bond and Share company; a director in the Brunswick Realty corporation, and a director in the Tooele Building association.

Mr. McGurrin's enterprises covering a wide range of real estate, building, banking and trust company fields, have enabled him to be extremely useful and helpful to investors with small means who have sought homes for themselves and safe and remunerative investments for their savings. His family home is in Salt Lake City.

DR. JOHN ULRICH GIESY.

FOLLOWING in the footsteps of the creator of Sherlock Holmes, Dr. John U. Giesy of Salt Lake, is both a medical and surgical practitioner of skill and experience, and the creator of a noted detective detective character in fiction. Dr. Giesy is well known at home for his skill as a physician and surgeon. But he is known nationally as the creator of that strange modern detective character, "Semi-Dual," who brings the modern science of psychology to play in the solution of seemingly baffling circumstances. This strange but wholly logical character is well known and eagerly looked for by the thousands of readers of those popular magazines that have featured Dr. Giesy's writings. As a writer of short stories and serial magazine stories, Dr. Giesy is achieving a national reputation.

Dr. Giesy finds time outside of his large medical practice for the exercise of his talent as a writer. He was born near Chillicothe, Ohio, Monday, August 6, 1877. His parents, who are living, are William Somers Giesy and Mrs. Anna Kate Heckermann-Giesy. The family on both sides figured prominently in revolutionary and pre-revolutionary history. His father is of Swiss-English descent; and his mother is of German-Scotch descent.

Dr. Giesy received his medical training at the Starling Medical College, Columbus, Ohio, and was graduated with the degree of doctor of medicine in 1898. He came to Utah in 1891, going back to the east in 1895 to enter college. Dr. Giesy is married, his wife having been Miss Galena Conwell, formerly of San Francisco. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., Woodmen of the World, National Union and Fraternal Brotherhood. He is a member also of the Press Club, and of the Salt Lake County Medical Society. In politics he has been to this time a Republican Dr. Giesy has been a writer of fiction for only two years, but in that time he has won widespread reputation, which promises to become greater, with his increasing experience.

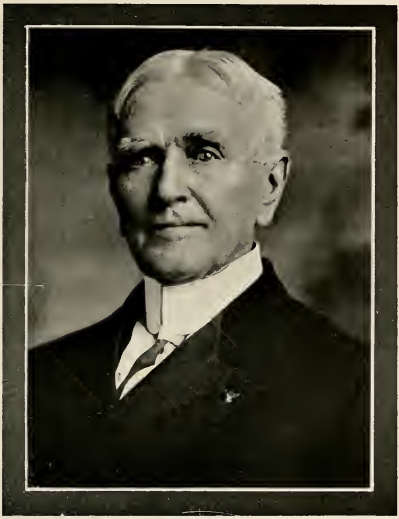
DR. WALTER M. STOOKEY.

DESCENDED from Swiss and English stock, of American birth and European and American training, Dr. Walter Monroe Stookey posseses all the requirements of the cosmopolitan.

Dr. Stookey was born at Clover, Tooele county, Utah, March 25, 1869. His father was Enos Stookey, whose forefathers came to America from Switzerland, early in the seventeenth century, and played a part in the American Revolution. His mother, whose maiden name was Jemima E. Child, was a native of London, England, came to the United States with her parents when she was but two years of age. His father and mother came to Utah in 1855.

Dr. Stookey was educated in the common schools of Utah and the University of Utah, afterward attending Marion-Sims Medical College at St. Louis, Mo., from 1895 to 1898. The year following his graduation was spent with the St. Louis City Hospital, after which he engaged in the general practice of medicine and surgery in Utah. In 1906 and 1907 he did post graduate work in some of the greatest hospitals in Europe, particularly in London, Paris, Vienna and Berlin; specializing in the diseases and treatment of the eye, ear, nose and throat. He abandoned the general medical and surgical field, and now specializes in practice. His second visit to Europe was in 1913, when he attended the International Medical Congress in London, and engaged again in specialist's post graduate work for several months.

Dr. Stookey is married. His wife was formerly Mary Caldwell. Their children are Della Stookey, thirteen years of age; John D. Stookey, ten years of age; and Robley M. Stookey, six years of age.



DR. SALATHIEL EWING.

STERLING qualities of professionalism and of citizenship have won for Dr. Salathiel Ewing, marked recognition by his associates and friends. Dr. Ewing is past president of the Salt Lake County Medical Society; past president of the Utah State Medical Society; Fellow for the American Medical Association; and is a member of the medical staff of Judge Mercy hospital, Salt Lake City.

Dr. Ewing also is past exatled ruler of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. His fellow Elks honored him by making him their exalted ruler, in recognition of his loyal and earnest labors for the order and for his devotion to suffering humanity.

His father was Thomas Muskil Ewing and his mother Nancy Gibson Robinson Ewing. Dr. Ewing's great grandfather emigrated from Londonerry, Ireland, in 1713, to New Jersey; and his grandfather was the first settler in Union county, Ohio, in 1788. His great grandfather was a member of the Joshua Ewing Safety Committee during the Revolution.

Dr. Ewing attended Starling Medical College, Columbus, Ohio, in 1863, and in 1870 and 1871, graduating in that year. He came to Utah in February, 1883. He is married, his wife having been Miss Ella Black. The family home is at 234 East Third South street, Salt Lake City.

An ardent lover of dogs and horses, Dr. Ewing is an accomplished equestrian, and is an excellent judge of livestock.

FREDERICK A. SWEET.

OF vast import to Utah was the opening up of the independent coal operations in this state several years ago, at a time when the price of coal was about the largest every day item in the accounts of the ultimate consumer. Naturally, the success of the independent movement depended upon the question of freight rates and, through the Interstate Commerce Commission, Frederick A. Sweet, and his associates, secured rulings insuring equality of rates and through routes and rates to all points in the northwest and west, and other important rulings.

Mr. Sweet's great success and considerable fortune have been realized since returning to Utah from his studies at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, from which institution he was graduated in 1899 with a degree from the law school.

He was born in Hinckley, De Kalb county, Illinois, the son of Mary A. Sweet and Alfred E. Sweet. His ancestors, who were among the early settlers of the New England states, of English and German descent, took a prominent part in the struggles for independence. Mr. Sweet came to Utah in 1889 and entered the University of Michigan in 1895, remaining three years in the law department.

Interests in the wholesale coal field, Idaho irrigation projects and other investments, caused Mr. Sweet to abandon the active practice of law and identify himself with some of the largest business ventures in the west. He is president of the Standard Coal Company; vice-president of the American Falls Canal and Power Company; vice-president of the Merchants Bank of Salt Lake and a member of the following corporations: Standard Coal Company, American Falls Canal and Power Company, Merchants Bank, Evans ,Curtis & Sweet Company and the Aberdeen Townsite and Investment Company.

He was married to Mary Electa Ogle, of Quincy, Illinois, and they have four children: Mary I. Sweet, 11; Evelyn E. Sweet, 7; Frederick A. Sweet, Jr., 4; and Katherine Alice Sweet, 2 years of age. Mr. Sweet is a Progressive in politics and a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake.

CHARLES HENRY WELLS.

BANKING is perhaps the most alluring of modern professions for young men. It entails industry, a keen power of concentration, ability to assume responsibility and a peculiar aptitude. It may well be said that bankers are born and not made.

Utah has enrolled in this line of business, some of the brightest men of the intermountain region. Among these is Charles Henry Wells, a native of Utah. He was born in Salt Lake City on August 28, 1871, his parents being Daniel H. Wells and Mrs. Susan H. (Alley) Wells.

He thus comes of a family renowned in the annals of Utah. His parents were Utah pioneers of 1848 and prominent in the early history of Utah.

Mr. Wells has kept up the record of the family, for he is winning for himself a name in his calling that is an honor to his city and state.

He received common school training in this city and then entered the University of Utah in 1889. After his graduation he entered the banking business and soon began to rise in the business.

He is now assistant cashier of the Utah State National Bank, one of the soundest financial institutions of the state. Mr. Wells is a Republican, and is an active worker.

He is a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City, and was secretary of the Utah Bankers Association for two years.

Mr. Wells has a delightful home life. His wife formerly was Miss Susie Riter. They have five children: Edith, Louise, William Riter, Henry Charles and Evelyn.

CHARLES POPLIN HARVIELLE.

HIS father born in Tennessee, his mother in North Carolina, and himself born in Missouri, Dr. Charles P. Harvielle is a true son of the sunny south. Dr. Harvielle's parents were Martha Jane House Harvielle and Simeon R. Harvielle. He was born at Arcadia, Mo., August 26, 1875.

After laying the foundation for his professional education in the public schools, he attended Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., from 1896 until April 14, 1899, when he was graduated, with the degree of doctor of medicine.

On November 22, 1904, he came to Salt Lake City, and has since made that city his home. Dr. Harvielle was married in Stanford, Ky., in 1901, his wife being Miss Isabella Bailey. They have one child, Isabella, eleven years of age.

Dr. Harvielle is a Democrat, and is deeply interested in the success and fortunes of his party. He is an ardent fraternalist, being a member of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, B. P. O. E.; the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Loyal Order of Moose and the Knights of Pythias.

He has gained a high place in the medical profession of Salt Lake and in the state, and because of his skill and conscientious performance of his duty, has built up an enviable practice.

Dr. Harvielle has always taken an interest in outdoor sports and for several years, has been physician to the Salt Lake baseball club. When the Union Association decided to put a 1914 club in Murray, he was the selection of other club owners and the fans of Murray for the position of president of the club directed its destinies in excellent fashion. He is now Assistant County Physician for Salt Lake County.

ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS McMULLEN.

FORRESTER, MICH., was the post-office address of Archibald and Elizabeth McMullen, and there Archibald Douglas McMullen was born in the year 1871. The rather obvious Scotch ancestry revealed in the name of Archibald Douglas McMullen probably had much to do with his "get there" makeup—at any rate, Mr. McMullen figures at present as treasurer of the Strevell-Paterson Hardware Company and a member of the board of education in Salt Lake City.

During the twelve years in which Mr. McMullen has been a resident and business man of Salt Lake, wholesale hardware lines have engaged his attention and time, which accounts for his rise to an important office in one of the largest hardware concerns in the west.

He was educated in the public schools of Michigan and for two years was a student at Detroit College, Detroit, Mich. He came to Salt Lake in 1902. He married Etha Loretta Houtz and is the father of three daughters: Virginia McMullen, 8; Mildred McMullen, 5, and Frances McMullen, 2.

Mr. McMullen is a Republican in politics, is a Thirty-Second degree Mason and a noble of the mystic shrine of that order. He is a member of the Commercial Club and Deseret Gymnasium in Salt Lake.

LAURENCE HENRY LATHROP.

A CIVIL engiuer by profession and one who is not excelled in that profession is Laurence Henry Lathrop, who is highly esteemed by his many social and business associates throughout the state of Utah and in other places where he resided before arriving in Salt Lake City. His work in connection with many western projects of note and his able manner in handling propositions where the greatest skill has been required has made a place for him among the business men of Utah which will be perpetual.

Mr. Lathrop, son of Mary Ford Lathrop and Henry Lathrop, was born October 13, 1882, in New Orleans, Louisiana. His parents are of English extraction and settled in New Orleans and Virginia in the early part of the seventeenth century. Their names are among those who were the real pioneers of the United States when the Indians held forth from coast to coast.

Formerly Mr. Lathrop was the assistant to City Engineer D. H. Blossom, of Salt Lake City. At the present time he is the general manager of the Aberdeen Valley Investment Company and is identified with several industries in both Utah and the northwest.

His political views have always been on the Republican side and his efforts to promote the welfare of the party are marked by ardent labor whenever the opportunity presents itself. His early schooling was gained in Louisiana. After finishing his studies at the graded schools Mr. Lathrop entered the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. He entered that institution in 1901 and remained there until the fall of 1905.

Mr. Lathrop is an ardent worker in connection with fraternal and charitable matters and is a highly respected member of the local B. P. O. E., and the Royal Arcanum. The only club of which he is now a member is the Elks. Since 1907 Mr. Lathrop has been closely identified with the development of Utah and of southeastern Idaho.

GEORGE ELMER FORD.

THE pulpit had claimed six members of the immediate family of George Elmer Ford, his father and five brothers having performed their life work as clergymen. George Elmer Ford is one of the best known accountants, adjusters and corporation efficiency men in the intermountain country.

The families of the parents of Mr. Ford had not long been in America before they were involved on the side of the Continental army, in the Revolutionary war. In other words, his mother, Julia Fuller Ford, was a descendant of the Fullers who arrived in Massachusetts colonly in 1632 and figured among the founders of Woburn, Mass. His father, Salisbury Sherman Ford, was born at Duanesburg, Vermont. His mother, also, was a native of Vermont, being born in Brandon in that state.

Mr. Ford was born at Albany, N. Y., in 1865, obtained his education in the public schools, finishing at Beeman Academy, and entered Middlebury College. During his college course, Mr. Ford was compelled to leave school when he met with an accident in an athletic contest, and went west, joining his father in Frankfort, Kans. From the farm at Frankfort, Mr. Ford went to Vermillion, Kans., where he was manager of a heavy hardware and implement concern, later associating himself with a syndicate of bankers that established Colby and Russell Springs, Kans. Later, he moved to Kansas City, Mo., continuing his relations with the banking syndicate.

Since coming to Utah in 1889, Mr. Ford has figured as secretary and manager and one of the organizers of the Salt Lake Pressed Brick Company; associated with R. G. Dun & Co., financial and credit man for the Scott-Strevell Hardware Company; cashier of the Bannock National Bank of Pocatello, Ida.; associate of the Gunn-Thompson Company of Wyoming; special appraiser in connection with affairs of the Utah inheritance tax law.

Mr. Ford is a Republican. He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss P. A. Eddingberg. They have three children: Zora May, Osmond Fuller and Mary Gwendolyn Ford.

FRANKLIN KNOWLTON NEBEKER.

FRANKLIN KNOWLTON NEBEKER is a son of Ira and Delia Lane Nebeker, and was born at Laketown, Utah, May 15, 1870. His grandfather, John Nebeker, and his father came to Utah with the earliest settlers in 1847, and played important parts in the stirring history of the settlement and development of the state. Mr. Nebeker attended the public schools of the town of his birth in his boyhood, and later attended Cornell University, where he specialized in law. Three busy and studious years were spent at Ithaca, New York, beginning in 1892, and he was graduated from the Cornell law department in 1895.

He returned to Utah, and for fourteen years practiced law at Logan, when rapidly growing reputation and practice caused him to move to Salt Lake.

Mr. Nebeker devotes his entire time to private law practice, as a member of the firm of Howatt, MacMillan and Nebeker, which has one of the largest followings of any law firm in the state. He is a Democrat in politics, and is high in the councils of his party.

His wife was formerly Miss Lillian Martineau, and their children are Franklin Knowlton Nebeker, Jr., twenty-one years of age; Marjorie, seventeen years of age; Lyman N. Nebeker, fourteen years of age; Joyce, twelve years of age; Delia, eight years of age, and Ruth, four years of age.

Mr. Nebeker is a member of Ogden lodge No. 719, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks; and is a member of the Alta Club, the Commercial Club, and the Transportation Club of Salt Lake.

DAVID MATTSON

DAVID MATTSON is a shrewd business man, a successful politician, and has friends in every part of Utah. He was born in Ogden January 10, 1875, and Utah has always been his home. His parents were Peter and Katherine Mattson. He attended Weber Stake academy at Ogden in his boyhood, laying the foundation in that institution for a splendidly successful career in both business and politics.

Mr. Mattson is proprietor of the Marion hotel at Ogden, the Kenyon hotel, Salt Lake City, and Maxim cafe, Salt Lake City. These hotels are justly popular with the traveling public, and the Maxim cafe is synonymous with good music, brilliant entertainment and perfect cuisine.

Mr. Mattson is a Republican, and that party elected him in 1912 as secretary of state. He is president of the Marion Hotel corporation, the Kenyon Hotel corporation, and of the Kenyon Hotel Cafe company.

He was married September 23, 1903, to Miss Blanche Allison. They have three children: Marcus Allison Mattson, 10 years of age; Marian Dean Mattson, 5 years of age, and David Edward Mattson, 2 years of age. He is a member of Ogden lodge No. 719, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks; the Weber club of Ogden and the Commercial club of Salt Lake. His residence is at the Kenyon hotel, Salt Lake City.

W. LESTER MANGUM

AMONG those who have made a success in mining in Utah is W. Lester Mangum. He was born at Nephi. His ancestors were Americans of early English origin. After being educated in the common schools, he entered Brigham Young university at Provo. He worked his way through college by tutoring other students.

In 1905 he left that institution. The same year he married Miss Jennie Knight, a member of one of Utah's best known families. Four children have blessed this union. They are: Gloria K., 7 years of age; Max K., 5 years of age; Beth K., 3 years of age, and Dixie K., 1 year of age.

Mr. Mangum is a member of the Salt Lake and of the Provo Commercial clubs, and is closely identified with various movements for the betterment of the state. He is a staunch Republican.

Mr. Mangum's profession of mining has resulted in his being identified with various interests. He is secretary and treasurer and director of the Knight Investment company; director in the Knight Trust & Savings bank; director and manager of the Aurora Consolidated mines; director, secretary and treasurer of the Iron Blossom Mining company; director of the Knight Sugar company, Ltd., of Canada; a stockholder of the Ellison Ranching company; vice-president and general manager of the Eureka Hill Railroad company; director and general manager of the Knight-Christensen Metal company; director, secretary and treasurer of the Utah Ore Sampling company; director, secretary and treasurer of the Western Ore Purchasing company, and director, secretary and treasurer of the Knight Woolen Mills company, and is interested in several other corporations.

GEORGE DEPUE KEYSER.

GEORGE DEPUE KEYSER has long made civic improvement his hobby. To those who, outside of the field of active politics, seek to better the city in every way, morally and physically, the plans of George D. Keyser give promise of a bright future. And many of those in politics feel that to Mr. Keyser belongs credit for taking the high stand which he holds.

Mr. Keyser is a native son, having been born in Salt Lake City May 18, 1882. His parents were Aaron Keyser and Mrs. Henrietta A. (Depue) Keyser.

He received the training of the graded schools of this city as a boy, and later entered Harvard University. He took the study of civil engineering, and made for himself a creditable record as a student. He was graduated in 1905 and returned to Salt Lake to take up his career.

He is manager of the A. Keyser Investment Company. Outside of the special duties of business he has taken a deep interest in the affairs of city and state. He is an ardent advocate of the value of better highways. Mr. Keyser is Utah Consul of the Lincoln Highway Association.

He has been park commissioner of the city and gained an enviable reputation while in that office. He is a Mason and is a member of the University Club and the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

His wife's maiden name was Miss Florence L. Suydam. They have three children: George, Jr., six years of age; James, five years of age; and William, two years of age.

ROBERT EDWIN McCONAUGHY.

BORN and educated in the middle west, and coming of Revolutionary stock, Robert Edwin McConaughy is one of the leading lumber merchants of Utah.

His father was John M. McConaughy and his mother Mary N. McConaughy. Mr. McConaughy was born at Rochelle, Illinois, March 6, 1859.

His father was a Presbyterian minister. On both sides his parents were born and reared in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. They were both of Revolutionary forbears.

After attending the graded schools of Rochelle, Mr. McConaughy entered the high school of his native city in 1880.

At an early age he took up commercial lines for a livelihood and in December, 1891, he decided to cast his fortune in with that of thousands of other eastern men who have come west.

Success marked this move. For today he is managing the affairs of the McConaughy-Losee Lumber Company, of which he is president; and the Bothwell & McConaughy Company, which was established in 1880 at Stromberg, Neb. He also belongs to the following corporations: The Canyon Copper Mining Company, the McConaughy-Losee Lumber Company, the Aberdeen Townsite & Investment Company and the G. & M. Investment Company.

He is married, his wife's name having been formerly Miss Nora E. Losee. They have two children: Mrs. Gladys Rickart, and Robert E. McConaughy, Jr.

Mr. McConaughy is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and of the First Presbyterian church. In politics he is a staunch Republican.

FRED J. LEONARD.

WITH acquaintance among virtually all the livestock men, miners and ranchers in Montana, Idaho, western Colorado, Nevada and Utah, Fred J. Leonard, proprietor of the Cullen hotel has made that hotel the headquarters of virtually all the western men who live in the open and who visit in Salt Lake City.

Mr. Leonard came to Utah in 1888, settling in Salt Lake City. He has one son, Fred U. Leonard, and he is a member of the Commercial Club. He is a Republican. Mr. Leonard is almost wholly absorbed in the Cullen hotel, which he has made one of the most popular places in the west for sheepmen, cattle men, ranchers and mining men.

The hotel is comfortable and home like, modern in every respect, and is just such a place as the men from the mountains and plains like to call home when they are in the city.

The big and comfortable lobby is the rendezvous of a greater number of old-timers, prosperous out-door men and others who have aided in building up the cattle, sheep and mining industries of the state. The cafe, conducted in connection with the hotel, and the quiet and comfortably appointed bar, are the meeting places of these hardy out-door men who enjoy the best that can be had.

Mr. Leonard and his hotel are institutions that seem inseparable, and they are held in the highest regard and affection by the special class of patronage that has been built up by years of patient effort and thorough understanding of the mental attributes and peculiarities of the men who live under the open sky, but who want to have the best when they are in the city for business or pleasure.

JOHN C. LYNCH.

AMONG the bankers of the intermountain region, one of the most widely known is John C. Lynch. Mr. Lynch was born at Dixon, Indiana, and came to Salt Lake City on May 28, 1890. He received the common school education, which gave him a foundation on which he built a special training, received at the Commercial College high school of Terre Haute, Ind. He attended the latter institution two years, from 1886 to 1888, and did creditable work, receiving the particular training which has enabled him in later years to achieve marked success in the business and banking world.

The bankers, by the very nature of things, form the conservative element in a community. But their business on the other hand, brings them in touch with many other enterprises.

Mr. Lynch, as soon as he arrived in Salt Lake City, almost a quarter of a century ago, began to work with a determination that assured him a brilliant future. He rose slowly but surely in the business circles of the city and state.

As a result of intense application he is president of the National Bank of the Republic, at Main and Second South streets, Salt Lake City. In addition to this he is manager of the Salt Lake Ice Company and also general manager of the Victoria Consolidated Mining Company of Eureka, Utah.

He is married and has five children: Robert, 20 years of age; John, 17; Courtney, 18; Mary, 13; and Dorothy, six years of age.

Mr. Lynch is a member of the Alta club, the Rotary club and of the Salt Lake Commercial club. He is a firm believer in the doctrines of the Republican party.

WILLIAM MARTIN ROYLANCE

WITHOUT the advantages of classical training, having had only those educational opportunities offered by the common schools in his boyhood, and from which he was not graduated, William Martin Roylance of Provo has risen to the top by sheer force of character and indomitable pluck.

Mr. Roylance was born in Springville, Utah, in 1865, of parents who came to Utah from England. He attended the common schools, primitive as they were in his boyhood, but early in life began to make his own way.

His worth was recognized by his associates and he soon entered public life. His Democratic friends elected him city recorder. Then he moved to Provo, county seat of Utah county, and became mayor of that beautiful and prosperous city, serving in 1904 and 1905.

Mr. Roylance was a member of the second and third legislatures of Utah, and was speaker of the house of representatives in the third session.

He has been a leader and an authority on matters of agriculture and horticulture, and owns the most valuable orchards in Utah. He is, too, the largest independent produce dealer in Utah, being president and manager of the Wm. M. Roylance company of Provo. He also is a stockgrower and merchant.

Mr. Roylance has married twice, his first wife, Laura Turner Roylance, having died. His second wife, Mrs. May Zabriskie, is living. Mr. Roylance has the following sons and daughters: Martin W., Merline, Endi and William C. Roylance. Two children, Hazel and Ellis, died in infancy.

Mr. Roylance is a member of no fraternal organizations, but is active and progressive in the work of the Provo Commercial club and the Commercial club of Salt Lake City.

His parents were William Roylance and Lucy Clucas Roylance, both of English birth.

KARL A. SCHEID

WHEN a vacancy occurred in the office of city recorder of Salt Lake, and Karl A. Scheid was named to fill that important position, early in the summer of 1914, there was general satisfaction, because Mr. Scheid is known throughout Utah as one of the best equipped men in the city for such an important office. Mr. Scheid is a son of Valentine and Lena Fox Scheid. He was born at Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, August 31, 1872. His ancestry is German, the family having lived in their ancestral home at Munsterapfle, near Bingen-on-the-Rhine, for generations.

Mr. Scheid is one of the best known insurance men in the west. For twenty years, until February, 1910, he was with the Board of Fire Underwriters of the Pacific, and during six years of that time was in a managerial capacity for Utah and southern Idaho.

During 1910 and 1911 he took a long vacation, making a world tour of eighteen months. Though Mr. Scheid had attended no college, his actual school days having ended when he completed the graded school work at Ouray, Colorado, in his boyhood, he had always been a close student and a general reader. His tour, therefore, was of especial value to him.

Mr. Scheid is a member of Mt. Moriah lodge of Masons, at Salt Lake, and is a member also of the Alta club of Salt Lake. He is married, Mrs. Scheid's maiden name having been Blanche L. Kimball. The family home is at 1127 East South Temple street, Salt Lake.

Mr. Scheid is nonpartisan in politics. He is a member of the Karl A. Scheid company, which has a large general loan and insurance business in Salt Lake City. He was elected city commissioner of Salt Lake November 2, 1915, for a four-year term.

GEORGE ALFRED SMITH.

IS assistant general manager of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co., which is now conducted from its Salt Lake City offices, George Alfred Smith first became identified, through efforts and advancements covering a period of many years, with the sugar industry of this state in 1898. George Alfred Smith, son of Mary Ann Price and Jesse Smith, was born at Lehi, Utah, September 11, 1869. The parents emigrated from England during the year 1866, crossing the ocean in a sailing vessel. They came across the western plains by ox team, enduring the privations and vicissitudes incident to pioneer life. During his boyhood days Mr. Smith attended the public schools at Lehi, after which he became a student at the Brigham Young University at Provo. At that institution he attended one semester each year from 1890 to 1898, working the first part of the term in the Lehi sugar factory to get funds to complete his education. He was graduated from that school in 1898, and immediately became identified with the Utah Sugar Company at Lehi as stenographer for the general manager. About five years later he was promoted to the chief clerkship of that company, and when the main office was moved to Salt Lake was given the position of private secretary to the general manager. While holding that position he did all the purchasing for the company, until that department grew to such proportions that it became necessary to organize a regular purchasing department. As the sugar industry expanded Mr. Smith's duties became chiefly those of assistant to the general manager, and overseer of the purchasing department, which duties he now performs. Mr. Smith is also secretary of Austin Brothers association, Austin and Sons Live Stock Company, Heber Land and Live Stock Company and the Price River Irrigation Company. He has always been a Republican and is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. His wife was formerly Emma Fenton, included in the family being four children, George LeRoi, Emma Loraine, Fenton and Verviene, twelve, ten, six and three years of age, respectively.

FRANK GILBERT JANNEY.

THE present prosperity of Utah is the result of the life work of many men who have given their entire energies to the building up of the commercial resources of Utah and have assisted in many ways to develop the mineral wealth and industries of the western country.

Frank Gilbert Janney, a native of Salt Lake, has taken an active part in such development. He is now connected with several of the largest financial institutions in the world, and has at the same time brought about the right results by his strict adherence to business. Mr. Janney was born October 12, 1866, at Salt Lake City. His parents, Mary A. Janney and Thomas A. Janney, are well known to Utahns. They were among the early settlers, his mother coming from Illinois in October, 1850. She is still living in Salt Lake. His father came from Virginia to Salt Lake in 1857, and died in this city December 15, 1886. Mr. Janney was in business in Salt Lake for several years before his death.

Frank Gilbert Janney obtained his early education in the public schools of Salt Lake City, but did not take a collegiate course due principally to his great desire to enter upon a business career.

Following his school days Mr. Janney immediately took up the profession of mechanical and metallurgical engineer. He is now manager of the Utah Copper Company, consulting engineer for the Chino Copper Company, the Ray Consolidated Copper Company, and the Butte-Superior Copper Company.

Like his father Mr. Janney is a member of the Masonic fraternity and is well known and highly esteemed by the members of that body. In addition to being a member of fraternal organizations Mr. Janney is a respected member of the Alta Club, the Salt Lake Commercial Club, the Country Club and the Salt Lake Tennis Club.

NAT LEVI.

THE man who has had few of the advantages offered by the wonderful educational system of today, because of conditions in his boyhood, but who, regardless of that handicap has struggled to the top, is designated as a self-made man.

To this class belongs Nat Levi, who as a promoter of oil and gas concerns in Utah and Wyoming has achieved financial and industrial success.

Nat Levi is a son of Nathaniel and Margaret Willis-Levi. He was born at Dangerfield, Texas, June 9, 1866. His father was a native and a well known merchant of Palestine, Germany, and his mother was a native of Tennessee.

His youth was spent in Texas where he attended the public and High school, but obtained a broader education from his association with the men of Texas. He was married in 1890 to Miss Agnes Kendrick of Bastrop, Texas, and three children have been born to them. These children are Kendrick, Decie and Colly Levi.

Mr. Levi has followed the profession of promoting with unusual success, his enterprises having fulfilled the promises made for them when the various enterprises were in the period of formation. Among his promotions are the British American Petroleum Company, and the Bear River Bay Oil and Gas Company. He has also been closely identified with the formation of several companies in the Green River district, organized for the purpose of developing the oil and gas deposits in that section.

Mr. Levi is a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, the Knights of Pythias, and the Commercial Club of Brigham City. He has been particularly active in the work of the latter organization in developing the commercial power of Brigham City and Box Elder county. Big oil propositions at Cooper, Douglas and Lusk, Wyo., are being developed personally by Mr. Levi. He is a Democrat in politics.

WILLIAM R. TYNDALE.

WILLIAM ROBERT TYNDALE comes of sturdy stock. His father was Stephensen Tyndale and his mother Mrs. Susan Brock Tyndale. He was born at Council Bluffs, Ia., June 4, 1873. His paternal grandfather was an Englishman who was a stout adherent of the British empire and loved English methods and manners. Incidentally he disliked things American. Dr. Tyndale's paternal grandmother was a Protestant Irish, who was as stoutly enthusiastic in support of the Protestant faith as the grandfather was of the British government. The maternal grandparents of Dr. Tyndale were Scotch Covenanters, proud of their ancestry and tracing it back to Holland in the seventeenth century.

Dr. Tyndale's parents were born in Canada. His mother was educated at McGill University, Montreal. His father moved to Iowa where he married, and then became a farmer.

The boyhood of Dr. Tyndale was spent on a farm. After gaining a common school education he entered the University of Chicago and attended that institution from 1896 to 1898 and afterward attended the Rush Medical College from 1898 to 1900. He was graduated from the latter institution with a medical degree in the summer of 1898 and in August, 1904, came to Salt Lake City.

He is devoting his entire time and study to internal diseases and especially chronic diseases.

It is with justifiable pride that Dr. Tyndale looks back on his early days, having largely earned his way through college and medical school. He has had eighteen months' post graduate work in Berlin and Vienna. He taught night school for three years in Iowa, beginning at the age of 19 years. He was an interne at the Cook county hospital, Chicago, from December 1, 1900 to June 1, 1902. He is a Republican in politics and a great admirer of Theodore Roosevelt.

He is married, his wife formerly having been Miss Elsie P. Honn. They have one child, Hamilton H., eight years of age.

HENRY S. KLEINSCHMIDT.

AMONG the prominent young civil engineers of the state, Henry S. Kleinschmidt, has taken an active part in developments during the last ten years. His father, A. A. Kleinschmidt, came from Germany to the United States in the days of sailing vessels and settled at Georgetown, D. C. His mother was Carrie Schwing of Baltimore of a family noted as musicians and artists.

Mr. Kleinschmidt was born at Memphis, Tenn., May 28, 1882. With his parents he removed to St. Louis in 1890 and completed the common and high school work there. He then entered the engineering school, University of Missouri at Columbia, and completed a full four-year course, graduating with a degree of B. S. in civil engineering in 1903.

While there his attention was attracted to the newly organized U. S. Reclamation Service and passing the civil service examinations he was appointed engineering aid. He served on various projects in this state and Idaho as assistant engineer, resigning in 1906 to enter the Utah state engineer's office as location and construction engineer. In these positions he acquired an unusually thorough knowledge of the resources of the state. He resigned this position in the fall of 1911 to form a partnership with Mr. C. F. Brown, under the firm name, Brown & Kleinschmidt, which has taken a leading part in municipal work in land reclamation by irrigation and drainage in Utah and the surrounding intermountain states.

Mr. Kleinschmidt is married, his wife having been Miss Belle Peterson. They have one child, a son, Henry Anthon, born in November, 1913. Mr. Kleinschmidt is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club, a member of the Utah Society of Engineers and an associate member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He is and always has been a staunch Democrat. He is an officer and director in the Bear River Valley Farm & Orchard Company and in the Southern Utah Arid Farm and Development Company.

CHARLES TYNG.

AMONG the professions which aid directly in the growth and development of a community, that of real state is particularly to be mentioned.

Among the real estate men of Salt Lake City, one of the leading members is Charles Tyng.

Mr. Tyng has great originality and daring in his work, his methods are ever new and he is looked up to as a leader in the realm of realty.

But Mr. Tyng is a native Californian, having been born in 1870 at Santa Barbara. His parents were George and Mrs. Elma A. Thompson Tyng. His father was a New Englander, a native of Newburyport, Mass., while his mother was born at Santa Barbara.

After receiving his common schooling, Mr. Tyng entered Cornell University in 1892 and took the civil engineering course. He came to Utah after concluding his studies, on March 17, 1906. His marriage to Miss A. Vivian Mayer occurred on June 21, 1904. They have two children: Vivian, 6 years of age; and Virginia, 4 years of age.

Mr. Tyng is a member of Chi Psi fraternity; he is a Knight Templar and a Shriner. He is also a member of the Alta Club, the Commercial Club, the Country Club, the Rotary Club and the Automobile Club of Utah. He is a member of the Houston Real Estate Investment Company. Mr. Tyng is a staunch Republican.

He was one of the candidates in the city election of the fall of 1913 for commissionership.

EDWARD C. MANSON.

ONE of the railroads which has helped to develop the intermountain region and the northwest, is the Oregon Short Line. Among those holding responsible positions with the Oregon Short Line is Edward C. Manson. Mr. Manson was born at Dayton, Ohio, his parents being Edward Manson and Mrs. Emma Manson. He received his education in Ohio, first in the public schools and then at Oberlin college.

He entered the railway service in 1879 as telegraph operator on the Scioto Valley Railway.

From July, 1880 to May, 1881, he was te'egraph operator for the Ohio Central Railway. Telegraph operator and depot agent on the Columbus Hocking Valley & Toledo Railway from May, 1881 to March, 1882; telegraph operator and train dispatcher, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road, from March, 1882 to October, 1887; train dispatcher and train master and chief train dispatcher, Oregon Short Line road, from October, 1887 to June 1, 1895; superintendent of car service of the International & Great Northern road from June 1, 1895 to May 1, 1897; chief train dispatcher of the Oregon Short Line road at Pocatello, Idaho, from May 1, 1897 to December 24, 1898; superintendent of the Idaho division of the same road at Pocatello, from December 25, 1898 to June 1, 1905; division superintendent of the same road and the Southern Pacific Company, at Ogden, Utah, Oregon Short Line road from June 1, 1910 to September 30, 1911; and from October 1, 1911 up to date, assistant general manager of the same road at Salt Lake City, Utah, in charge of the operating department. Politically, Mr. Manson is a Republican.

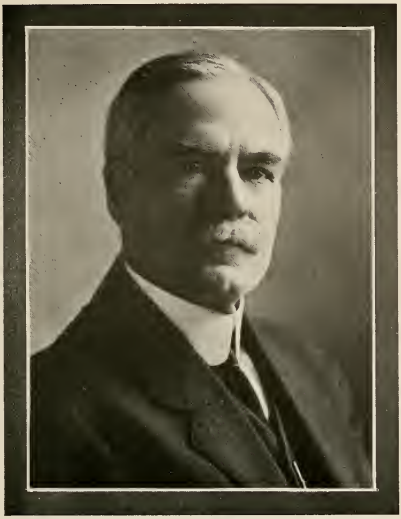
ANDREW JACKSON HOSMER, M. D.

ELEVEN children were born to Andrew Jackson Hosmer, Sr., and Martha Eldred Hosmer at New Boston, Mich., and one of the eleven was Andrew Jackson Hosmer, who arrived in 1858. He was a farm boy but the science of surgery won against the fluctuations of the grain market and, in due time, he entered the University of Michigan and enrolled in the school of medicine. He spent six years studying for his profession and graduated in 1885.

In 1897 he came to Salt Lake and began the practice of medicine. He was successful as a practicing physician and is now senior surgeon at the Holy Cross hospital. In addition he is division surgeon of the Salt Lake Route. During his active practice, Dr. Hosmer has taken time of study abroad and has spent about three years in the foreign schools, principally in Vienna.

Dr. Hosmer and his wife, formerly Letitia Fell, have two children, Rawson Fell Hosmer, five years of age, and Geraldine Hosmer, two years of age.

Dr. Hosmer is a Knight Templar and Shriner of the Masonic order and is a member of the Alta and Commercial Clubs of Salt Lake. In politics he is a Republican.



RICHARD P. MORRIS.

NOW and then men are found who are repeatedly honored by their fellow citizens with the public trust of office. Tried by responsibility, they are called upon again and again by their state or city to take up the public burden. It is thus in the case with Richard P. Morris.

Mr. Morris's name is a household word in Salt Lake and the intermountain region. He is a native son of Salt Lake, having been born there in December 1857. He comes of English stock, his parents having immigrated to America from the United Kingdom in 1855. He is thus of the old English Morris family, one of the leading families of the island empire.

Mr. Morris grew up to love his state and city with unwonted devotion. He attended the Morgan Business College and also the public schools of this city. After the years of preparation he entered upon a commercial career, becoming eventually one of the leading merchants of Salt Lake City.

Not long afterward his intense interest in the welfare of the community was rewarded in a most practical way. For Mr. Morris has been elected twice as councilman from the Third Precinct, elected three times as City Treasurer and was elected Mayor of Salt Lake City for the term of 1904 and 1905, and in 1912 was elected to the City Commission.

He belongs to the Commercial club and is an enthusiastic supporter of everything that benefits this city and state.

Mr. Morris is married, his wife having been Miss Florence Dinwoody, a member of one of the prominent families of this state. They have five children: Emma, 26 years of age; Den, 24 years of age; Russell, 14 years of age; Thornton, 10 years of age; and Marion, 8 years of age.

EDGAR A. WEDGWOOD.

IN jotting down a few notes for the information of the compilators of this work, the Adjutant General of Utah stated briefly that his name was Edgar A. Wedgwood; that he was a lawyer by profession; was born in 1856 and was married, and a few other short comments of the like anent himself. The fact is, General Wedgwood is somewhat of a personage and the following sketch gives something of an idea of his service to his country and his state:

General Wedgwood began public service in 1883 as the sheriff of the county in which is situated Grand Island, Nebraska. In 1883, at 27 years of age, he began studying law and was admitted to the Nebraska bar while yet in the office of sheriff.

In the "nineties," he came to Utah and located at Provo, engaging in the practice of law. In 1895 he enlisted as a private in Company "M" of the National Guard of Utah. With the outbreak of the Spanish-American war in the spring of 1898, he was commissioned as first lieutenant of Battery B, Utah light artillery.

During his service in the artillery, General Wedgwood saw the fall of Manila and went through the campaigns incident to the extension of American occupancy of the north shore of the island of Luzon to San Fernando. He returned home in July, 1899, and was mustered out August 16, 1899, as captain of Battery A, Utah light artillery.

General Wedgwood has been successful in the practice of law and has for many years been one of the firm of Thurman, Wedgwood & Irvine of Salt Lake. March 8, 1907, he took the oath as Adjutant General of the National Guard of Utah, and is to be credited with much of the present high efficiency of the militia of this state. In July, 1913, he was appointed a member of the National Militia Board by the Secretary of War.

ALFRED E. TOURSSEN.

ONE of the leading members of the automobile business in Utah today is Alfred E. Tourssen, manager, secretary and treasurer of the Randall-Dodd Auto Co., Ltd.

Mr. Tourssen was born at Chicago, Ills., June 14, 1879. His parents were John and Mrs. Ellen Johnson Tourssen, natives of Trondheim, Norway, where the elder Tourssen was engaged in the shoe business, emigrating to America in 1871.

A. E. Tourssen spent his boyhood in Chicago, attending the public graded schools and one of the high schools. He was graduated from high school in 1897 and on September 21, 1907, he came to Utah.

Mr. Tourssen married Miss Wilhelmina Norman in Salt Lake City on September 6, 1911. They have one child, Norman Alfred, eight months of age.

Mr. Tourssen has made a marked success in the automobile trade. His position as manager of the Randall-Dodd Auto Co. is one of responsibility. The company has a branch at Boise, Ida., and employs agents and dealers in every town in the intermountain country.

Mr. Tourssen is also secretary and treasurer of the King Mining Company of Cherry Creek, Nev., and is intermountain distributor for the Buick-Oldsmobile and National cars.

He is active in the promotion of the Midland Trail and is a member of the Utah Automobile Trades Association; the Utah Electric Club; the Salt Lake Auto Club, and the Commercial Club of this city. He belongs to the Chicago lodge of Knights of Pythias and to the Royal Arcanum. Politically Mr. Tourssen is an independent.

GEO. J. FIELD.

PROBABLY no more enthusiastic admirers of their native state are to be found in the confines of the United States than the Missourians. They are proud of their commonwealth, its history and its clime and soil and of its sons and daughters.

But in many instances, the sons of Missouri step into newer fields for the purpose of carrying on their life work.

Such is true of Dr. Geo. J. Field. Dr. Field was born at Platte City, Mo., May 7, 1867.

His choice of calling is fitting, for his father, Dr. Geo. W. Field, was a doctor before him, practicing in Platte City, Mo., until the time of his death.

Thus the great law of inherited inclination, which so often bequeathes to the son the talents and inclinations of the parent, was proven true in this case.

When still a young man, Dr. Field entered the Missouri State University in 1884 and was graduated from that institution in 1887, having made a good record for himself in the famous institution at Columbia.

From there he went to the Missouri Medical College at St. Louis, being graduated from that school March 5, 1889.

He heard the call of the west, and came to Utah in 1891, practicing medicine at Eureka for fourteen years, as a general practicioner.

Dr. Field is a widower, and has an only son, Julian W. Field who is fourteen years of age.

Dr. Field is a member of the Odd Fellows lodge No. 12 of Eureka, Utah, and of the Maccabees, as well as being a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

He also is a member of the American Medical Association, the Salt Lake County Medical Association and the Utah State Medical Society.

OSBORNE J. P. WIDTSOE.

PREPARED by many years of study in some of the best schools and universities of America, Prof. Osborne J. P. Widtsoe, formerly of the Latter-day Saints University, Salt Lake City, is qualified for the responsibilities of his position as educator. He is a member of the faculty of the University of Utah.

Professor Widtsoe was born at Namsos, Norway, December 12, 1877. His father was John Andreas Widtsoe, and his mother Anna K. Gaarden Widtsoe. He came to Utah in 1883, at the age of six years and attended the Agricultural College of Utah at Logan from 1894 to 1897. He was graduated in 1897 from that college, and in 1903 he went to Harvard University for a two years' course, receiving his degree in 1905.

Professor Widtsoe has followed the teaching profession during all the years of his manhood. He was the active head of the Latter-day Saints' University, which in the school year of 1914 had 620 pupils in the High school department; 333 in the business training department; 97 in the missionary class; 242 in the night school; and 25 in the salesmanship class, a total of 1,317 pupils. He went to the University of Utah, at the end of the school year 1915.

Professor Widtsoe is a member of the Modern Languages Association. He is married to Rose Homer Widtsoe, and they have two children: Karine H., eight years of age, and Rosetta, five years of age. Professor Widtsoe's home is in Salt Lake City, but his reputation as an educator is statewide, and is recognized throughout the country.

JESSE CARL OLSON.

A SALESMAN of unusual ability who has been connected with many of the best and most widely known business concerns in the west; a man who, although not old in years is rich in experience and who makes numberless friends is Jesse Carl Olsen, who has lived in Salt Lake City the greater part of his life.

His business ability in connection with every enterprise with which he has become connected has gained the confidence of his business and social associates. Mr. Olsen, was born June 23, 1880 in Des Moines, Iowa. His father has for years been the local representative of the Anheuser Busch Brewing Company of St. Louis, Mo. As a salesman and a man well known and popular his father is without a peer. The son follows in the footsteps of his father. Mr. Olsen, Sr., is a native of Aalsburg, Denmark. He came to this country when but a boy and immediately entered on a prosperous business career.

Jesse Carl Olsen's parents are Jennie Olsen and George Olsen. Like his father he is now a representative of the Anheuser Busch Brewing Association, one of the largest institutions of its kind in the world. His education was acquired in Des Moines. His collegiative training was gained at the Lincoln Normal School. From that institution he was graduated in 1898, having attended there from 1896 to 1898, inclusive.

As a member of the Elks, the Moose and the Eagles he is known as the same genial man and the same booster as he is known by his other friends throughout the state.

He is an originator of ideas and when it is up to him to assist in any undertaking he quickly gives his services. Previous to his connection with his father in his present business Mr. Olsen was employed by the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company, by Armour and Company and by the National Bank of the Republic of Salt Lake City.

CHARLES H. REILLEY.

CHARLES H. REILLEY is a native of Providence, Rhode Island, and was born in 1862. He came to Salt Lake in 1883, and was married to Miss Lillian Indge of Salt Lake. There are five children in the family.

Mr. Reilley has been active as a business man since 1892, when he opened the retail liquor store at State and First South Streets, from which site his growing business compelled him to move a few years ago, to his present large and attractive store building at 216 and 218 South State Street.

In addition to the wholesale and retail business of the Elk Liquor Company, Mr. Reilley handles the Salt Lake agency for the Lemp Brewing Company, handling that company's products, and distributing them.

There is also under his personal management and control, a large bottling works at Third West and Eighth South Streets, representing an investment of about $40,000. A force of twenty-seven men is employed in this industrial plant. The majority of these are men of families.

Mr. Reilley, in addition to his business interests, is interested in fraternal and benevolent organizations, and in semi-public organizations that tend to wide acquaintanceship, and to the building up of the community. He is popular and his counsel is often sought in the affairs of these organizations, which include the Salt Lake lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks; Salt Lake Aerie No. 67, Fraternal Order of Eagles; the Salt Lake local of the United Commercial Travelers; and the Salt Lake Commercial Club. Mr. Reilley is an admirer and patron of clean sports and athletic events and enjoys a degree of popularity that makes him one of the best known men in the city.

STANLEY COLLAMORE SEARS.

STANLEY COLLAMORE SEARS, consulting engineer, was born at Boston, Mass., February 20, 1877. His father was Edward Shailer Sears, and his mother Isabel (Waggoner) Sears. The family in America dates from 1630 when the first Sears from England settled at Yarmouth, Mass.

Mr. Sears was educated at Boston, finishing at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in June, 1901, with the degree of bachelor of science in the department of mining. He was with the Pennsylvania Steel Company, at Steelton, from 1901 to 1903. He went to Mexico in 1903, remaining there until driven out a short time ago by political revolutions.

Mr. Sears came to Utah in July, 1912, as general manager for the Utah-Apex Mining Company at Bingham Canyon, second largest lead-silver producer in Utah. During his administration the company has reached the most successful point in its career. Mr. Sears was married October 5, 1913 to Mrs. Robert Holmes Officer, formerly Marion Early Simmons, of Salt Lake.

Mr. Sears is a member of several professional societies including the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the Institute Mexicano de Minas y Metallurgia. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity, and the following clubs: University Club of Mexico; Parral Foreign, Mexico; University and Country Clubs, Salt Lake; and Technology Club, Boston.

During his years in Mexico Mr. Sears was first with the Valerdena Mining and Smelting Company, a subsidiary of the American Smelters Securities Company, at the Terneras property of the San Lorenzo group; being engineer, draftsman, chief engineer, and superintendent in order. In 1908 he became superintendnt of the Benito Juarez Mines Company; superintendent for Descubridoro M. & S. Co.; and Durango Central Railroad; technical manager Mexico Consolidated M. & S. Co.; and consulting engineer for the F. Stallworth y Hermano banking house, operating the high grade silver mines at San Pedro de Guanacevi, in the Sierra Madre region of western Durango.

LEWIS LARSON.

AMONG Utah's well known attorneys is Lewis Larson of Manti. Mr. Larson was born in that city on August 7, 1873, his parents being Niels and Mrs. Anna Hansen Larson. They were both former residents of Copenhagen, Denmark, and his ancestors own vast estates there. His forbears came to New York in 1863 and came directly to Utah, settling at Manti.

Mr. Larson was graduated from the Manti high school and from there went to Brigham Young University, attending that institution from 1889 to 1893 and taking up the study of law after graduation in the Utah University, at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor. He received his degree from the University of Michigan in 1901 and in that same year took up his permanent residence at Manti and engaged in the practice of law.

Mr. Larson is married, his wife having formerly been Miss Verna Funk, who was born of a well known Manti family. They have two children, Lewis Leland, 13 years of age; and Dean McKinley, 11 years of age.

Although devoted to his profession Mr. Larson finds time for social recreation. He is a member of two lodges, the Odd Fellows and the Modern Woodmen of America. He is also a member of the Manti Commercial Club and the Manti Gun Club; being a member of the board of the Commercial Club and an officer in the latter organization.

Mr. Larson has been honored by his fellow citizens with public office, having been county attorney for four years, 1904 to 1908. He is prominent in Progressive party politics and was nominated by that party at the last election for office of county attorney. He is quite prominent today in Sanpete county political affairs, and enjoys the confidence and respect of his fellow citizens throughout that entire section of the state.

DeLOSSE CALAIN PERKINS.

DeLOSSE CALAIN PERKINS was born on a farm in Warren County, Illinois, on June 28, 1871. His father, Thomas Benton Perkins, was born in Warren County on October 9, 1845. His mother was Mrs. Sarah Davis Perkins.

The greater part of his early life Mr. Perkins spent on a farm. His parents gained their education at Abingdon College near Carthage, Illinois, and Mr. Perkins received his education in the schools and universities of Nebraska.

He came to Utah in the spring of 1908 in which state he continued the line of business in which he has been engaged for the last twenty-five years, that of insurance and building and loan. At the present time he is treasurer of the Utah State Building & Loan Association, a firm that he was largely instrumental in incorporating on October 15, 1909.

Mr. Perkins as well as his father, is a lifelong Democrat having been active in politics in Nebraska and Utah for the past twenty-five years. Neither he nor his father held political offices.

He is a member of the Royal Highlanders in Nebraska and an active member of the Elks lodge in that state, as well as belonging to the Commercial Club in Salt Lake City. He is a great believer in the future of this city and state.

He married M. Maude Briggs on November 29, 1894, at Beatrice, Neb., his bride having been for some time a teacher in the public schools of Nebraska and widely known among the members of that profession. Mrs. Perkins is an enthusiast in art and has exhibited her work at the Nebraska exhibitions as well as in Utah, most of her work being oil and water colors.

Four children have graced this union: Dorothy Harriet Perkins, seventeen years of age; Beth Katherine Perkins, fifteen years of age; Paul Kendall Perkins, thirteen years of age; and Eleanor Alice Perkins, nine years of age.

HEBER S. HICKS.

HEBER C. HICKS, a native of Utah, received his education in his native state and also in the middle west. He is now settled in Provo, being vice-president of the Provo Post Publishing Company.

Mr. Hicks' parents were John T. R. Hicks and Mrs. Anna B. Hicks. He was born at Salt Lake City October 20, 1882 and later removed to Provo, Utah. His father was of English descent and his mother of Swiss.

He studied in the Salt Lake school of law in the year 1897 and later at L. D. S. University, taking a course of law in that institution. He later went to the Lincoln-Jefferson University at Chicago.

Mr. Hicks then returned to Utah.

In addition to his editorial duties, he is a special correspondent. He has extensive interests in the business world, being secretary of the Grutli Mining Company, secretary of the Hannibal Consolidated Mining Company and is also an active member of the Utah Newspaper Men's Association, and the Provo Commercial Club.

For several years he has been Provo correspondent for the Herald-Republican of Salt Lake. He taught school for one year in Tooele county, Utah, and was with the Deseret News for two years. It was in 1907 that he first came to Provo, and he has been closely identified with the Post of that city for years.

He is a Republican and a staunch adherent of the principles of that party as set forth by former President Wm. H. Taft.

He is married, his wife having been Miss Flora Ridge. They have one son, John Ridge Hicks.

As publisher, editor and correspondent, Mr. Hicks is possibly one of the best informed men upon matters relating to Utah's history and development, to be found in the state.

GEO. LEOPOLD SMART.

AMONG the many thousands of British-born subjects who have come to America to make their home is George Leopold Smith, specialist in gynecology. Dr. Smart was born in Boltonsburo, Somersetshire, England. His parents were H. B. Smart and Elizabeth Winsor Smart. In 1865 he emigrated from England, settling in Utah the same year.

Dr. Smart was graduated from the Ohio Medical Institute of Cincinnati in 1889. He began the practice of medicine at Provo, Utah, the same year and was appointed health officer of that city in 1892, a position he held for two years. In the fall of 1893 he returned to Cincinnati for a post-graduate course, studying obstetrics and gynecology under Thad A. Reamy and E. Gustav Zinke. He was appointed chief assistant surgeon to the German Protestant Hospital for Women under Dr. Zinke. He came to Salt Lake City in 1906.

Dr. Smart is married, his wife's maiden name having been Emma Stoltz. He is a member of the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias.

Dr. Smart, being a believer in the educative influence of art, began advocating its adoption in the public schools, and was instrumental in the establishment of the art gallery which is now a part of the public schools of Springville, Utah.

He has had wide experience. Returning to Provo in 1894 he joined an expedition sent the following year to southern Utah for geological, ornithological and botanical investigations by the Brigham Young University. He located in Springville in 1896 where, at the request of the mayor and city council, he accepted the position of health officer for the district. He was one of the organizers and became the first president of the Society of Health Officers of Utah. He also with six other physicians, organized the Utah County Medical society, holding the chair of president of this body for one year.

HARRY PRESTON SMITH.

AMONG Utahns who hail from Iowa is Harry Preston Smith.

His parents, Wm. I. Smith and Mrs. Sarah Crouch Smith, were well known residents of Seymour, Iowa. He was born June 6, 1882, at Seymour. After receiving the common school education, he entered the Iowa state colleg at Ames, Iowa. He was there from 1889 to 1903, but sickness prevented graduation.

After leaving college he came west to Denver, Colo., securing there a position as draughtsman in one of the leading architect's offices. He remained there a few months, after which he accepted a position as assistant draughtsman with the J. P. Paulson Manufacturing Company of the same city. This firm manufactures bank, office, bar and store fixtures. During this time Mr. Smith took a special course in designing and later became head designer for the J. P. Paulson Company.

In the fall of 1908 he was sent to Salt Lake City to take charge of the designing and estimating department of the local branch of the J. P. Paulson Company, which was consolidated with the Brunswick-Balke Collender Co., in 1910. Two years later the company discontinued manufacturing in Salt Lake City. At the same time the concern made Mr. Smith a flattering offer as general superintendent of its factory at San Francisco. However, believing in the future of Salt Lake City and knowing the possibilities in the manufacture of store fixtures in this territory, he refused the offer. He then organized the American Fixture Company on April 13, 1912 associating himself with men who had held responsible positions in the factory of the Brunswick-Balke Collender Company.

The firm is making arrangements for a factory building. Mr. Smith is president and manager of the American Fixture Co., Inc. He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Dorothy Dwyer.

JOHN D. GILES.

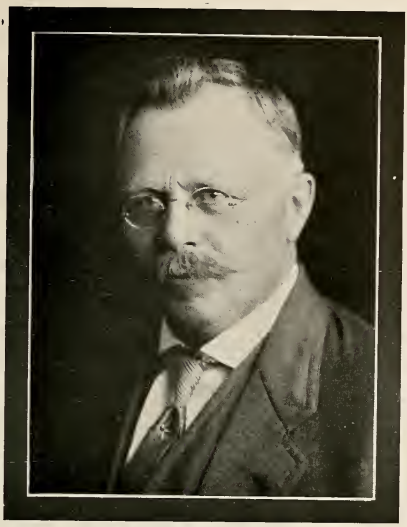
A NATIVE son of Utah, proud of his nativity and of his state, is John Giles. Mr. Giles has made for himself a large place in the business world. He is head of the Utah agency force of the Beneficial Life Insurance Company, and also is educational director for the same big concern.

Before he became identified with the insurance business Mr. Giles was for seven years at the head of the largest advertising organization in the intermountain region. He was one of the pioneers in the Utah advertising business, assisting in the organization of the Giles Company, of which he still is president.

When the Salt Lake Ad Club was organized in 1907, Mr. Giles was elected secretary and served four terms of one year each. He then was honored by his associates who elected him to the presidency.

Mr. Giles has been an ardent and active member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club for five years and has served effectively on several important committees, including the governing committee of the Publicity Bureau.

Mr. Giles' success is typical of the west. He started on a modest scale and by hard work reached a favored position in the business world. His wife formerly was Miss Una Pratt, granddaughter of Parley P. Pratt, famous in the early history of Utah. They have three children, a girl and two boys. Mr. Giles' grandparents came to Utah from Wales, in the late '50's. The grandfather, Thomas D. Giles, was a blind harpist and was known widely throughout the west. Other members of the family, including Henry E. Giles, father of John D. Giles, have been prominent in music circles in Utah from the early days. The Giles family home is at 156 Fourth Avenue, this city.



NICHOLAS BYHOWER.

AS superintendent of parks and public property in Salt Lake City, Nicholas Byhower demonstrated the great value to a city, of a man specially trained for his work. Mr. Byhower is a native of Holland, a son of Anna and Matheus Byhower. He was born March 27, 1864, of a family of gardeners. There are five brothers, all of whom are practical gardeners.

Mr. Byhower began his practical training as a professional gardener, when he was twelve years of age, as a fruit grower, florist, nurseryman and forester. Landscape gardening is his special forte. He has engaged in this profession in Holland, Germany and Belgium, learning the secrets of the profession in these countries before coming to America.

He attended the Horticultural School at Wayeningen, Holland, and Baumschule, at Bonn, Germany, from 1870 to 1880. He came to Utah in 1900. He has married twice, his first wife having died. Her name was Lizzie Luthowder. His second wife's maiden name was Bertha Steinke. He has one son by his first wife, William Karl Byhower, 16 years of age, a student in the Salt Lake High school.

Mr. Byhower is a member of the Woodman of the World; of the Association of Park Superintendents of America; and is former secretary of the Salt Lake Horticultural Society. He is also a horticultural inspector. He is a Republican, with progressive tendencies.

It has fallen to Mr. Byhower's lot to install the public playgrounds in the city; and aside from this, supervise the pruning of the city's trees in all parks, playgrounds and other public property. He is an expert botanist and an expert in the matter of discovery and treatment of plant diseases. His whole time is devoted to his work for the city and he has no other source of revenue. His home is at 1783 Park Street, Salt Lake City. He retired from the department late in 1914.

WILLIAM J. SEELY.

A life long Republican, a descendant of one of the best known Utah pioneers and a young lawyer of already recognized ability, his friends predict for W. J. Seely a certain rise in legal and political circles. At present he holds the responsible position in the administration of Governor Spry as special deputy state auditor.

Mr. Seely's ancestry is notable. The first scion came to Massachusetts Bay colony with the "Winthrop fleet." Likewise his grandfather was one of the first Utah pioneers, arriving in the valley in 1847, when it was yet within Mexican territory. His father, Justus W. Seely, was among the first Americans born in Salt Lake City. His birth is registered as June 25, 1850.

William J. Seely's maternal grandfather also was a pioneer. The subject of the sketch was born at Mt. Pleasant, June 3, 1875, and was educated at both Brigham Young University and the University of Utah and was admitted to the bar June 24, 1914.

Between his attendance at the Provo school and his legal studies Mr. Seely entered and rose to a commanding position in the business world. He was a member of the last two sessions of the Utah legislature and speaker of the house during the last session. During the last three and one-half years he has been deputy in the office of the state auditor, holding the position of special traveling auditor during the past two and one-half years. In 1909 and 1910 he was county recorder of Emery county. For six years prior to that time Mr. Seely was a member of the town board of Castledale, and a member of the school board for nine years. He is a heavy stockholder in the Castledale Co-operative institution and in the Electric Power and Milling Company of that city. His farm of 140 acres at Castledale is regarded as a notable one, even in that agricultural section.

Mr. Seely was married to Lucy M. Barton. There are three children, Margaret E., Drucilla and Luscia.

DAVID MOORE LINDSAY.

DAVID MOORE LINDSAY was born March 29, 1862 He is the elder son of the late George Lindsay, County Antrim, Ireland; and Bessie, daughter of John Moore, J. P. Moore Lodge, County Down. The family went from Scotland to Ireland in 1642.

Educated privately and at the Royal Academical institution, Belfast, he entered the Queen's College, Belfast, 1880; and the University of Edinburgh, 1881. While a student at the Infirmary in the latter city, he was for three years under the late Dr. Joseph Bell,—the original Sherlock Holmes. Dr. Lindsay was medical and surgical resident of the Whitworth hospital, Drumcondra, Dublin; and attended the Ophthalmic hospital there in 1886. He obtained the diploma of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, 1886; of the Rotunda, 1887, and of the Royal College of Physicians, 1888. As surgeon of the "Aurora" of Dundee, he crossed Baffin's Bay in company with the Greely Relief Expedition. In the service of the African Royal Mail Co., he visited Sierra Leone and Nigeria. He also visited South America and India. He was appointed clinical assistant of Royal Ophthalmic hospital, London; and of Sir Morell MacKenzie's Throat hospital, 1893. He studied under Professors Stoerk and Politzer in Vienna, 1893-1894 and was elected a member of the Laryngological Society of London, 1894; Fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine, 1903; and F. R. G. S., London, 1904.

He was appointed Ophthalmic Surgeon of St. Mark's hospital, 1897; of the Rio Grande Western Ry., 1898; and of the Utah Fuel Co. in 1903. Appointed by the chairman of the committee on conservation of vision of the American Medical Association, to the charge of the Bureau in Utah, 1913. He is the author of "A Voyage to the Arctic in the Whaler Aurora," 1911, and "Campfire Reminiscences," 1912. (Dana Estes & Co., Boston.) He is a member of Sports Club, St. James Square, London; Tennis, Alta and Country Clubs, Salt Lake.

EDWARD H. O'BRIEN.

ONE of Salt Lake City's well known business men, Edward H. O'Brien, is a typical self-made man.

Born in the east Mr. O'Brien came to Utah's capitol only three years ago. He has built up a prosperous trade in coal. He is enthusiastic about the possibilities in the intermountain region, and can show newcomers from personal experience, what a determined and resourceful commercial man can accomplish in the west.

Mr. O'Brien was born at Shawmut, Elk county, Pennsylvania, March 11, 1870. He came of Irish stock, his father being Patrick O'Brien and his mother Rose Brennan O'Brien.

He attended the Northern Illinois Normal Institute at Dixon, Ill., being graduated in 1893 with a good record. Mr. O'Brien is unmarried. He is a Democrat and is a staunch worker for that party.

He is prominent in club life being a member of the Elks Lodge, the Knights of Columbus and also of the Commercial Club. He believes that every business man who has prospered in Utah should work for the betterment of his state and city.

Mr. O'Brien is president of the Citizens Coal Company, with offices in the Walker Bank building. The concern is doing a big business, which is in large part due to the excellent business judgment and ability shown by Mr. O'Brien.

Mr. O'Brien is a Utah "booster." He is well acquainted with the business and commercial field of the city and state and is looked up to as one of the leading business men of this community.

MAURICE K. PARSONS.

MAURICE K. PARSONS, one of the most widely known livestock men of Utah, was born at Worthington, Utah, June 24, 1847, and came to Salt Lake City in 1872.

He was a son of Maurice and Sibrina King Parsons, and has been engaged in the ranching and livestock business during virtually his whole life.

Mr. Parsons attended Otterburn University at Westerville, Ohio, in 1863, but did not remain to graduate with his class. His wife, now dead, was Harriet M. Rose Parsons. The sons and daughters are Arthur P. Parsons, Edward C. Parsons and Elsie Andrew.

Mr. Parsons is a member of the Alta Club, Masonic Lodge, and Country Club, Salt Lake City; and the Stock Mens Club, Denver.

Among the corporations in which he is interested are the Keystone Land and Cattle Company, the Hillside Land and Cattle Company and the Utah-Colorado Cattle and Improvement Company.

With such solid and substantial interests, and with his mind centered upon the steady and natural development of these interests, without the disturbing element of speculation, Mr. Parsons is distinguished for his constructive and conservative ideas, and his preference for the more permanent if less spectacular lines of endeavor.

Mr. Parsons gives no personal attention to politics, save to exercise his franchise as a citizen, but is deeply interested in constructive and civic improvement and development. He has a beautiful and comfortable home in Salt Lake City.

THOMAS HOBDAY.

THAT the circulation of blood is to the human body, the water system of a city is to its population. When the blood stops, the body dies. When the water supply of a city is shut off, the city dies.

Salt Lake City has one of the best water systems in the country. Immense reservoirs far up in mountains, fed by the icy streams that originate among the snow-banks on the loftiest peaks, conserve the water which courses through miles of conduits and pipes to every portion of the city; and save on the rare occasions when nature plays pranks, there is always plenty.

Thomas Hobday, now superintendent of city parks, inaugurated and installed the first units of the present elaborate water works system of Salt Lake City. He was superintendent of water works four years, and during that period took the first steps toward giving Salt Lake City an abundant and unfailing water supply. He also was a member of the city council four years, and in that period worked with earnestness and zeal for public improvements of every kind that stood for permanency and a better city.

Mr. Hobday is a native of West Virginia. He is a Republican and is married. He came to Salt Lake City in July, 1905, and engaged in the florist business. He has followed that business at various times since when not engaged in public service. Mr. Hobday is an enthusiastic member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and is one of the most firm believers in the present stability and future greatness of Salt Lake City and Utah. His home is at 515 South Tenth East Street.

ATHA T. WILLIAMS.

PERSONAL courage and unerring judgment, with the ability to read human nature at a glance and read it correctly, are attributes that are essential to the successful peace officer. These attributes are possessed by Atha T. Williams, who was the first marshal in Bingham Canyon, and who for seven years was a deputy in the office of the sheriff of Salt Lake county.

Mr. Williams was born in Butler county, Kentucky, June 28, 1867. His parents were Dr. W. H. and Elizabeth Williams. Reared in the Kentucky mountains, he became an expert horseman and an unerring shot with rifle and pistol in his boyhood. His father was a native Virginian, and still practices medicine at Frankln, Ky. His mother was born in Tennessee.

Graduating from the High school at Auburn, Ky., in 1882, Mr. Williams remained in the southland several years, and then came to Utah in 1892. He married Miss Selma Williams, who, though their names were the same were not related. They have four sons and daughters: Atha, 16 years of age; Elizabeth, 15 years of age; Harold, 8 years of age; and Catherine, 5 years of age. The family home is 168 G Street, Salt Lake City.

Mr. Williams is president of the Citizens Coal and Supply Company; and is a stockholder in the Citizens State Bank. He is superintendent of various mining properties in the state, and is farming 400 acres of choice land in Cache county. He is a member of no fraternal order, nor is he a member of any club.

EDMUND ROSS LEIS.

WHEN Edmund Ross Leis was eighteen years of age he entered the railroad service with the Santa Fe system at Albuquerque, New Mexico, as a freight handler. Today he is a general agent for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway system, at Salt Lake City, Utah. Territory, under his jurisdiction, Utah, Idaho, Nevada and Montana, covering both freight and passenger departments.

Mr. Leis was born December 12, 1882 at Lawrence, Kansas. His parents were George Leis and Lillian Ross-Leis. He is a grandson and namesake of Edmund Gibson Ross, former United States Senator from Kansas, who voted against the impeachment of President Johnson. Senator Ross was one of the incorporators and a director of the Santa Fe system, and was governor of New Mexico under President Cleveland's administration.

Mr. Leis attained his preliminary education at Lawrence, Kansas; Colorado Springs and Manitou, later attending the Kansas State University, after which time he entered railroad service at Albuquerque, N. M., as freight handler, followed by clerical positions on that system. Was also with the Wells-Fargo Express Company for a short period.

Later he became traveling representative for the Kansas City Journal. He re-entered the service of the Santa Fe system in 1904 as traveling agent for the station advertising department, with headquarters at Chicago. His service since that time has been as follows: Traveling freight and passenger agent, Santa Barbara, Cal., April 9, 1909 to March 31, 1910; passenger agent, Kansas City, Mo., April 1 to June 25, 1910; traveling freight and passenger agent, Salt Lake City, June 25, 1910 to May 30, 1912; general agent at Salt Lake City, from June 1, 1912 to date.

Mr. Leis is not married. He is a member of Salina, Kansas lodge No. 718 B. P. O. Elks; and the Utah society, Sons of the American Revolution; the Salt Lake City Transportation Club; the Commercial Club of Salt Lake and the Weber Club of Ogden.

FREDERICK STEIGMEYER.

ALTHOUGH Frederick Steigmeyer is an attorney of note in his adopted state of Utah, his most noted relative on his paternal side was the late Nicholas Senn, the Chicago surgeon, one of the most widely known of America's medical experts.

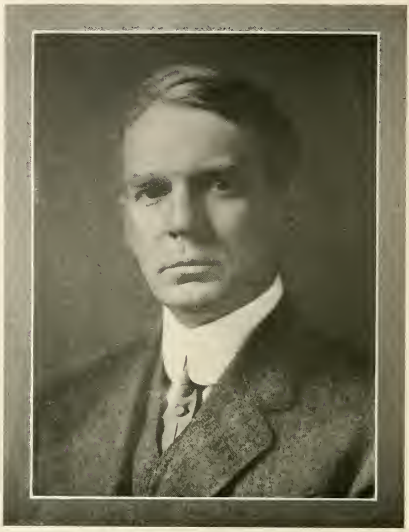
Mr. Steigmeyer was born in Ohio January 16, 1875. He came of American lineage, his father being Frederick Steigmeyer, Sr., and his mother Mrs. Caroline Van Buren Grey Steigmeyer. On his maternal side his most noted relative was President Martin Van Buren. By descent, Mr. Steigmeyer is Swiss on his paternal side and Dutch and English on the maternal side.

As an attorney he specializes in the law of corporate investments, estates, irrigation, power and financing. Politically he is a Democrat.

He is a member of many corporations, among which are the Utah Rivers Investment Co., Utah Securities Corporation, Monepa Mining Co., Utah Power & Light Co., Triple Links Mining & Milling Co., Phoenix Construction Co., Silver King Extension Mining Co., and others.

Mr. Steigmeyer is a thirty-second degree Mason and a Knight Templar. He considers that the biggest work he ever did which was of interest to the whole community, was when he acted as chairman of the Charities Endowment committee, which investigates the worthiness of all charity organizations and charity projects.

As a loyal Utahn Mr. Steigmeyer is an active member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago of the class of 1897 coming to Salt Lake City four years later. He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Lu Ree Dyer. They had an only child, a son, who died.



EDWARD O. HOWARD.

CASHIER and director of one of the best known and most substantial banking institutions in the middle western states, and a man who is socially and politically, as well as financially influential throughout Utah, is Edward O. Howard. Through his zeal and integrity and his great desire to assist in matters whereby his associates, as well as the public may be benefitted, he has won an everlasting place in the hearts of his hosts of friends.

Edward O. Howard, who is a member of the well-known banking firm of Walker Brothers, Bankers, was born in Owasco, New York, and is the son of Oscar and Cornelia A. Howard, both of whom are well known in New York state. His education was received during his attendance at the public schools and the high school at Shawateles, New York. Mr. Howard came to Utah in 1890. His ability as an expert accountant and his ambition and integrity soon placed him in positions of trust. Shortly after his arrival here he became the husband of Miss Annie Payne. Mr. and Mrs. Howard have one daughter, Miss Margery M. Howard, seventeen years of age.

Although Mr. Howard has never become associated with fraternal organizations of any nature, he is well known and highly respected in political and club circles. At the present time he is a member of the Alta club and an associate member of the University club. He is also a member of the Country club of Salt Lake, and has been for the past three years a member of the board of governors of the Commercial club, and an active and energetic worker in all matters pertaining to the betterment of conditions generally throughout the state. His political faith and tendencies have always been centered in the Republican party, and when a campaign is in progress, or when any problem confronts the people of the state, in which he may be of assistance or aid, Mr. Howard can always be found in the front rank.

RODNEY T. BADGER.

THE record of various families is followed almost as closely today as they were in the olden time. Pride in family achievement has its true place, and in Europe, the sons of a family look back upon the deeds of their ancestors and emulate them under the circumstances and conditions of modern life. Even so in America, where democratic conditions prevail, the pride in family record, helps win many a business battle. And the saying, "Blood will tell," in many cases is proven by the sons of American uncrowned kings.

Badger Brothers is as well-known a family name as any in Salt Lake City and Utah. Rodney Taylor Badger, one of the brothers whose names are linked in the business and financial records of this State, was born in Salt Lake City, October 8, 1872. His father was Rodney C. Badger and his mother Mrs. Harriet Ann (Taylor) Badger.

After receiving the early education of the graded schools of this city, Mr. Badger entered the University of Utah, where he received an excellent collegiate training. He soon took up the profession of banking and has achieved brilliant success.

He is cashier of the Utah State National bank, treasurer of the Heber J. Grant company, and also a member of the following corporations: The Citizen's State Bank of Bingham, Utah; the Midvale State Bank; the Bountiful State Bank and the Sugar Banking Company, besides several other corporations.

Mr. Badger belongs to the Alta Club, the Salt Lake Commercial Club, the Country Club and the Salt Lake Tennis Club.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Harriet Moore. They have four children: Harry, 20 years of age; Esther, 18 years of age; John M., 16 years of age, and Robert, six years of age.

REED SMOOT.

AS SENIOR United States Senator from Utah, Reed Smoot of Provo occupies a peculiarly commanding position in affairs in Utah. Senator Smoot was born in Salt Lake City, Jan. 10, 1862. His father was Abram Owen Smoot, and his mother Anne K. Morrison Smoot. Senator Smoot attended the University of Utah and Brigham Young University, graduating from the latter school.

Mrs. Smoot was formerly Miss Alpha Eldredge, and she and Senator Smoot are parents of the following children: Harold R., Chloe Smoot Carlton, Harlow E., Annie K. Smoot Rebentisch, Zella Esther and Ernest W. Smoot.

Senator Smoot is engaged in banking and many other commercial and industrial enterprises. He has taken a prominent part in the general movement to develop and foster the growth of manufacturing and other industries in the state. He is a director of various corporations, including the Z. C. M. I., Deseret National bank, Provo Commercial and Savings bank, several mining companies and many other corporations.

Senator Smoot entered the United States senate March 5, 1903. A historic but losing fight was made by antagonistic forces to prevent him from taking his seat, on account of his official position in the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Senator Smoot is a Republican, and has made a national reputation because of his firm grasp on governmental affairs, particularly the tariff question.

DR. ROBERT R. HAMPTON.

DR. ROBERT R. HAMPTON is a native son of Utah. He was born in Box Elder County, Utah, May 19, 1875. Dr. Hampton has a right to be proud of his Utah genealogy. His mother, Adelaide Grant Hampton, came to this state in 1850, while his father, Benjamin Hampton, came here in 1852, they thus being among the early settlers. In addition to this, his father crossed the plains seventeen times before the railroads came into the county and was also a pioneer in the mining business in this state.

After receiving the common school education Dr. Hampton took up his medical studies, entering the medical department of the University of Illinois and studying there from 1894 to 1900, being graduated the latter year. He then entered upon his profession career.

He is a member of the Nu Sigma Nu fraternity and of Argenta lodge, A. F. and A. M., this city, and also belongs to the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

Dr. Hampton limits his practice to cases involving eye, ear, nose and throat, being a specialist along those lines. He is a member of the county and state medical societies. He was resident physician of the Illinois State Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary. Then he spent four years in general practice as physician for the Montezuma Lead Company, located at Santa Barbara, Chihuahua, Mexico. The following year he devoted to study in Europe in eye, ear, nose and throat work, following this with work in Chicago. He is now oculist to St. Mark's hospital, Salt Lake City.

Dr. Hampton is married, his wife having been Miss Margaret E. Howat. They have two children, Jane Grant, 10 years of age; and Robert R., Jr., one year of age. Dr. Hampton belongs to no political party.

SQUIRE COOP.

"HE SERVES his God who serves his people well," is an old Spanish proverb. Squire Coop has served his people well by bringing to them an opportunity to hear and love the world's best music. When he gave to the people of Utah the great public presentations of the classical oratorios, he earned a place in Utah's hall of fame.

Squire Coop is a native of Leeds, England. He came to the United States in his childhood, and attended the public schools of Ogden. He developed early a strong musical sense. Evan Stephens, when he organized the children's chorus discovered Squire Coop's musical ability, and began his preliminary instruction. L. D. Edwards fostered the spark, and the late Anton Pedersen helped fan that spark to flame. There were other teachers, to all of whom credit is due. Then he went to the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, and studied two years with Busoni for piano, and with other teachers for voice. He conducted the Ogden Tabernacle choir and the Ogden Eisteddfod chorus. He supervised the music of the Ogden public schools for ten years. He went to Berlin from 1900 to 1902, studying with Godowsky. In 1903 he was in Paris. He returned to Utah and became professor of music at the University of Utah, the first to occupy that chair.

Then he produced the great series of oratorios for which the State owes him gratitude. There was Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," in 1911; Haydn's "Creation," in 1912; and Handel's "Messiah," in 1913, repeating "Creation" for the National Education Association in that year. These performances were most important as phases of social life and were done for the whole public as a part of his work in the University department of music. His greatest forte is conducting orchestral and choral work. He was organizer with Herbert Salinger, and was pianist for the Salt Lake Quintet. He is a member of the Weber Club, Ogden; Commercial Club and Timpanogas Club, Salt Lake.

JAMES HENRY MAYS.

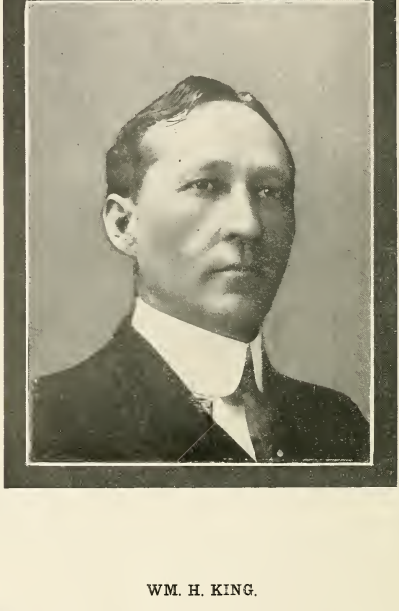
JAMES HENRY MAYS is descended of a family of Tennessee mountaineers who were loyal to the Union in the Civil War though they lived in a Confederate state. He is of Scotch-Irish and English descent, which accounts in a measure for his own persistence and success in spite of adversity. His parents were John and Harriett Mays. He was born in Hamblin County, eastern Tennessee June 29, 1868.

Mr. Mays encountered unusual hardships in his boyhood but surmounted all of these, and was admitted to the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, studying from 1893 to 1896. In 1895 he received the degree of Doctor of Laws, and in 1896, the degree of Master of Laws.

Mr. Mays' wife was Sarah Elizabeth Randels. They have four sons and a daughter; Arthur 20 years, Harold 18 years, Leland 16 years, Dudley 11 years and Ethel 9 years of age.

Mr. Mays is a Progressive, and was elected by the Utah Progressive party in 1914 for congress. He is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club; and of the Bonneville Club.

Mr. Mays worked his way through the schools of Emporia, Kan., and the University of Michigan, by laboring in lead and zinc mines and by teaching school. It is natural that he should have turned to mining upon his arrival in Utah in April, 1903, and asociated with a number of other men he has developed the Castle Valley coal properties employing hundreds of men. He fought the railroad and fuel trust through the Interstate Commerce Commission and won an outlet for his coal. He is president and director of the Castle Valley Coal Company, though a lawyer by profession. In his early manhood he was a distinguished debater, winning the interscholastic debates for Ann Arbor against eight other colleges. He is one of the most forceful and logical political speakers in the state. His home is at 749 Elizabeth Street, Salt Lake City.



WM. H. KING.

CERTAIN names seem to stand for communities. They are so closely identified with city or state, that to mention one is to think instantly of the other. Salt Lake City Utah, is almost synonymous with the name of Judge William H. King. He is typically a Utahn. Born at Fillmore, Utah, he is "a native son." His parents were William H. King and Mrs. Josephine King, both most estimable persons. Judge King received his early education in the common schools of this district. Then he entered the University of Utah and later attended the law school of the University of Michigan. He was graduated from that latter institution in 1888 and immediately took up the work of attorney-at-law. He began his law practice in Salt Lake City and early showed indications of his ability in his chosen profession.

In politics he has been one of the most active citizens of this community. He has served as state legislator for three terms and was judge of the state supreme court besides being congressman from this district.

Politically he is a Democrat of "the old school" and is an ardent admirer of President Woodrow Wilson.

Judge King is married. He is a member of the Alta and of the Country Clubs of Salt Lake City, and takes an active part in the social life of the city.

FRANK N. CAMERON.

AS president of the Cameron Coal Company and a director in the Utah Savings & Trust Company, Frank N. Cameron of Salt Lake City finds ample employment for the business hours of six days in each week. Mr. Cameron is a native of the Keystone state, where he was born in 1871. He gained his education in the common schools of Arnot, the town of his birth, and in the general school system of Pennsylvania. His parents were Roxana and James R. Cameron.

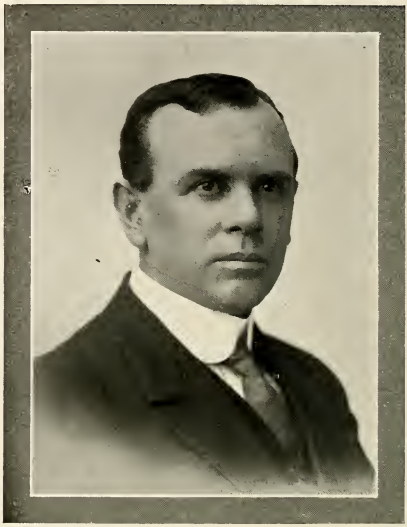
He visited Utah in 1902, while searching for a field for permanent enterprise and a city of permanent residence. The charm of Salt Lake City so appealed to him upon his first sight of the capital, that he remained to investigate the opportunities offered to those who would put their shoulder to the wheel of progress.

The opportunities for growth and development appeared so great to him that he decided to look no further, but located in this city for permanency.

Engaging in the coal business, he found it profitable, and has built up a successful business in that line. Opportunities for other financial enterprises were often presented to his attention, and he ultimately associated himself with the Utah Savings & Trust Company, taking a place on its directorate.

Mr. Cameron is a Republican, and is a Mason, having attained the thirty-second degree in that fraternity. He is a member of the Commercial club, and his counsel is often sought by the other members of that organization, in matters looking to the commercial development of the city.

Mr. Cameron is married and has one child, a daughter, Myra, 11 years of age.



WALTER CLAUDE OREM.

WALTER CLAUDE OREM comes of the school of self-made men. He is a son of Martha A. Leabo Orem and Albert J. Orem, and was born in Lay County, Mo., May 23, 1875. Both his father and his mother were of English ancestry, the forbears of his father having come to America in the Mayflower. Mr. Orem was educated in the public schools, and never attained a college degree. His school days were spent in Kansas City, and he came to Salt Lake in 1890. His wife was formerly Miss Mabel G. G. Emery, and there are five children, three sons and two daughters.

Mr. Orem is a member of no fraternal order but is a member of and deeply interested in the work of Immanuel Baptist church. He is also a director of Westminister College, Salt Lake. He is a member of the Alta and Commercial Clubs, the Electric and Transportation Clubs and the Rotary Club of Salt Lake and of the Commercial Club of Reno, Nevada.

Mining and railroads have occupied his attention since his residence in Utah and he is closely identified with many large and successful projects. He is a member of the following corporations: A. J. Orem & Co., the Inter-Urban Construction company; the Nevada Copper Belt Railroad Company; the Nevada Douglas Copper Company; the Salt Lake & Utah Railroad Company; and the Reading Mercantile and Transportation Company. He is also a director in the Continental National Bank, Salt Lake; he is a director in the Lyon County Bank, Yerington, Nevada, and a director in the Young Men's Christian Association, Salt Lake. His latest project is the construction of the Salt Lake & Utah railroad, an electric interurban line connecting Salt Lake with the rich and prosperous towns in Utah County.

ANDREW H. CHRISTENSEN.

IN A CITY and state developing as rapidly as Salt Lake City and Utah, the contractor finds a rich field for endeavor. Among those who have made a brilliant success in this field of work is Andrew H. Christensen of this city. Mr. Christensen was born at Gunnison, Utah, May 18, 1863. Among the contracting firms of the state, perhaps none is better or more widely known than is the Utah Construction company. It is doing more than the largest advertisement that could be made up, in all likelihood, to proclaim the merits and advantages of this state to the world.

Mr. Christensen came to Salt Lake City in 1900. His ability and sterling business worth have helped him in winning a high position in the world of commercial activity. He is manager of the Utah Construction company, and is doing his part in building up the center of the mountain empire.

He shows the truth of the old saying, "Blood will tell," his parents, Herman K. Christensen and Mrs. Anna C. Poulson Christensen being sterling characters.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Olive L. Derbidge. They have two children: Andrew Lee, nine years of age; and Allen Derbidge, six years of age.

Mr. Christensen is one of Utah's most enthusiastic "boosters" and believes in the future of Salt Lake City, as well. It is natural, therefore, that he is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

Mr. Christensen went from Gunnison to Denver in 1881 and lived there and in Wyoming until 1900 when he chose Utah's capital for his future home.

WALTER J. BURTON.

WALTER J. BURTON is a native son, having been born in Salt Lake City February 15, 1865. His career has been a steady rise in commercial lines. Today he is president of the Burton Manufacturing Company, of the Burton Coal & Lumber Company and of the Burton-Cotton Lumber Company. His business is that of wholesale lumber and the manufacture of tar products.

As a lumberman he is an enthusiastic member of the Hoo-Hoos, the "Shriners" of the Lumbermen's Association, and as a loyal Utahn and Salt Lake City "booster," he is an energetic member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

Mr. Burton comes of excellent lineage. His father was Robert Taylor Burton and his mother, Susan McBride Burton. He is a son of pioneers. His mother came to Utah in 1848 and his father in 1849, the year of the California "gold fever." His parents suffered hardships which the other pioneers of those early days endured in crossing the plains and risking their lives in mortal combat with the Indians. His father was of English descent and his mother of Scotch.

Mr. Burton is a graduate of the University of Utah, which he attended in the years 1884 and 1885.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Lucy Brown. This union was blessed with four children: Lucile, 23 years of age; Walter B., 21 years of age; Sarah, 16 years of age, and Rebecca, eight years of age.

ALFRED FRANK.

FOURTEEN years ago Alfred Frank came west from his native Cincinnati after graduating in 1898 as a mining engineer from Cornell University at Ithaca, New York. He located first in Butte, Mont., in 1900, as assistant mine surveyor in the mines of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company and other properties of F. Augustus Heinze. For ten years he served in the Heinze properties in various capacities, from mine surveyor and foreman to superintendent and manager. In 1910 he came to Utah as consulting engineer and mine manager for the Ohio Copper Company, the large holdings of which are located in Bingham canyon, Salt Lake County.

Mr. Frank was born January 27, 1879, in Cincinnati, Ohio. His father was Charles Frank and his mother Amelia Binger Frank. Mr. Frank is unmarried.

He is a member of the B. P. O. E. and the Alta, University, Commercial and Country Clubs of Salt Lake. For several years he has also been a member of the Silver Bow Club of Butte, Mont. In politics his sympathies are with the Republican party.

RICHARD L. CONELY.

ASSISTANT cashier of McCornick & Co., bankers, an institution that is recognized in every state in the Union as one of the strongest of its kind; a man who has worked himself up from a humble position to one of power by his untiring efforts, his integrity and honesty and his faculty of making and retaining the friendship of his associates, is Richard L. Conely. He was born at Brighton, Mich., in 1868. His parents were Amelia Meyers-Conely and Samuel H. Conely. His schooling was gained in his native state, but his collegiate course was finished in Utah.

Mr. Conely is a Republican. He can at any time be called upon to take an active part, as his friends know that he is always to be depended upon.

At the age of 14 years Mr. Conely came to Utah. Shortly after his arrival he entered the Collegiate Institute in Salt Lake City. He was graduated with honors from that institution in 1886. Mr. Conely is an active club man, and is a member of both the Alta and the Salt Lake Commercial Clubs. He is an active booster.

His wife's maiden name was Rhoda Mullett. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Conely: William Conely, 22 years of age; Fred Conely, 20 years of age; Gladys, 18 years of age, and Richard Conely, Jr., 10 years of age.

Mr. Conely has achieved high honors in connection with his membership in the Masonic fraternity. In 1904 he was grand master of the Masons in Utah. Following his admission to membership in the order he soon became a member of the consistory.

EDWARD ROBINS ZALINSKI.

EDWARD R. ZALINSKI was born at Fort Monroe, Va., May 13, 1879. He was the son of Edmund Louis Gray Zalinski, Major U. S. A., and Anna Hall Zalinski. His father was the inventor of the pneumatic dynamite torpedo gun and other military devices; also of the prismatic diffusing reflector, combining diffusion with reflection in the modern system of lighting.

Mr. Zalinski attended school in New York and Massachusetts. He was graduated from Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa., in 1900, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Science in mining and metallurgy. He took post graduate work in petrography, geology, physics, and chemistry at the University of Leipsig, Leipsig, Germany, receiving the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in February, 1904. While abroad he visited and studied European mines.

He was field assistant to F. L. Ransome of the United States Geological Survey in work on the mines of the Coeur d'Alene district, Idaho, during the season of 1904. Later he was engineer and assayer at the De Soto mine, Middleton, Arizona, and superintendent of the Azure Mining Company in the Burro Mountains, near Silver City, New Mexico.

He came to Salt Lake in 1906, and has since been engaged in mining engineering, chiefly in examination and in the directing of development work. He was married in 1908 to Agnes de Schweinitz.

Mr. Zalinski is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity, the University Club of Salt Lake, the Engineers' Club of New York, and the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

JOHN HICKEY.

ONE of the foremost mechanical engineers in Utah today is John Hickey. Born in Ohio in 1852 Mr. Hickey gives another instance of where an eastern man has sought the West as a land of promise. His father was D. B. Hickey and his mother Mary Hickey. In early life Mr. Hickey took a decided inclination to mechanical engineering, and after finishing the common schools, he entered the Upper Canada College at Varig and later pursued his professional training at the Hoboken School of Technology. He was graduated from the latter institution in 1873 as master mechanic and came to Salt Lake City in 1889.

Mr. Hickey is a mechanical engineer, superintendent of motive power and master mechanic.

So well has he followed the study of the problems of his calling that he is now vice-president of the Salt Lake Security & Trust Company in addition to being one of the foremost men in the engineering lines in the Inter-mountain country. He is also president of the Interurban Construction Company.

Mr. Hickey is an enthusiastic "booster" for his adopted state, being a member of the Salt Lake Commercial club. He also belongs to the Salt Lake Transportation Club.

He is married, his wife having been Miss Mary Melody. This union was blessed by one son, D. B. Hickey.

DR. C. C. SNYDER.

THERE is no more widely known physican in the state of Utah than Dr. Crayton C. Snyder, of Salt Lake. He was born at Wanship, in 1875, and is a descendent of a family among the oldest settlers in Utah. His parents, George G. Snyder and Mrs. Caroline K. Snyder came to Utah in 1849, at the time of the discovery of gold in California.

Dr. Snyder attended the graded schools at Ogden, and was graduated from the Inter-Mountain Business College, where he took a special course in literature. He then entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons at San Francisco, pursuing his studies from 1898 to 1902. After receiving his degree of M. D., he served as interne for four months, in the City and County hospital of San Francisco, and for ten months as interne in the French hospital in that city.

Dr. Snyder has been a member of the medical staff of Holy Cross hospital; surgeon in chief for the same institution; and is a director of the training school for nurses in that hospital.

An unusually fine opportunity was given Dr. Snyder, at one time, to pursue foreign studies, when he went to Europe as private physician for a prominent Nevada man, caring for him at Carlsbad, and at the leading medical centers of Europe.

Dr. Snyder is a member of Weber lodge No. 6, A. F. & A. M., and of El Kalah Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He also is a member of the University Club of Salt Lake. He is a Republican. Dr. Snyder has two children, Gordon M., 8 years of age, and John C., 4 years of age. Mrs. Snyder formerly was Miss Flora MacDonald.

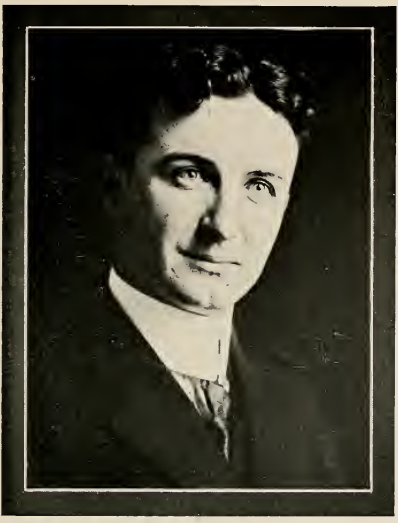
HARDY K. DOWNING.

DEAN of the athletic fraternity of Salt Lake City is a title which passes without challenge to Hardy K. Downing, athlete, promoter and sport writer. Mr. Downing although yet a young man, he was born in California December 10, 1878, has had an eventful career in which he has figured as a cowboy, pioneer frontiersman and finally as a recognized authority upon intermountain and national sports of all kinds.

For 18 years Mr. Downing was, as he puts it, "in the bicycle game." A rider of great power, he traveled the world's race circuit visiting Australia and Europe. Much of his riding, however, was done at the old Salt Palace track in Salt Lake City, and it was his popularity established here as a rider that made him become a citizen of the city. Among other notable records Mr. Downing secured while in the "racing game" was the world's mile tandem record which with Vic Benson he held for a number of years.

To the followers of boxing affairs, Mr. Downing is well known as the manager of the events that are held each Monday night at the Garrick theatre under the auspices of the Manhattan Club.

Mr. Downing, who lives at 177 East Ninth South Street, was married to Miss Bessie L. Price. They have one child, Hardy K., Jr. Mr. Downing's parents were Californians. His father was Lorenzo D. Downing a well known citizen of San Jose. His mother's maiden name was Delia M. Allen.



FREEMAN P. BASSETT.

BORN in Salt Lake City, Utah, December 28, 1882, Freeman Phippen Bassett received his elementary education in the schools of this city. The Bassett family came to America on the ship "Fortune," one year after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock. Later they settled in Western New York. In 1852 Charles H. Bassett, father of Freeman P. Bassett, settled in Utah. Mr. Bassett's mother was Mrs. Millie Phippen Bassett.

The Bassett family has been identified closely with the business growth and commercial development of Salt Lake City.

Freeman P. Bassett is a product of the University of Chicago, where he was a special student in 1902. He took up the calling of a salesman after leaving that institution and returned to Salt Lake.

He is today the manager of the Salt Lake City store of the A. G. Spalding & Bros. Athletic Goods Company.

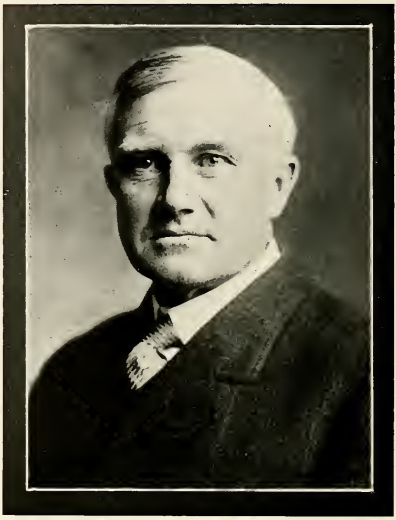
Formerly he was coach and military instructor at All Hallows College. He has been referee at many of the Rocky Mountain conference games.

He is a member of the Native Sons of Utah, and of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and is chairman of the membership committee of that organization. He is also vice-president of the Inter-Mountain Association Amateur Athletic Union of America, member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club local committee and vice-chairman of the field sports committee.

Politically Mr. Bassett is non-partisan.

He is married, Mrs. Bassett formerly being Miss Helen Santschi. They have one child, a daughter, Helen Gene, four years of age.

Mr. Bassett is a first lieutenant in the National Guard of Utah and is battalion adjutant.



LEWIS M. CANNON.

LEWIS M. CANNON has been a resident of Salt Lake City since he was six months of age. He is a son of Angus M. Cannon and Amanda Mousley Cannon, and was born at St. George, Washington county, Utah, April 1, 1866. During his early life he attended the public schools of Salt Lake City and after his graduation, attended the Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah. He also attended the University of Utah, after which he served as a missionary for the Mormon Church in England, and Germany, remaining abroad in this work for three years.

After completing his work in the mission field Mr. Cannon entered the banking business in Salt Lake City, with the Zion's Savings Bank & Trust Company, with which he remained in various capacities for twenty years.

When Uncle Jesse Knight opened his first coal mine at Storrs, Carbon county, Utah, Mr. Cannon was selected for the position of general sales agent for the products of the mine.

Mr. Cannon is bishop of the Cannon ecclesiastical ward of the Mormon Church, having been selected for this responsible position in 1896. He lives in Cannon ward with his family.

Mr. Cannon is an active and deeply interested worker for the interests of the Republican party. He has never sought political office. He is a most amiable and pleasant man, who has won hosts of warm friends. The earnestness of his convictions is fully recognized by his friends, and he is recognized also as a friend of the needy and the oppressed.

GEORGE T. HANSEN.

AMONG Salt Lake City's business men are many who are local representatives of big eastern concerns who sell their products through local agencies scattered throughout the West. One of these is George Troup Hansen. He is of Danish descent, and was born in Logan, Kansas, February 21, 1881, of parents who were natives of Denmark. His father was Peter Hansen and his mother, Mrs. Alpha A. Hansen. Both are living. His father is the younger son of a Danish landlord and came to America at the age of 16 years.

Mr. Hansen received the common schooling afforded by the grade schools in the vicinity of Logan, Kan., and from there went to the University of Kansas, at Lawrence. He was there from 1900 to 1905, being graduated after having done most creditable work.

He then took up the profession of mining engineer and came West. He settled in Salt Lake City in June 1, 1911.

Mr. Hansen, before locating in Salt Lake, was metallurgical engineer for the Allis-Chalmers Company with headquarters in Milwaukee. In 1905 and 1906 immediately following his college graduation, he was with the Cananea Construction Company of Cananea, Mex. In 1906 he started in the foundry of the Allis Chalmers Company, holding various positions. He was appointed metallurgical engineer in 1910.

He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., Royal Arch Masons, a member of the Commandery and of the Shrine and also belongs to the Greek letter fraternities of the Sigma Chi and the Theta Nu Epsilon. He is a member of the Alta Club, the University Club, both of Salt Lake City and of the Silver Boy Club of Butte, Mont. Mr. Hansen is unmarried. He is a Republican.

SAMUEL CULVER PARK.

AS the first mayor of Salt Lake under the commission form of government, Samuel C. Park has made so unusual a record that a sketch of his life is of interest. He was born in Cheyenne, Wyo., November 16, 1869. His parents were Boyd Park and Jane E. Culver-Park They came to Utah in 1871. Mayor Park was for many years engaged in the jewelry business with his father, Boyd Park now deceased, who established what was perhaps the first high class jewelry house in Salt Lake City. The mayor is president of the corporation, Boyd Park, Inc. Jewelers.

While he is a Republican in politics, Mayor Park was elected on a business men's ticket, which drew support from all parties. Under the commission form of government commissioners cannot be nominated or elected upon party platforms.

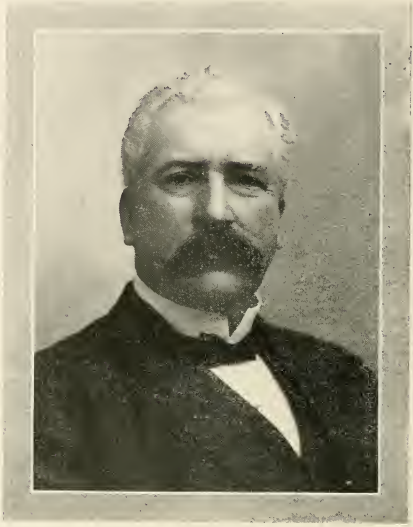
Mayor Park, as mayor, is commissioner of public safety and has jurisdiction over the police, fire and the health departments. Since taking office he has effected a complete reorganization of the police department upon metropolitan lines.

Mayor Park was a student at Phillips-Exeter academy, the University of Michigan, graduating from the last named institution in 1891. He is married, his wife having formerly been Miss Ella Thomas. There are two sons and a daughter; Boyd Thomas, Eleanor and Samuel Culver Park, Jr., Mayor Park is a Mason, a Shriner, an Elk and a Son of the American Revolution. He is a member of the Commercial Club and the University Club; he is a member of the National Guard of Utah, and retired brigadier general in the same organization. He was a member of the state senate, and of the board of education of Salt Lake City before becoming mayor. His home is at 405 Second Avenue.

JOHN DERN.

NO CITIZEN of Utah or Salt Lake City is better known in connection with mining, banking, merchandising and farming matters than is John Dern. He was born October 24, 1850, at Haussen by Giessen Oberhesses, Germany. His parents were Katherine Hoffman-Dern and John Dern. The Dern family was prominently known in the province of Oberhesses for two centuries. The grandfather was Mayor of Haussen for more than twenty-five years. His father, who died at the age of forty-six years, was a member of the town council for a period of ten years. Mr. Dern came to the United States when about fifteen years of age. His schooling was acquired at the academy at Giessen, Germany. This institution he attended during the year 1863 to 1865, inclusive. He came to this country in 1865. After passing a great many years in the eastern states, Mr. Dern came to Salt Lake in 1894. His political views have always been and are in favor of the Democratic principles, and he has been prominent in the party councils of Utah. He and his wife, Elizabeth, have reared a large family. The children of the family are: Mary E., George H., Fred C. and Elizabeth A.

Besides his interests in mining and other industries, Mr. Deern is a trustee of the Agricultural college of Utah and a member of the Utah State Capitol commission. As a club member Mr. Dern is known to be a man who can be depended upon to act as well as to propose. He is well known as one of the best "boosters" that the Salt Lake Commercial Club has. He is also a respected member of the Masonic fraternity and of the order of Elks. Mr. Dern's connection with local institutions include the vice-presidency of the National Copper Bank of Salt Lake, vice-president of the Bankers Trust Company, president of Calloway-Hoock & Francis Company, director of the Miners' Mercantile Company of Bingham, director of the Mason Mercantile Company, Mason, Nev., director of the Salt Lake Hardware Company and the president and a director of several mining companies.



DAVID KEITH.

FROM boss of a gang of laborers in the construction of the Southern Pacific railroad near Reno, Nev., in the late "sixties," to one of the most prominent mining men and capitalists in the West, is the broad jump made by David Keith since coming to the West as a young man. He was born in Mabou on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. His father was John Keith and his mother was Margaret Ness Keith. Leaving Novia Scotia, David Keith arrived in Salt Lake in the early sixties. He married Mary Ferguson of Salt Lake and moved to California in 1867.

Railroad construction work occupied his time until he entered the employ of the Comstock mines in Nevada and became superintendent. In 1883 he returned to Utah as foreman of the Ontario No. 3 group of mines at Park City. Later he formed a partnership for the leasing of mining claim.

His connection with the Silver King Coalition mining company began while at Park City and he has continued active in affairs of the big silver producer. He is president of the company, which was the foundation of his fortune.

Other concerns in which Mr. Keith is associated and the position which he holds are as follows:

President of the Salt Lake Tribune Publishing Company; president of the First National Bank of Park City; director of the National Copper Bank of Salt Lake; Director of the Las Vegas and Tonopah railroad; stockholder in the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad.

Mr. Keith served as a member of the Utah Constitutional Convention. He is a member of the following clubs. Alta, Commercial, Elks and Country Clubs of Salt Lake; the California Club of Los Angeles and the Press Club of San Francisco.

HARRY G. ELLIOTT.

BORN in England, and immigrating to the United States in the year 1870, Harry G. Elliott is one of the many adopted sons of the young republic. Mr. Elliott's native city is London, where he was born May 14, 1868. His parents were born in England and came to America in 1870. They were both most estimable people, his father being Henry Elliott and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Bishton Elliott. The elder Elliott was a contractor and builder at London, and when he came to the United States, he took up the same lines of work.

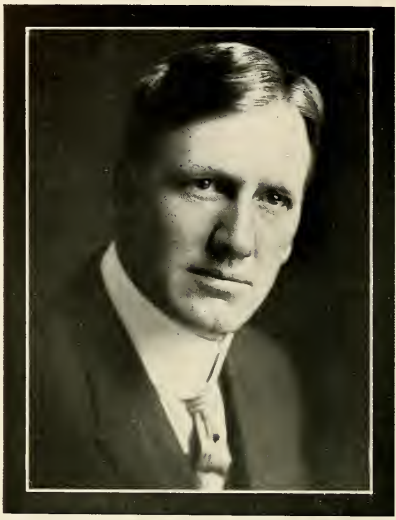
They located first in Boston and then in Ansonia, Conn., in the year 1895, where the elder Mr. Elliott remained until his death.

Harry G. Elliott was educated in the common schools and in the high schools of Boston, Mass., between the years 1872 and 1887. In July 1905 he came out West, locating in Utah.

He has entered into the business life of the community actively and is a salesman for the Buick Auto Company, being well known in automobile circles in the West.

He is a member of the B. P. O. Elks and is an ardent worker in connection with charity affairs. He is at present a member of the sick committee of the Elks. He is non-partisan in politics.

Mr. Elliott is an admirer of his adopted city and is an enthusiastic "booster" for Salt Lake City and Utah. He is always ready to participate in any function which is gotten up for the public good. Mr. Elliott has never married.



NEPHI LOWELL MORRIS.

ONE of the pioneers in the Progressive party of Utah, was Nephi L. Morris, a former Republican, who saw in the principles expounded by the new political faith, the beacon of liberty and justice. The spirit of fair play had always been a strong component part of his being and he saw in that party's principles, the essentials of fair play. He therefore cast his lot with that party.

Nephi L. Morris is a native born Utahn. His parents, Mary L. Walker-Morris and Elias Morris were pioneers of Utah. Mr. Morris was born at Salt Lake City, October 2, 1870.

Completing his early education in the then primitive public schools Mr. Morris attended the State University, and later the Brigham Young University between 1885 and 1891, after which he entered the business field in Salt Lake, with his father, a pioneer tile setter and mantle dealer. He is now president of the Elias Morris & Sons' Company, having for 15 years been manager of that business; president of the Deseret Building Society; president of the Utah Concrete Pipe Company; and president of the Atlas Concrete Pipe Machinery Company.

Mr. Morris married Miss Harriett Young, and they have three children, Lowell Y. Morris, Willard Y. Morris, and May Y. Morris. Mr. Morris is a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake.

Active during all the years of his life in the work of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, his church has honored him from time to time with positions of increased trust and responsibility. He now is president of the Salt Lake stake of the ecclesiastical organization of the church, a position which has its peculiar powers and responsibilities, covering a wide range of territory in the City of Salt Lake.

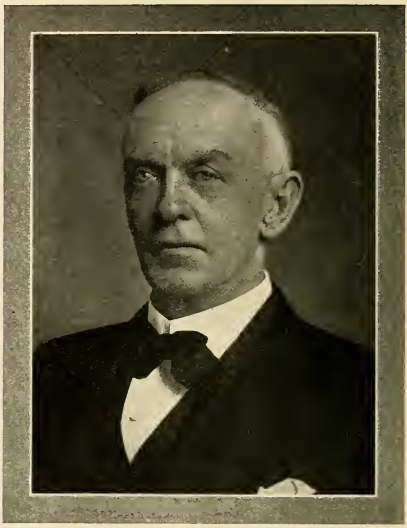
JOHN S. CORLESS.

JOHN S. CORLESS is one of the best known men in Salt Lake County, among the men who toil. He is a son of Thomas Corless and Anna Eliza Crowther Corless, and was born in Salt Lake in 1872. His parents were natives of England; his father having come to Utah in 1848, the year following the coming of the pioneers, and his mother in 1854. John S. Corless attended the public schools of Utah in his boyhood, but began to shift for himself at an early age. He teamed and freighted, and hauled rock and gravel. Then he branched out on an independent basis, working his own team. He began a small contracting business which grew steadily under his careful and painstaking management, until today he employs many men, and is a factor in the general contracting business.

Mr. Corless is married, his wife's family name being Greenhalgh. They have three children, Fern L., Evelyn and J. Kenneth Corless.

He is a Progressive in politics, and was elected by the Progressive-Democratic party in 1914, sheriff of Salt Lake County. Mr. Corless is one of the most popular men in the county, and has had a wide experience in police work, having been at one time a member of the police department of Salt Lake City, and later a deputy sheriff.

He is a member of the Salt Lake aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles; and of the Loyal Order of Moose. One of his strongest characteristics is his honesty of word and of purpose. His acquaintances and his friends know that when he passes his word, it will be kept.



CHARLES C. DEY.

AN ATTORNEY-AT-LAW and a representative of the Utah State legal profession who has gained hundreds of friends throughout the West as a hard and ardent worker and one who can be depended upon at any and all times in whatever capacity he may be placed, is Charles C. Dey. His clientele is second to none in the state. He is the senior member of the Salt Lake City law firm of Dey, Hoppaugh & Fabian, lawyers, with offices in the Kearns building. The firm is one that is well known to the law profession of Utah, and ranks with the best. Mr. Dey, whose parents originally came from Holland, is of Dutch stock and is descended from a family that is well known throughout Europe. He was born in the little town of Varick, Seneca county, New York. August 15, 1854. His education was received in the public schools of the town in which he was born.

Following his school days in Varick, Mr. Dey attended school at Geneva, New York, and at Carroll College, Wisconsin.

Shortly after finishing his course at Geneva, and early in the year 1877, Mr. Dey engaged in the study of law at the city of Milwaukee, Wis. In that city he was admitted to the bar in 1880. He then entered upon the active practice of his profession in Milwaukee, where he continued successfully until the spring of 1889. Early in 1889 Mr. Dey came to Utah, where he has since remained. After remaining for a little more than a year in Ogden, where he was engaged in special legal work, Mr. Dey moved to Salt Lake City, where he permanently established himself. He has since that time lived in Salt Lake City, where he has devoted himself exclusively to the practice of his chosen profession. He was formerly city attorney for Salt Lake.

DR. ROSS ANDERSON.

AMONG the Utah surgeons who hold prominent positions in the ranks of that profession, is Dr. Ross Anderson. Dr. Anderson is a native of Utah, born at Manti, Utah, April 23, 1879. His parents were Peter H. Anderson and Mrs. Esther Smith Anderson. He received his early medical training at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, Md. He attended there from 1901 to 1905. Upon being graduated from the Baltimore institution in 1905, Dr. Anderson came direct to Salt Lake City, where he took up his medical practice, and is now well-known throughout the state as a physician, surgeon and pathologist.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Euphemia Olson. They have three children: John Ross, 10 years of age; Elliott Vernon, seven years of age, and William Ray, five years of age.

Dr. Anderson is a member of the Woodmen of the World, and is an active member in the Salt Lake County Medical Society, the Utah State Medical Society and the American Medical Association. He belongs to two clubs: The Salt Lake Press Club and the Utah Club, and is an active worker in the welfare of these organizations.

He was senior surgeon of Judge Mercy Hospital in 1912, and was also surgeon at the Central Utah Hospital from 1910 to 1912. He is a member of twenty-three corporations.

Ever active in his profession, Dr. Anderson has studied and taught in various branches and lines of the medical calling. He was professor of comparative anatomy and embryology at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore from 1903 to 1905; was professor of pathology and bacteriology at the University of Utah from 1906 to 1909 inclusive, and was senior pathologist at the L. D. S. Hospital from 1905 to 1909, inclusive.

C. H. CARLQUIST.

BELIEVING that Utah's greatest future lies in the development of the dry farm, C. H. Carlquist, of the firm of Burt & Carlquist, devotes much of his great energy to dry farm exploitation and development. Mr. Carlquist has spent the greater part of his time in the last two years in the development of dry farm lands in Box Elder County. He is interested personally with his brothers in a large ranch in Box Elder County. Mr. Carlquist believes that since all irrigable lands in Utah are already under the plow, and since all other industries depend upon agriculture, the dry farm is the solution of Utah's problem of permanent prosperity.

Mr. Carlquist is a son of Carl A. Carlquist and Hulda Ostergreen Carlquist. He was born in Salt Lake City August 24, 1878. He attended the public schools but was unable to attend college, entering business at an early age. He married Miss Ethel Rich, and they have four children: Mary E., 7 years of age; Phillip, 4 years; and Richard and Natalie, twins, 2 years of age.

Mr. Carlquist is not a member of a club or fraternal organization. His entire time is taken up by his business and by his family. He is a Democrat but is not active in politics, save to keep a weather eye on the ticket, and to work for those men in whose principles he can find satisfaction.

Mr. Carlquist is interested largely in the Meadowview Land & Stock Company, in addition to his other holdings as a real estate dealer and broker. His headquarters are at 40 South Main Street, Salt Lake City.

WILLARD ANDELIN.

MONG those who help build up a state are its artists and musicians, as well as those who construct its buildings and develop its commercial activities. Willard Andelin is among the many Utah musicians who have helped develop the fine arts in this western country, and he is well known in the Inter-mountain region as one of the foremost western musicians. Mr. Andelin was born at Manti, Utah, August 15, 1883. He is of Swedish descent. His parents came to Salt Lake City about the year 1860, as converts of the Church of Jesus Christ of Later-day Saints.

Mr. Andelin attended the common schools of Manti, and then attended the Brigham Young university at Provo, from 1899 to 1904.

In October, 1904, he began special work in music at the Royal College of Music at London, where he remained one year, and then went to Berlin. There he studied for fifteen months with Alexander Heinemann. After visiting home for nine months Mr. Andelin returned to Germany. He remained four years, being leading basso for two years at the Royal Opera at Hanover. Then for a year he was in London, singing in concerts and oratorios. He sang with Mme. Tetrazzinio, the world-famous prima donna, in concert at Glasgow, Scotland.

Mr. Andelin now is teaching music in Salt Lake City.

He is married, his wife being formerly Miss Arvilla Clark, also a musician of great talent. They reside at apartment B-4 Midgley apartments, this city. They have three children: Willard Clark, 6 years of age; Berlin, 4 years of age; and John Philip, 16 months of age.

Mr. Andelin has a wonderful basso profundo voice. His friends declare his future in music to be brilliant with promise.

WALTER J. COOPER.

ONE of the best known architects of Salt Lake City is Walter J. Cooper. Mr. Cooper was born in 1879 at Auburn, New York. His parents were David B. and Mrs. Frances F. (Freeman) Cooper. He completed the graded school work and then entered college, attending Syracuse University at Syracuse, N. Y., from 1899 to 1902. He made a good record for himself at that institution and specialized along the lines of architectural work.

After leaving college he practiced architecture in the East, doing his first work at Syracuse. In January, 1904, he moved to New York City to study further the technical and the practical sides of the work. He was in the employ of various architects and was engaged in New York City and Boston until 1910.

He then started out for the west, coming to Salt Lake City in March, 1910. He came here in the interest of Henry Ives Cobb, the well-known architect of New York City.

Mr. Cooper was immediately associated with one of the largest structural undertakings in Utah, the Newhouse hotel. He was connected also with other enteprises under construction in Salt Lake City and in Denver. He then returned to New York City.

In January, 1911, he returned to Salt Lake, where he opened an office with C. S. McDonald, under the firm name of McDonald & Cooper. This concern is one of the leading architectural companies in this state; it is making a most creditable record and is well known throughout the intermountain region. Mr. Cooper is unmarried, and a Republican.

He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and also belongs to the Pan Hellenic Association of Utah and to the Onondega Society of New York.

GEORGE AMES.

GEORGE AMES is a member of the Utah mining men's colony which has done much to advertise the state to the world. Born in Texas, October 23, 1880, Mr. Ames later removed with his parents to New Jersey, where he received his early education. That his training was thorough is proven by the success made by Mr. Ames in late years. He came to Salt Lake City in 1898.

Mr. Ames is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Florence Dow. They have one child, Katherine Ames, who is now two years of age.

The subject of this sketch is well known in Utah's capital as a mining man and a dealer in mining supplies. He is well acquainted with the leading men in that profession, which has done so much to bring this commonwealth to the front.

The Ames agency, of which he is proprietor, has an enviable record in the mining world. The present successes achieved by Mr. Ames are the result of untiring effort and thorough-going preparation in the mining field. He began in the mining business in the iron mines of Minnesota, in 1897, and came to Utah in 1898. Practical training of real mining was one of the things which has given him a foundation in all the essentials of his profession. From 1898 to 1910 he mined in the Bingham and in the Park City fields, scoring a success in each place. He entered the mining supply business in 1910 and during the past three years and longer, has built up a large and still growing concern.

GEORGE JAY GIBSON.

BORN on the shore of the Great Lakes at Cleveland, Ohio, on St. Patrick's day, 1873, George Jay Gibson is now living by the Great Salt Lake at Salt Lake City, Utah. His father was George J. Gibson and his mother Caroline Scovill. After receiving the grade school education Mr. Gibson entered Yale University, and attended the law school of that institution after finishing the regular four years' collegiate course. He entered the institution in 1891 and was graduated from the collegiate department with the degree of B. A. in 1895, and then entered the law school, being graduated from there with the degree of L. L. B. in 1897.

Two years afterwards he came to Utah. He soon took a prominent part in the activities of the legal profession and today is a leading member of the Utah bar.

He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, being Past State Deputy of that organization. He also belongs to two Greek letter fraternities: Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Phi.

Mr. Gibson is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Eloise Sherman. They have one child, Eloise Sherman Gibson, seven years of age.

Mr. Gibson, in addition to his legal practice, is a member of several mining corporations. He also belongs to the University Club and to the Graduates Club of New Haven, Conn.

He is past president of the Utah State Society Sons of the American Revolution, and is a member of the American Bar Association and of the Utah Bar Association.

M. M. WARNER.

ONE of the most distinguished members of the bar in Utah is M. M. Warner of Salt Lake City. Mr. Warner lives at his family home, 1324 South West Temple street, and his offices are at 319, 320 and 321 Boston Building, Salt Lake City. Mr. Warner was born June 12, 1856, at Leon, Iowa, and is a son of John W. and Mary W. Warner. He was married November 8, 1892, to Miss Eleanor C. Nuttall at Provo, Utah.

In his boyhood Mr. Warner had the advantage of a high school education, and was graduated from the Leon, Iowa high school. He then attended the law school at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, during 1881, and the following year. Upon leaving the law school Mr. Warner was associated for the next three years, in the offices of M. J. Gordon, a prominent attorney of Aberdeen, Dakota. In 1885 he was admitted to practice before the South Dakota bar in 1885.

Mr. Warner's first official position was that of city attorney for Frederick, South Dakota, from 1885 to 1887. He then moved to Aspen, Colorado, when that great silver camp was in the height of its glory, and was assistant district attorney for the Ninth Colorado judicial district during 1889, 1890 and 1891.

In the latter year Mr. Warner moved to Provo, Utah, and engaged in the practice of law with the Hon. D. D. Houtz of Provo until 1904. He was a member of the first State Senate of Utah from that district in 1896 and 1897. In 1904 Mr. Warner moved to Salt Lake City, and has continued in the general practice of law in the State and Federal courts. He is now senior member of the law firm of Warner and Maginnis. He was exalted ruler of Salt Lake Lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order Order of Elks in 1911. He is also a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and of the Utah State Bar Association.

HENRY C. DENHALTER.

HENRY C. DENHALTER was one of the sturdy types of citizens whose energy and ambition could not find a proper outlet in the old world and who sought a larger field of success in the new, and there made their mark. He was born in Neuekirche, Holdedorf, Germany, June 6, 1832. He was a son of Herman Henry and Molina Denhalter. He emigrated to the United States in 1849, landing in San Francisco, and a short time later went to St. Louis, Mo. He was a steamboat captain and was associated with many of the famous captains and pilots in the days when the river traffic was at its height. He later engaged in business in St. Louis for two years, and was afterward in business in New York one year. He then returned to California, remaining there until 1868, when he came to Utah. He established the Denhalter Bottling Works in 1870, incorporating the business in 1907. Until his death he was president of that company, conceded to be one of the largest and most modern soda water manufacturing plants in the West. Mr. Denhalter earned the title of "Father of the Utah Militia," when in 1890, during the first Liberal party campaign he organized the Denhalter Rifles and Band, a campaign marching organization. This was the first step taken in the territory toward the organization of state troops.

During his many years' residence in Utah he was prominently identified with many manufacturing and commercial enterprises, and was considered an authority on the mining industry in Utah. There are two sons, Charles Henry, born in 1858, and John Henry, born in 1860. Charles Henry Denhalter has been actively associated with his father's interests since the establishment of the Denhalter Bottling Works in 1870. Mr. Denhalter married Katherine Lesher. He was a Republican in politics, a member of the Knights of Pythias, and president of the Denhalter Bottling Works Company, and the Deer Trail Gold & Silver Milling Company.

Mr. Denhalter died January 26, 1914.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON COWIE.

MANY advantages may be possessed by the State of Utah in mineral wealth, fertility of soil, and in fact, all the resources that go to make up a prosperous community, but so long as they remain unavailable through lack of development their value to the community is limited; to properly develop these advantages requires the mind of an expert who by his ability to make conditions prosperous makes it possible to change adverse conditions into prosperity.

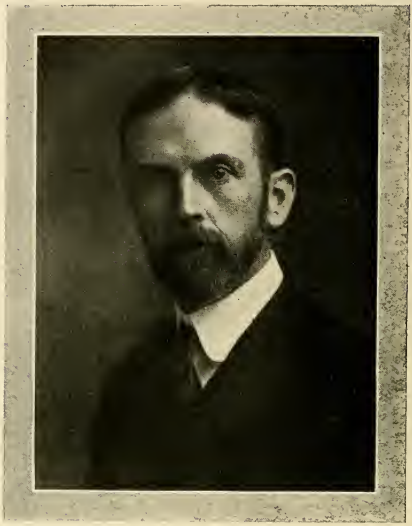
No man has participated more in providing necessary assistance in organizing and developing companies for the successful working of these resources than has Alexander Hamilton Cowie.

Mr. Cowie was born February 17, 1879, at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, where his education was gained from the public schools. His father was Thomas Cowie and his mother was Lucinda B. Cowie

The possibilities afforded by the West claimed Mr. Cowie's attention, and in 1890 he arrived in Salt Lake City. Eventually he married Miss Emma D. Kinsey. The children are Grace Lucile Cowie, Ruth Afton Cowie and Leland K. Cowie.

In politics Mr. Cowie favors the Democratic party. Since his arrival here he has identified himself with some of the greatest financial concerns in the West. He has followed the profession of coal and metalliferous mining. He is a members of the Masons and Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Cowie is vice-president of the Utah Fuel Company; president of the Pleasant Valley Coal Company; president of the Castle Gate Coal, Coke and Fuel Company; president of the Wasatch Store Company; president of the Wasatch Power Company, and president of the Beaver Gold Mining Company. He is also a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake City and of the Denver Athletic Club. He was the organizer of the Iron Blossom Consolidated Mining Company. He recently became actively interested in the Little Cottonwood Mining district, in the vicinity of Alta, Utah.



THOMAS DAVID LEWIS.

BORN in Salt Lake City September 15, 1865, Thomas David Lewis finds his native city the best place on earth to live. He is today one of the leading jurists of the Inter-mountain district, and his position in the legal world is one of honor. His father was James S. Lewis and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams Lewis, both natives of Wales. They came to Salt Lake City with the pioneers, reaching here the year 1854. Judge Lewis supplemented his grade school education with collegiate training at the University of Utah, being graduated from that institution in 1886 wth the degree of B. S. Then he went to the University of Michigan, entering the law school which conferred upon him the degree of L. L. B. in 1891.

He returned to his native city and took up the practice of law. He rose rapidly in the ranks and today is district judge of the Third judicial district, a position which he has held since April, 1903. His term will expire in January, 1917.

Judge Lewis is married, his wife's maiden name having been Miss Ettie Ellerbeck. They have four children: Ralph E., 17 years of age; Marjorie, 15 years of age; Rachel, 13 years of age; and Thomas David, two years of age.

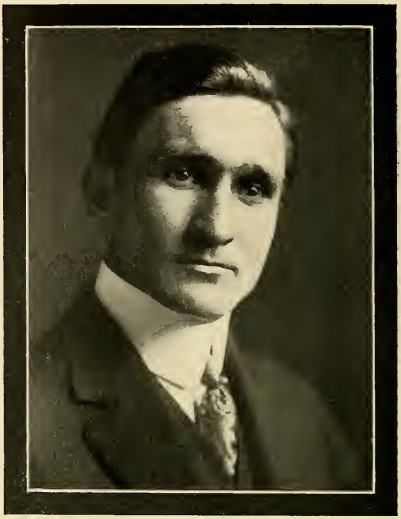
Judge Lewis is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. Politically he is a staunch Republican. An interesting fact regarding his career is that the year 1886, when he received his degree from the University of Utah, was the first year that degrees were conferred upon students by that institution. He is also the senior living graduate of the state university.

JOHN FRANKLIN EMMERT.

AS general sales agent and local manager of the Central Coal and Coke Company of Wyoming, one of the largest branch concerns of its kind in Utah, John Franklin Emmert has been unusually successful during his three years of residence in Salt Lake City. Mr. Emmert, son of Sarah Francenia Follett and George Stephen Emmert was born in Morristown, Henry County, Ill., November 12, 1874. Mr. Emmert, Sr., was born in Germany, coming to Pennsylvania at the age of ten years, after which he moved to Illinois and enlisted in the thirty-seventh Illinois volunteers to fight in the Union cause during the Civil war. Mrs. Emmet's ancestry dates to the revolution, and is traced to Captain William Meacham, who was killed in the siege of Boston, and whose name appears on the bronze tablets at the entrance to Winthrop square, Boston, close below the name of General Joseph Warren.

Mr. Emmert, Jr., received his high school education at Marysville, Kan., after which he attended Rohrbaugh Brothers' business college at Omaha, Neb. His introduction to Utah was in April, 1910. His wife's maiden name was Florence Elaine Parker.

Mr. Emmert is a member of the local B. P. O. E., and is prominent as a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club and the Press Club of Salt Lake. After graduating from the business college in Omaha in 1897, Mr. Emmert accepted a position with the western office of the New York Central lines, continuing in railroad work with the same people for seven and one half years. He then went with the Central Coal and Coke Company in Omaha as general office man, being promoted to a road position. After four years he accepted the presidency of the Omaha branch of the company, and was transferred in 1910, to Salt Lake City.



A. W. COWAN.

AMONG the native sons of Utah is Al W. Cowan. Mr. Cowan was born at Salt Lake, November 4, 1880, when the city was far from presenting the prosperous condition which marks it today. He entered the graded schools and then entered the Salt Lake high school, where he completed the course of studies offered by that institution.

He has succeeded in the business world, being today at the head of one of the prosperous commercial concerns of the intermountain metropolis. He is president of the Western Barber Supply Company. As manager of that concern, he handles a trade of peculiar needs and requirements, and one of vital importance in any large city. Guns and sporting goods are also some of the materials which Mr. Cowan is thoroughly familiar with in the trade sense.

His career has been of an interesting nature. He started at fifteen years of age as a messenger boy and gradually built up for himself a reputation with his various employers that aided his development and his advancement and he gained the confidence of his associates in the business world. Mr. Cowan entered the business field for himself at a comparatively early age.

He has an ideal home life, his companion in his successful career being Mrs. Jennie Lynn Cowan, who like her husband, is a native of Salt Lake City. His parents are William and June Stower Cowan.

HARRY P. CLARK.

TRACING his ancestry back to his great great grandfather, Captain James Clark of Braintree, Mass., a revolutionary hero, Harry Percy Clark, former president of the Merchants Bank of Salt Lake City, is eligible to membership in almost any of the exclusive historical societies of the country. Mr. Clark is a native of Ohio. He was born in Cincinnati, February 9, 1859, a son of Elizabeth Borton Clark and Asa Allen Clark. He had no opportunity to attend college in his youth, but regardless of that was enabled, because of his powers of keen observation to acquire a broad and liberal education.

Mr. Clark came to Salt Lake City in June, 1903, and engaged at once in the banking business, and has gained a prominent place in the front rank of that business. The rapid and steady growth of the Merchants Bank is due largely to his progressive but safe and sane banking methods and to his keen business ability.

Mr. Clark has an interesting family. His wife, before her marriage was Fannie Grace Hood. Their sons and daughters are: Asa Allen Clark, 28 years of age; and Florence Margaret Clark, 24 years of age.

Mr. Clark is a member of Wasatch Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Utah Commandery, Knights Templar; of El Kalah Temple, Ancient Accepted Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine; Scottish Rite. He is also a member of the Commercial Club of Salt Lake, the Weber Club of Ogden, and of the Press Club of Salt Lake City. He is a Republican in politics, and his home is in Salt Lake City.

RICHARD FRANKIN NESLEN.

FROM office boy to general agent is the record R. F. Neslin during the past twenty years. Mr. Neslin now holds the latter position in the Chicago Burlington and Quincy railroad. His territory covers, Montana south of Butte, Idaho and Nevada, as well as Utah. His continuous service with the road covers a period of a quarter of a century. Mr. Neslen was born, June 22, 1870, and educated in the Salt Lake public schools and at the Eastman Business College at Poughkeepsie, New York, entering the service of the Burlington the year of his graduation, 1887.

His parents, Robert Francis Neslen and Elinore Stevens Neslen, were born in England, but were among the pioneer settlers of Utah, arriving at Salt Lake in 1852. Mr. Neslen was married to Mary Alice Stone. They have no children.

Mr. Neslen, who lives at 372 First Avenue, has his offices at 307 Main Street, Salt Lake City. He is a member of the Commercial Club and of the Salt Lake Transportation Club.

Before his promotion to the general agency Mr. Neslen served as contracting agent and as traveling freight and passenger agent for the system which now regards him as a fixture and as elligible for higher honors.

HYRUM BERGSTROM.

BORN in Utah, educated in the middle West, and returning to Utah to follow his profession, Hyrum Bergstrom is today among the leading dentists of this state. He was born November 18, 1882, at Salt Lake City. His parents were C. M. Bergstrom and Mrs. Anna O. Bergstrom. His father is one of the oldest residents of the state, having lived here since 1862. He is 82 years of age. After receiving his early education Dr. Bergstrom went East and entered the Northwestern University dental school at Chicago, Ill., where he made a creditable record in scholarship, being graduated from that institution in 1910.

He returned to Salt Lake City where he has since followed his profession. He has made a most creditable reputation in his chosen calling. In addition to the work of his private practice as denist, he has been elected vice-president of the Salt Lake County Dental Society. Besides being a member of that organization, he also belongs to the Utah State Dental Society and to the Salt Lake City Dental Society.

He is married, his wife having formerly been Miss Claire Dougall. They have two children, Justin Dougall Bergstrom and B. Julian Bergstrom.

Dr. Bergstrom is a member of the Progressive party, and a great admirer of the famous leader, Theodore Roosevelt.

In a profession which is growing as rapidly as that of dentistry in the United States, to keep abreast of the work is no little task. The fact that Dr. Bergstrom's fellow practitioners have honored him with the duties of office in their organizations, is sufficient testimony to their regard for his skill and knowledge. Although still a young man, he holds an enviable position among the dentists of the West.

CHARLES MOUNT CHANDLER.

A PHYSICIAN and surgeon of unusual ability, Dr. Charles Mount Chandler has won a place among the medical and surgical profession of Utah that is second to none. Not only is he highly esteemed by other physicians and surgeons, but he has numberless friends among his patients. His practice in Salt Lake City has extended over a period of several years He is a deep student and is continually endeavoring to learn the best methods by which his patients may be benefited. His conscientiousness along these lines is never questioned.

Dr. Chandler, son of Rachel E. Mount and Dr. John Mood Chandler, was born November 6, 1857, in Mansfield, Ohio, coming to Salt Lake City after having practiced his profession in the East for several years. His younger school days were spent in Ohio. His father was a physician, and in the eighties he entered the Eclectic Medical College at Cincinnati, Ohio, graduating in 1893. He arrived in Salt Lake City in October, 1899, and since that time has made his home in Utah.

His wife, formerly Miss Estelle Bullock, died in March, 1909. Three children are living, namely: Ruth Chandler Holt, 24 years of age; Charles Myron Chandler, 21 years of age, and Harold Mount Chandler, 12 years of age. Dr. Chandler is well known in local fraternities, being a member of the A. O. U. W., the W. O. W. and the I. O. O. F. Besides his connections with the fraternal organizations Dr. Chandler has for several years been a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club. He has been always a strong adherent of the Republican party. He is also a member of the Orpheus Club, a singing society for men, which has earned a big place in Utah music circles by its finished and artistic performances.

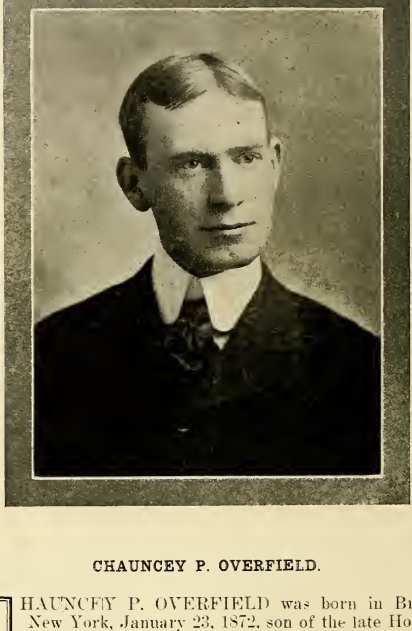
ERNEST BAMBERGER.

AN EXCELLENT representative of the engineering profession in Utah and the Western States, is found in Ernest Bamberger, who has for years followed that calling. His work in connection with various enterprises throughout Utah has been highly commended and has been a continual stepping stone to the positions of trust which he now holds. Mr. Bamberger's associates have the greatest respect for anything or any advice that may be tendered by him, and look upon him as one whose judgment may be depended upon at all times.

Ernest Bamberger, son of Bertha Greenewald Bamberger and Jacob E. Bamberger, was born August 11, 1877, in Salt Lake City, Utah. His early school days were passed in the city of his birth, and in 1898 he took a course at the Williams College. Upon the completion of this course, when he received the degree of A. B., Mr. Bamberger studied at Columbia University, leaving that institution in 1900, with the degree of E. M. His politics have always been Republican.

He was married to Miss Elena F. Dooley and now has two children: Ruth E. Bamberger, nine years if age. and John E. Bamberger, five years of age.

Mr. Bamberger is a member of the Alta Club, the University Club, the Salt Lake Tennis Club, the Country Club, the Salt Lake Commercial Club and the Salt Lake Press Club. In addition to being a member of these clubs, Mr. Bamberger is general manager of the Daly West Mining Company; he was president of the Park City Light & Power Company until its sale to the Utah Power & Light Company; he is president of the Park City Water Works Company, president of the Weber Coal Company; general manager of the Ontario Silver Mining Company; and a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Utah.



CHAUNCEY P. OVERFIELD.

CHAUNCEY P. OVERFIELD was born in Brooklyn, New York, January 23, 1872, son of the late Hon. John Lacey Overfield, and Oliva M. Overfield. Mr. Overfield's early training was for the law, and at the age of 21 years he was managing clerk in New York City in the office of Paul D. Cravath, one of America's greatest corporation lawyers. Failure of health made it necessary for Mr. Overfield to seek the salubrious mountain climate and he accordingly came to Salt Lake in 1896, after two years spent in Colorado recuperating his health.

Since locating in Salt Lake Mr. Overfield has been very successful in business and is now president of the Overfield Investment Company, vice president of the Combustion Engineering Corporation of New York, vice president of the American Stoker Company, of New York, and a director of the Merchants Bank of this city.

Although for business reasons not given to desiring public office Mr. Overfield has twice been the choice of his party for the Legislature, was commissioner from Utah for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, delegate-at-large to the Democratic National convention in 1912, and is at present treasurer of the Democratic state committee.

Mr. Overfield is a member of a number of clubs, including the Alta, Silver Bow, Butte, Mont., is a vestryman of St. Mark's Cathedral, and former president of the Utah Society sons of the American Revolution.

Mr. Overfield in 1909 married Miss Ione P. Morrison well and favorably known in the social circles of Salt Lake City.

SYLVESTER QUAYLE CANNON.

WITH a name notable in the annals of Utah several of the members of the Cannon family have made that name more notable because of their own distinguished careers in varied lines of industry. S. Q. Cannon, who as the president and director of the George Q. Cannon association is the head of the family, early in life chose engineering as his profession. He is today, although well under middle age—he was born in Salt Lake City, June 10, 1877—the president of the Utah society of engineers.

His career as a hydraulic and municipal engineer has been of exceptional value to the state ever since he entered the practice of his profession here shortly after being graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the class of 1899.

The esteem in which Mr. Cannon is held by his fellow citizens was shown by his appointment as an Independent to the position of city engineer of Salt Lake an office which he now holds.

A strong churchman—Mr. Cannon also has the honor of being the First Counselor in the stake presidency of Pioneer stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Mr. Cannonn is a son of George Q. Cannon and Margaret Hoagland Cannon. He was married to Winifred Saville. There are five children, Julian S., Elinor W., Sylvia, Winfield and Lawrence.

CLARENCE G. BAMBERGER.

AMONG Salt Lake City's citizens perhaps none is better known than Clarence G. Bamberger. Mr. Bamberger is a native son, having been born in Salt Lake July 16, 1886. He received his early training in Salt Lake, and after finishing the course in the graded schools, he went to Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., and also attended the School of Mines in Paris and in Berlin.

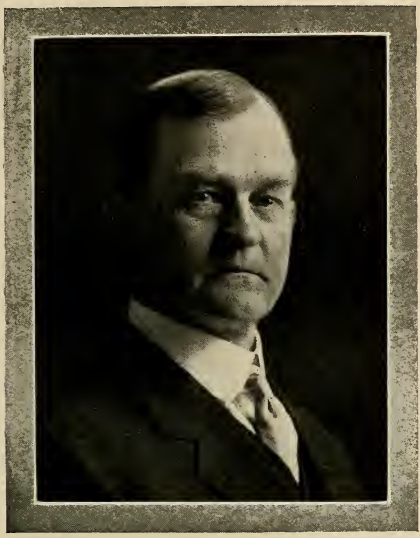
This special training was taken to fit him for duties in later life as mining engineer. He had the good fortune to decide early in life what pursuit he would follow in later years. Thoroughly equipped he returned to his "own United States" and took up the work of mining engineer in the heart of the mining country of Utah.

Mr. Bamberger has offices at 161 So. Main street, Salt Lake City, and conducts a large and ever growing business. He has been honored by his fellow citizens with public office, serving as member of the State Legislature of Utah from 1913 to 1915. He was nominated for the State Senate in 1914, but was defeated with the rest of his ticket.

He is a member of the Alta, the University, the Commercial, Country and Salt Lake Tenis Clubs. He is unmarried.

In politics he is a staunch Republican.

He belongs to a number of mining companies and similar large concerns and is a true Utahn, ever found willing to support any project furthering the interests of the State.



JAMES M. BEATIE.

LOYALTY to one's native city is a feature general in the western country, where the most enthusiastic loyalty is shown by the sons of the growing cities which are centers of thriving and prosperous communities. In the intermountain country along the Rockies, Salt Lake City is pre-eminently beloved by its sons and daughters. James Monroe Beatie is second to none in his enthusiastic "boosting" for the city of his birth. Mr. Beatie was born in Utah's capital December 24, 1860. His father was Hampden Sydney Beatie and his mother Helen Clawson Beatie.

At an early age Mr. Beatie took up the mercantile line for his life work, and has slowly but steadily climbed upward in the business world of the western country. He is today general superintendent of the Carbon Emery Stores Company, one of the best known firms of the capital city. In this firm he is associated with such well-known business men as E. L. Carpenter, F. N. Cameron, George E. Forrester and E. R. Gibson—all of whom belong to the ranks of the solid, conservative commercial element of the intermountain metropolis.

Mr. Beatie is married, his wife being formerly Miss Elizabeth Potter. Seven children are the result of this union: Helen, 22 years of age; Geneve, 20 years of age; Monroe, 18 years of age; Jessie 15 years of age; Beth, 10 years of age; Virginia, three years of age, and Lloyd, one year of age.

Mr. Beatie is a member of the Knights of Pythias. Politically he is a staunch Republican.

MacLanny. They have one child, Malcolm Byron Cummings, 16 years of age.

JOSEPH HOWELL.

NOMINATED for his seventh term in the United States House of Representatives, the dean of the congressional delegation of Utah is the Hon. Joseph Howell of Box Elder County. Mr. Howell began his congressional series of terms on March 5, 1903, entering the national legislature at the same time as the Hon. Reed Smoot. He was re-elected in the fall of 1904, and again successively in 1906-8-10-12. His career in congress has been eminent. He is now, aside from being the dean of Utah's delegation, the senior Republican member of the committee on Mines and Mining and a member of the committee on agriculture. In both capacities he has won national recognition.

Mr. Howell was born in Cachie County February 17, 1857, where he has resided ever since, except while attending the national legislature. He attended the common schools and was graduated from the University of Utah, of which he later served as a regent.

Entering politics at an early age he has been uniformly successful in receiving the confidence and ballots of his felow citizens, being in succession, Mayor of Wellsville, a territorial representative for three terms and a member of the Utah State senate before going to Congress.

Mr. Howell was married October 24, 1878, to Miss Mary Maughan.

CLARENCE J. HAWKINS

CLARENCE J. HAWKINS is a native of Utah. He was born October 13, 1885, at Nephi, Utah. His parents are Margaret Skillicorn Hawkins and James E. Hawkins. Hawkins attended the public schools at Nephi, and was later graduated from the Nephi High school with honors. Pursuing his education further, he attended Brigham Young university, Provo, Utah, from 1902 to 1905, and then attended the New England Conservatory of Music from 1905 to 1910. During the last year of his training at the New England conservatory, Mr. Hawkins took post-graduate work, and completed the pianoforte normal course, teaching two years in the normal department.

He was graduated also as a clarinet soloist, and taught harmony and theory in the Brigham Young university, Provo, for two years.

Seeking a larger field Mr. Hawkins came to Salt Lake, and found immediate recognition, his former training in conducting, public school supervision and other advanced music work assisting him at once to a prominent and fixed place in the Salt Lake music colony.

Mr. Hawkins took a leading part in the organization of the Salt Lake Philharmonic orchestra and is a member of the board of trustees of that organization. He also is manager of the Utah Music bureau, and has a large clientele as private teacher of music. He also is secretary of the Salt Lake Philharmonic orchestra, and is a member of the Sinfonia fraternity. He is not married. His studio is at 48 East South Temple street, Salt Lake City.

ALBERT N. HANSON

PRIOR to beginning the active practice of the medical profession, Dr. Albert N. Hanson was a school teacher. In the classroom while associating with his charges, Dr. Hanson gained a wide knowledge of the peculiarities of individuals, which has been of unusual benefit to him in his medical and surgical practice. Albert N. Hanson was born January 14, 1871, at Fillmore, Millard county, Utah. His parents were Hannah Hanson and Hans Hanson, who came to Utah in 1863, and who have since made their home in this state.

His father was a building contractor, and during the many years of his active labors, constructed many of the most prominent and substantial structures in Millard and Beaver counties.

After his experience as a school teacher Dr. Hanson attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, Md., and during the four years of his college life, lost no opportunity to add to his store of useful knowledge. His period in college extended from 1904 to 1908, and he was graduated from that institution in June of the latter year.

Dr. Hanson, who specialized in both medical and surgical work, entered upon the practice of his profession in Salt Lake City immediately after his degree was granted him.

Dr. Hanson is married. His wife's maiden name was D. Virginia Holbrook, and their children are Rae, 21 years of age; Leland, 18 years of age; Eugenia, 13 years of age; George M. Hanson, 3½ years of age, and Theodore, 2 years of age.

Dr. Hanson is a Republican in political faith, and was county physician for Salt Lake county in 1911 and 1912. He is a member of the American Medical association; the Salt Lake County Medical society; and the Utah State Medical society. He has written many scientific articles for the journals of these various societies, and his opinions on medical and surgical subjects are quoted widely. Dr. Hanson's home in Salt Lake City is at 970 First avenue.

PAUL HEIN

AS PROPRIETOR of the Lincoln House on East First South street, Salt Lake City, Paul Hein has made signal success. Conducting the hotel exclusively for, and catering only to the working man, Mr. Hein has built the Lincoln from a twenty-room house to a hotel including more than 250 rooms, within a period of less than ten years.

The growth of the business under the capable management of Mr. Hein has been gradual. He did not receive during any particular year an influx of guests which permitted him to enlarge his hostelry over night, but rather from time to time he added wings and other additions to the building until now it embraces what was before three buildings.

The largest and most important addition to the house was made during the fall of 1910, at which time 100 rooms were added. To accomplish this, it was necessary to remodel the entire structure, which was formerly occupied by the original hotel. Besides spending a vast amount of money enlarging the place, Mr. Hein has installed all of the modern conveniences in his hotel.

ANDREW L. HOPPAUGH

AMONG the members of the state bar of Utah perhaps none is better known than Andrew L. Hoppaugh. Mr. Hoppaugh is one of the many eastern men who have observed the old time injunction, "Young man, go west." He was born in Sparta, Sussex county, New Jersey, July 26, 1865, just at the close of the civil war. His parents were Morris and Mrs. Madeline Hoppaugh.

He received a common school education and then entered the law school of the Columbia university in New York City. That was in the year 1885. Ten years later he was attracted west by the stories of opportunities awaiting young men in this part of the country, and settled in Utah. He has made a success in the intermountain country and is a prominent figure in the state bar association of Utah. He is one of Salt Lake City's leading attorneys and is popular as a public speaker.

Politically, Mr. Hoppaugh is an adherent of the Republican party and is an admirer of former President William Howard Taft, belonging to what is termed "the Old Guard" of the Republican party, and an ardent supporter of "standpat" policies.

He is married, his wife's maiden name having been Grace Wells. Their home is blessed with two children: Katherine, 10 years of age, and Madeline, 7 years of age.

Mr. Hoppaugh finds time for social life, being a member of the Alta, University, Commercial and Country clubs.

DR. GEORGE W. MIDDLETON.

DR. GEORGE W. MIDDLETON is a product of Utah and has demonstrated in a notable manner that western determination and pluck will win. He was born at Hamilton's Fort, Iron county, Utah, and attended the village school. He learned to read when still a little fellow and developed a consuming appetite for reading when still too small to hold the heavy books whose learning he sought to absorb.

His father was a farmer and cattleman and was in a position to aid his son in his quest for knowledge. During the day the boy worked on the farm and the cattle range and studied at night. His outdoor life developed a splendidly rugged constitution which has withstood the years of indoor life that followed.

He attended the Brigham Young Academy at Provo three years and taught school at Coalville, Summit county, two years. He was graduated from the Brigham Young Academy's medical department in 1894 and in the same year married Miss Lillie Palmer of Cedar City, Iron county, and began the life of the country practitioner with his headquarters at Cedar City. In 1897 and 1898 he served as a missionary student to England for the Mormon church and attended the London Hospital for one year, falling under the wonderful spell of Sir Frederic Treves and other great surgeons. He resumed his practice at Cedar City for two years and then attended John Hopkins University for one year, during 1901 and 1902.

Returning to Utah he built up a large practice in the southern part of the state and in Nevada. He spent a year in Europe in 1906 and 1907, visiting hospitals and clinics. He then returned to Utah and located in Salt Lake City where he formed a partnership with Dr. S. H. Allen. He and Dr. Allen have continued this association of interests until this time.

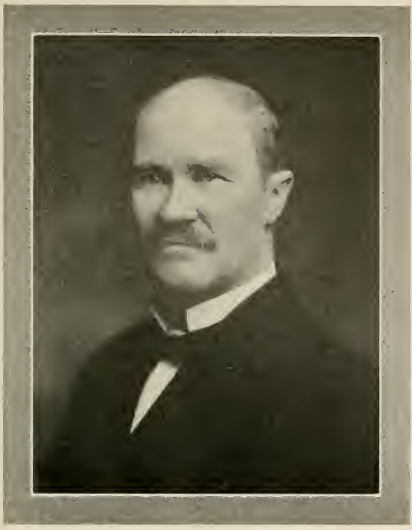
CLAUDE TEANCUM BARNES.

A MEMBER of the law firm of Hancock and Barnes of Salt Lake City; few members of the Utah bar are more widely known throughout Utah than Claude Teancum Barnes. Endowed with a keen mentality and with broad and liberal views, Mr. Barnes presses his advantages to successful issues.

Mr. Barnes was born February 15, 1884, at Kaysville, Utah. He is the son of Emily Stewart-Barnes and John R. Barnes, and is of English-Scotch-French descent. Mr. Barnes received his early education in the public schools of Utah, and later entered the Latter-day Saints' University at Salt Lake City. After a period of study at that institution he attended the University of Utah.

From that college Mr. Barnes went to Illinois where he entered the University of Chicago, later attending the law department of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. His college education was acquired during the years 1899 to 1908, inclusive. When through college, Mr. Barnes came to Salt Lake City, where he has since resided, and where he has continued the practice of law. He has become interested in other business enterprises, included among which are the Barnes Banking Company and the John R. Barnes Company.

In political life Mr. Barnes is a Republican and since his arrival in Salt Lake City has taken an active interest in the work of that party. He is married to Annie Knowlton-Barnes, and has two children, namely: Stuart K., six years of age, and Kathleen, nearly four years of age. Mr. Barnes is a member of the Masonic Fraternity, Golden Rule, 159, of Ann Arbor. He is a member of the Biological Society of Washington; the Society for Psychical Research; the American Ornithological Union; Utah Academy of Science. He is the first president of the Utah Audubon Society, and was a member of the Utah State Legislature in 1913 and 1914. Is also the author of "Farm Friends and Spring Flowers," "Forest Groves and Canyon Streams" and three other school text books.



GEORGE OLSON.

BORN in Denmark, George Olson is one of those adopted sons of America who have done so much for their step-country.

His native city is Tolstroup, Denmark, and he was born March 7, 1854. His father was Chris Olson and his mother Kirsten Nielson Olson. His forbears were farmers, and were a widely known family.

Mr. Olson, when a boy, received his education in Denmark, attending the public grade and high schools at Tolstroup. He was graduated from high school in April, 1870, with an excellent record. In February, 1889, he arrived in Salt Lake City, having emigrated when he was thirty-five years of age.

Mr. Olson is married, his wife having been Miss Jennie Israelson. They have one son, J. C. Olson, 34 years of age.

Mr. Olson is local representative at Salt Lake City of the Anheuser-Busch company. He is a Republican, and belongs to the following fraternal organizations: Rocky Mountain Lodge No. 3, Knights of Pythias; Enterprise Lodge No. 15, I. O. O. F.; Veteran Odd Fellows, No. 1; and Aerie No. 67, Fraternal Order of Eagles. In addition to these he is a member of the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

Mr. Olson has held several responsible positions under different city administrations, including those of superintendent of construction of the City and County building of Salt Lake; deputy city treasurer of Salt Lake City; and chief inspector of the gravity outlet sewer for the city of Salt Lake.

WILLIAM JAMES BROWNING.

WILLIAM JAMES BROWNING was born at Ogden, Utah, June 5, 1861. His father was James Allen Browning and his mother Sarah McGary Browning of that city. Mr. Browning comes of sturdy stock. On his father's side his ancestors included the original settlers of Maryland and Virginia, many of them serving in the early wars on the American continent. His mother's ancestors were of Irish-Canadian descent.

Mr. Browning attended the Salt Lake academy when a young man, that institution being conducted by Prof. Benner, and was graduated in 1880. He took up the profession of an accountant and is now a broker, being one of this city's best known business men.

He is also connected with the L. & A. Cohn company, incorporated, being the secretary and a director of the firm. His wife was formerly Miss Virginia Conrad. They have one son, William Conrad Browning, now 27 years of age.

Mr. Browning has a large circle of interests, social as well as professional. He is a member of the Salt Lake Press club, and is an amateur artist of ability, at one time being prominent in local art, being one of the city's chief portrait artists. He has won several medals for his work in that field of endeavor.

He was vice-president of the Salt Lake Stock and Mining exchange from 1908 to 1911, inclusive, and president of that organization during the years 1911 and 1912, being ever prominent in its proceedings and undertakings.

Among the well-known business men of this city, and born in Utah, Mr. Browning is enthusiastic over the city and State and is ever to be depended upon in "boosting" Utah and its interests.

DR. CHARLES NEWLAND RAY

THE ability of Dr. Charles Newland Ray as a physician and surgeon was recognized in January, 1916, when he was appointed by the board of county commissioners of Salt Lake county as county physician, succeeding Dr. C. C. Snyder. He is a progressive citizen and takes a keen interest in any movement having for its object the betterment of civic conditions. He is a son of Susan E. Kern-Ray and Thomas T. Ray, and was born in Bedford, Indiana, September 10, 1874.

Dr. Ray's early education was obtained in the common and high schools of his home city. Then he attended the state normal school at Terre Haute, and the Louisville Medical college at Louisville, Kentucky, from which he was graduated as physician and surgeon in 1898.

MOYLAN C. FOX

AMONG the most prominent bankers and mining men of the state is Moylan C. Fox of Salt Lake City. He has diversified interests throughout the west and is one of Utah's big men of affairs. He was born in Columbia, South Carolina, and is the son of Louisa Fox and Stephen Moylan Fox. His early youth was passed in his home city, where he was given the advantage of a good rudimentary education.

In 1875 mining received an impetus in the territory of Utah and reports of activities were scattered over the country. Mr. Fox was attracted westward with hundreds of other young men and arrived in Utah in March of that year. From the start, he made a success at his mining operations and today has big holdings in a number of properties.

Mr. Fox is a member of the board of directors of the Continental National bank and his opinion on financial matters is given much weight. He is president of the Eureka Hill Mining company and of the Improved Brick company.

Mr. Fox is a member of the Alta and the Commercial clubs. His address is Alta club, Salt Lake City. In politics he is independent. He believes Utah has a still greater destiny as a mining center and has done much to interest eastern capital in properties in this state.

The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Fox: Lawrence and Moylan C. Fox, Jr., and Mrs. Edson Adams, Piedmont, California.

DR. JOHN T. KEITH

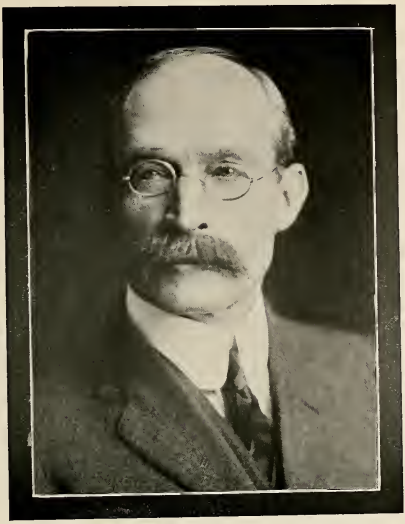
THAT Dr. John T. Keith has unbounded faith in a Greater Utah and Greater Salt Lake City is shown by his heavy investments in improved and unimproved realty in the state's capital. He is known as one of the most progressive citizens of Utah and he never overlooks an opportunity to boost for his adopted state. Dr. Keith is the son of Mary E. Flack-Keith and T. E. Keith, and was born in Vienna, Illinois.

Dr. Keith received a good common school education and then became a student at the normal school and later at the Wesleyan university at Salina, Kansas. Following his graduation from the Wesleyan university, he studied dentistry at the Kansas City Dental college at Kansas City, Missouri, and secured his sheepskin.

Dr. Keith practiced his profession in Wyoming and other western states before coming to Salt Lake City to take up his residence. Soon after his arrival here he began making investments in real estate. He put Haxton Place, running south from East South Temple street, on the market. It is one of the beauty spots of the city.

Dr. Keith retired from active practice a number of years ago and now devotes himself to his varied interests. He is manager of the Hotel Investment company and is connected with many other companies. He is a Mason and a member of the University club.

Dr. Keith is married, his wife's maiden name having been Katherine Blythe. One daughter, Katherine, aged 12, is issue of that union. The family home is No. 1 Haxton Place, Salt Lake City.



GEORGE WELLINGTON SNOW.

NO man has done more for Salt Lake City in an engineering way than G. W. Snow, former city engineer who recently again has been called from a lucrative position of his profession to the service of Salt Lake City.

Mr. Snow was born in Salt Lake August 30, 1856. With the exception of a course at Lafayette College at Easton, Pa., and journeys required by his profession he has been resident here ever since. His parents, Zerubbabel and Mary Augustus Hawkins Snow, were pioneers. His father being the first U. S. Territorial Judge of Utah.

Prior to going east to school Mr. Snow was an undergraduate of the University of Utah and on his entering his profession came at once to Salt Lake City. His first reputation as a locating engineer was gained with the Rio Grande Western. Later he was surveyor general of Utah and city engineer of Salt Lake City and chief engineer of the Utah Fuel Company.

Mr. Snow was married to EmilyE. Randall of Nephi, Utah, March 12, 1882. There are five children: Mrs. Cora Snow Morrison, of San Diego, California, Miss Eva Snow, G. Lyle Snow of the city engineer's office, Salt Lake City, Mrs. Winifred Snow Pinney of Salt Lake City and Cedric R. Snow.

Mr. Snow is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Native Sons of Utah.

As the head of the bureau of mechanical inspection Mr. Snow's office is in the City and County building.

The family residence is at 1900 South Ninth East Street.

ABRAHAM MEEKING, JR.

AMONG the numerous occupations which are particularly identified with the twentieth century and the rapid developments of modern invention, none perhaps is more strictly up-to-date than is that of the automobile livery.

The ancient methods of city transportation are now meeting new rivals in transportation. The automobile liveries which have sprung up of recent years in most of the larger cities of the United States, are of even greater convenience than are the trolleys.

And it is a mark of the thoroughly "down-to-date" characteristic of Salt Lake City, that this intermountain metropolis has such an automobile livery for the benefit of the public. Identified with this latest of enterprises is Abraham Meeking, Jr.

Mr. Meeking is not only a native son of Utah, but a native son of the capital of this state, where he is now carrying on an extensive and well-paying business. He was born in this city August 8, 1874. His father was Abraham Meeking, Sr., and his mother, Mrs. Caroline Lambourne Meeking.

Mr. Meeking is married, his wife having been Miss Mamie O. Owens. Their home is blessed by a charming little daughter, Caroline, twelve years of age.

Mr. Meeking is president and manager of the Utah Automobile Livery & Taxicab Company of Salt Lake City. But he finds time from his pressing business duties to enjoy fraternal and club life. He is a member of the Masonic order, the local Elks' lodge and the Woodmen of the World, besides belonging to the Rotary club and to the Salt Lake Commercial Club.

JOSEPH NELSON.

MORE than anything else which is needed by a growing western state, is the means of transportation; not only of passengers but of merchandise. The growth of cities depends on the lines of communication which extend out from them in all directions, covering the local field and like great fingers, draw the suburban and closely adjacent country into nearer communication with the rapidly developing metropolis.

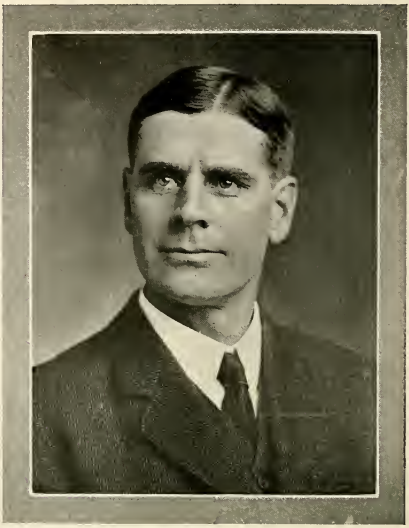
Salt Lake City has a line which is doing much to develop the nearby country, and of recent date, the land through which this road passes is being given more and more attention with regard to cultivation.

This road is the Salt Lake & Los Angeles Railway. The subject of this sketch, Joseph Nelson, is closely identified with the growth and steady development of that great undertaking.

Born in Moroni, Utah, December 30, 1861, Mr. Nelson was instilled with the native pride of his state, and has ever shown the most unbounded faith in her greatness. He came of Scandinavian stock which has given to America so many of its great and most intelligent citizens—Scandinavia his parents being natives of that peninsula. His father was Jens C. Nelson and his mother Mrs. Annie Anderson Nelson.

Joseph Nelson received his education at the Brigham Young University at Provo, attending that institution from 1881 to 1887. He taught school for fifteen years in Salt Lake City. He was engaged for years in the sheep and wool business, and for seven years beginning in 1891, was cashier of the Utah National Bank of Salt Lake, and had much to do with its growth and development.

Mr. Nelson was married to Miss Leonora Smith, but she has since died, leaving five children. They are Joseph, 17 years of age; George S., 15; Alvin S., 13; Alice, 12; and Franklin S., 7 years of age.



GEORGE HENRY DERN.

THE general manager of the Consolidated Mercur Gold Mines Company, George Henry Dern has been identified with many of the extensive mining operations in the western states and is well known as an authority on all matters pertaining to the mining business. Mr. Dern is not only well known in mining circles, but is highly esteemed socially and a man whose integrity is beyond question. His occupation since his arrival in Utah has always been in some capacity in connection with mines or mining interests.

George Henry Dern, son of John and Elizabeth Dern, was born September 8, 1872, near Scribner, Dodge county, Neb.

His parents were both born in Germany, the name of Dern being very familiar in that part of the old world.

His early education was acquired in Dodge county.

His collegiate course was taken at Lincoln, Neb., at the University of Nebraska. Mr. Dern attended that college during the years 1893 and 1894. He came to Utah December 14, 1894, and immediately engaged in business. From 1904 to 1909 he lived at Mercur, as he was then connected with the Consolidated Mercur Gold Mines Company, which is one of the greatest of its kind in the world, having already produced to exceed $15,000,000 in gold and paid more than $3,000,000 dividends.

His wife was formerly Miss Lottie Brown, of Fremont, Neb. they have three children: Mary, John and William. In club and fraternal circles Mr. Dern has become identified extensively in Salt Lake City and the West. In 1913 he was accorded the honor of having been chosen as the grand master of the Masonic Order for Utah. Mr. Dern is also a popular member of the Salt Lake Commercial club and University club. He is also a director of the American Mining Congress and a member of the American Political Association, and of the American Economic Association.

DR. ROBERT WILLARD HALL

AFTER practicing his profession in Colorado from 1905 to 1911, Dr. Robert Willard Hall obeyed the injunction given many years ago, by a noted man, to "Go west," and he came to Salt Lake City. This choice was prompted by the brilliant future promised to Salt Lake City by all the signs that go to determine the destinies of cities. He has not regretted his choice. of cities. He has not regretted his choice.

Dr. Hall is a native of Cherokee, Iowa, and he was born July 18, 1875. His parents were James C. Hall and Lucy A. Hall. He attended the district and high schools of Iowa, rounding out his classical and professional education at the Iowa State university, which granted him his degrees March 25, 1898.

Dr. Hall then began his practice in Colorado, where he earned success and a large practice. Dr. Hall's work is exclusively limited to the treatment of pyorrhea, and in this he had built up a large clientele.

Dr. Hall is married, and has two children, James Clifton Hall, 11 years of age, and Lucile Mileen Hall, 8 years of age. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity and has attained the thirty-second degree. He also is a member of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He was secretary of the oral hygiene section of the Panama-Pacific Dental congress held at San Francisco, and has written many technical articles dealing with his specialty, in the dental magazines of the country. His offices are in the Kearns building.

ROBERT W. NICOL

AS THE HEAD of a great electrical corporation with branches in thirteen cities in three intermountain states, Robert W. Nicol of Salt Lake City has proven himself a genius for organization, and a success as a business man. Robert W. Nicol, president of the Capital Electric company, is a native of Quincy, Illinois. He was born November 20, 1861, and his parents were William and Elizabeth White Nicol, who came to the United States from Glasgow, Scotland, in 1856.

Mr. Nicol began the study of the application of electricity to daily needs, in his boyhood, having been fascinated by the wonderful power. He followed this line until he engaged in the electrical supply business, which was followed, upon his arrival in Salt Lake City in 1889, by the organization of the Capital Electric company.

This is one of the greatest electrical supply houses in the western half of the United States, and besides the parent in Salt Lake City there are branch houses in Butte, Helena, Great Falls, Missoula and Billings, Montana; Boise, Idaho Falls, Twin Falls and Pocatello, Idaho; and Provo and Price, Utah. The houses in Salt Lake are the Capital Electric company and the Salt Lake Electric Supply company. These various concerns, over all of which Mr. Nicol exercises personal supervision, cover the three states in which they are situated, thoroughly for both the wholesale and the retail trade.

Mr. Nicol is married, and has a son and a daughter. The son bears his father's name, Robert W. Nicol, and the daughter is named Nellie June. The son is 9 years of age and the daughter two years younger.

Mr. Nicol is a member of Salt Lake lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and of the Salt Lake Commercial club.

RICHARD J. EVANS

RICHARD J. EVANS, one of Utah's most successful and wide-awake mining operators, was born at Rockland, Ontonagan county, Michigan, January 27, 1865. He came naturally by his interest in mining, as his father, James Evans, was a prosperous mining man, who, with his wife, Eliza Gundry Evans, settled in Michigan at an early age.

Following his graduation from the common schools of Calumet, the subject of this sketch took up mining work, but in 1888 he gave up, for a time, these operations and entered the International Business College at Saginaw, Michigan. He was graduated from this institution and in 1891 took charge of the college as manager. After severing his connection with the college, he took charge of the Saginaw "Courier-Herald," a Republican newspaper, which he managed for five years. He is credited with running the first exclusive newspaper train across the state of Michigan.

After leaving the "Courier-Herald" Mr. Evans decided to follow the mining business, and came to Salt Lake City as the most likely base of operations. The success attending his efforts from the start is attributed in great measure to the experience gained while working as a youth in the Calumet and Hecla mines.

Mr. Evans promoted the American Falls Canal and Power company at Snake River, Idaho, from 1902 to 1904. He is now identified prominently with a number of the large mining companies of Utah and Nevada and has varied interests, including real estate holdings.

Mr. Evans is a member of the American Mining Congress, the Commercial club and of El Kalah Temple, Mystic Shrine, A. F. and A. M. Mr. Evans is always striving to interest capital, not only in intermountain mines, but in all classes of sound investments in the West.

Q. B. KELLY

WHENEVER you mention Utah to a member of the American Institute of Banking, the banker immediately thinks of Q. B. Kelly, the popular cashier of the Citizens State bank of Bingham. Mr. Kelly is a native son of Utah. He was born in Fillmore, February 28, 1869. He is of Scotch-Irish descent. His mother was Margaret Mellville-Kelly and his father John Kelly. Mr. Kelly was educated in the public schools of Utah, and in 1882 entered the Salt Lake Collegiate institute. He was graduated in June, 1886, and has since been engaged in accounting and banking.

In 1888 Mr. Kelly began his active banking career as messenger for the old T. R. Jones bank. He resigned this position because of "pen paralysis," and moved to Colorado, where for a few years he became a rancher. His health improving, Mr. Kelly then became a school teacher in Colorado and later followed salesmanship in Colorado and Idaho.

He returned to Salt Lake City in 1905 and worked in some of the banks of the capital city, afterward going to Bingham. He was president of the Salt Lake chapter A. I. B. in 1910, delegate to the 1910 convention of the association and endorsed by the Salt Lake chapter of bankers for the executive council of the A. I. B. in 1912.

On April 30, 1902, Mr. Kelly married Miss Laura Dalrymple. They have three children: Maxine, 11 years of age; Dunton, 8 years of age, and Rowine, 4 years of age.

Mr. Kelly is president of the Bingham Canyon Commercial club. He is also a member of the Bingham Canyon lodge I. O. O. F.

In addition to his connection with the bank, Mr. Kelly is active in the affairs of Utah. He is a Republican and is at all times willing to assist all movements inaugurated for the good of the state. He is an enthusiastic advocate of the good roads campaign.

ALFRED F. HUST

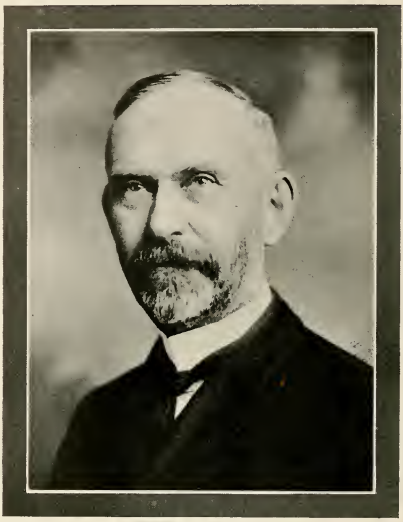
ALFRED F. HUST, president of the Monroe Studio company, is recognized as one of the leading photo-artists of Utah and the intermountain country. He has brought to photography the keen comprehension of the artist and as a result his work is considered par excellent by thousands of people. He was born in Saarbruecken, Germany, November 10, 1882, and is the son of Mary F. Hust and Nicolaus Hust. Following the acquirement of a thorough preliminary education, he studied at the Art Institute of Saarbruecken under Professor F. Kraft and was graduated in 1900.

Mr. Hust came to the United States in 1905 and soon thereafter engaged in the business of making artistic photographs. His work has won him a large clientele and in addition awards and prizes at various exhibitions. Among the awards received were the gold medal offered by the Intermountain Photographers' association and the first prize at the Utah State fair. Under his immediate supervision, most of the photographs for the Press Club Book, "Men of Affairs in the State of Utah," were taken.

Mr. Hust is a member of the Woodmen of the World and the Loyal Order of Moose. He also is an active member of the German club and the German Turnverein.

Mr. Hust is married, his wife's maiden name having been Charlotte Zimmerman. To this union were born four children; Edith, 11 years old; Melvin, 9; Lottie, 7, and Raymond, 3.

In politics Mr. Hust is a Republican.



MORRIS LATIMER RITCHIE

MORRIS LATIMER RITCHIE, judge of the district court of the Third Judicial district, is one of the most prominent jurists and lawyers in the State of Utah. His judgment on problems of law and his decisions in legal cases generally are voted sound by members of the bar. He was born in Lewistown, Illinois, January 24, 1858, and is the son of Mary Louise Latimer-Ritchie and Henderson Ritchie. His early youth was spent in Lewistown.

The intermountain west proved the magnet that finally drew young Ritchie to it. In January, 1891, he arrived in Salt Lake City, and here he has made his home ever since. When the people of Utah divided on party lines, following the entrance of the territory into the constellation of States, Judge Ritchie lined up with the Republicans, having previously been affiliated with the G. O. P. in Illinois. He has been prominent in the councils of the party, and his advice has been sought and given in campaigns of the past. He was honored by election to the position of district judge, which he now holds.

Judge Ritchie is married. His wife's maiden name was Lily Munsell. To them were born: Rosamond, aged 23; Oliver Henderson, 21, and Elizabeth, 13. The family home is at 1171 First avenue.

Judge Ritchie is a member of the Masonic and A. O. U. W. fraternities and of the Alta club. He is one of the leading citizens of the State.

WILLIAM O. KAY

AMONG the young men of Salt Lake who have made strides along the road of success during the past few years is William O. Kay. Mr. Kay was born November 21, 1877, in Ogden, Utah. He is the son of Ovedia M. Kay and David M. Kay, one of the most prominent men in the state of Utah. His grandfather, William Kay, was also a prominent bishop in the Mormon church.

Mr. Kay spent his early life in Ogden, being educated in the public schools of that city. Not being content with the progress of the industries in the town of Ogden, Mr. Kay began to branch out.

While his interests are centered in the company in which he is general manager, Mr. Kay has become financially interested with a great many other enterprises in various sections of the state.

In politics Mr. Kay has always been a staunch and reliable Republican, but has been so actively engaged in business life that he has never been a candidate for office.

In social life he is a member of the Elks and of the United Commercial Travelers. The career which Mr. Kay has made for himself has marked him as one of the leading business men of the community and his success has been achieved by his own industry and application to his business. He is well and popularly known throughout the inter-mountain region. In addition to his position as general manager of the W. O. Kay elevator company and in connection with the wholesale grain and seed business Mr. Kay is a director of the Guardian Casualty and Guaranty company; president of the W. O. Kay Investment company; president of the O. K. Ranch company; president of the Union Trust and Bank company; director of the Cache Junction Banking company and president of the Tropical Investment company.

WILLIAM A. LEATHAM

WILLIAM A. LEATHAM was born on February 12, 1872, and has made his home in Salt Lake City the greater part of his life. He received his early education in the public schools and later attended business college. During the first term of C. M. Brown as county assessor of Salt Lake county, Mr. Leatham entered the office as a deputy. He remained there during Mr. Brown's incumbency and was made chief deputy when Amos Gabbott was elected as assessor. In 1912 he was nominated on the Republican ticket for county assessor and was elected to the position by a handsome majority. He was nominated for a second term in 1914 but went down to defeat with the Republican ticket in Salt Lake county.

During the time the Panama-Pacific exposition was open Mr. Leatham was superintendent of the Utah building. With a competent force of assistants, Mr. Leatham put "Utah on the map" at the fair, the exhibit attracting one of the largest crowds registered at any state exhibit.

Mr. Leatham was married to Miss Florence Beck of Salt Lake, the daughter of Peter and Isabel Beck of Salt Lake. They have no children.

MAHLON E. WILSON

MAHLON E. WILSON, one of the best known attorneys of Salt Lake, was born in Plymouth, Richland county, Ohio, November 13, 1874. He is the son of Robert Wilson and Mary H. Moss-Wilson. When only a little boy, he declared he was going to become a lawyer some day. Following a course in the public schools of his home town, he went to High school and then the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, where he realized his ambition. He was graduated from that institution in 1889.

For about two years, he practiced his profession in his home state, and then sought more promising fields. He came to Utah in 1901, taking up his residence in Salt Lake. His success in the courts gained him a large practice.

Mr. Wilson has been honored by appointment by the Supreme court to a number of important legal committees. He is independent in politics and has not aspired to political office. His practice has been such as to require almost all his time, and he has left the game of politics to the other fellow. He is a member of the Alta club.

Mr. Wilson was married to Miss Effie Hester Bollinger, and they have one son, Robert Conrad Wilson, 8 years of age.

ALFRED O. JACOBSON

THE continued wonderful growth of the mining industry in the state of Utah is due in the greatest measure to such men as Alfred O. Jacobson, 201 Judge building. Mr. Jacobson has been a prominent figure in the western mining world for years. He has an intimate knowledge of all the producing camps of the state and his opinion as expert is given great weight by mining men generally. He was born in Salt Lake City in 1871 and is the son of Anna Norine-Jacobson and Anton Jacobson.

Mr. Jacobson received his early education at St. Mark's and in the public schools of Nevada. At the age of thirteen he began working in the mines, which were just then beginning to attract the attention of the world at large to Utah, and its store of precious metals. He literally worked his way through all the graduations of the industry, acquiring at each step a thorough knowledge of that particular phase of the work.

Mr. Jacobson has been one of the biggest boosters of the Alta-Cottonwoods district. He is president and general manager of the Sells Mining company, president and general manager of the Alta Consolidated Mining company, general manager of the Michigan-Utah Mining company and consulting engineer of the Columbus Extension Mining company. He is a director of the Merchants bank and is interested in a number of commercial and industrial enterprises.

Mr. Jacobson is a member of the Masons, Elks and Knights of Pythias. He also is an active member of the Commercial club. In politics, he is non-partisan.

Mr. Jacobson has a family of an even dozen—six boys and six girls. The family home is at 644 East Sixth South street.

JOSEPH T. FARRER

THE substantial growth of Provo, the "Garden City of Utah," is due in great measure to the efforts of progressive, public-spirited citizens, who have banded themselves together to boost the common weal. Included among the leading financiers and business men of the city and standing in the front rank of the boosters, is Joseph T. Farrer, cashier of Provo Commercial & Savings bank. He is the son of Agnes Farrer and Roger Farrer. His education was obtained at the grade schools and at the Brigham Young university at Provo.

For more than a score of years Mr. Farrer has been engaged in mercantile, mining and banking pursuits. He has varied interests and is president and director of the following corporations: Farrer Brothers company, dry goods; Grand Central Mining company, the Central Hill Mining company, the Iron King Mining company. He is vice-president and director of the Gold Chain Mining company, Provo Drug company, Chipman Jewelry company and the Albion Mining company. He also is secretary-treasurer and director of the Utah Wholesale Grocery company.

Mr. Farrer is an active member of the Provo Commercial club and his counsel and suggestions always are given great weight by that body. He is a member of the Woodmen of the World. In politics he is Republican.

Mr. Farrer is married, his wife's maiden name having been Sarah Chipman. To this union were born the following children: Leland J., 25 years old; Salena C., 19, and Fred C., 10. The family home is at 70 East Second South, Provo.

MARK P. BRAFFET

MARK P. BRAFFET, attorney-at-law, and president of the Salt Lake Stock & Mining Exchange, ranks high in both legal and mining circles. His election to the presidency of the local exchange in January, 1916, was a tangible recognition of his knowledge of mining. His knowledge of law, especially of that relating to mining operations, was recognized a number of years ago when he was retained as attorney by the Utah Fuel company, one of the largest fuel concerns in the United States, and by its subsidiaries. Mr. Braffet was born at Malugin's Grove, Lee county, Illinois, and is the son of Ella S. Billings-Braffet and Dr. James H. Braffet.

Mr. Braffet came to Utah in 1891, after he had become convinced that this state offered the best field for a young man starting out in life. He settled in Carbon county and served as county clerk and recorder in 1895-6. During that time he applied himself diligently during his spare moments to the study of law, with the result that he was admitted to the bar. Information about coal mining gained while in Carbon county proved of great value when he was made attorney for the Utah Fuel company.

Mr. Braffet is interested in the Paloma and a number of mining companies. He is a director of the May Day Mining company, the Lower Mammoth Mining company and the Uncle Sam Mining company. He is a member of the executive committee of the Utah Chapter of the American Mining Congress. The Alta club claims him as a member.

Mr. Braffet is married his wife's maiden name having been Hannah Johnson. The following children were born to the union: R. L., 22 years old; Maude, 20, and James H. Braffet, 18.

CHARLES R. MABEY

CHARLES R. MABEY, one of the prominent young men of the state, has been active in public affairs for a number of years. He was born in Bountiful in 1877, and has resided there the greater part of his life. In 1898, when war was declared against Spain, Mr. Mabey had just reached his majority and enlisted in the Utah battery. He distinguished himself in the engagement fought before Manila. After being mustered out, he returned to Utah and pursued his course of studies at the University of Utah. He fulfilled a mission in Germany and then taught school for a number of years in Bountiful and at the branch normal at Cedar City.

In 1912, he was nominated on the Republican ticket as a candidate to the lower house of the state legislature from Davis county and elected. He took an active part in the work of that body and was chairman of the committee on committees which was appointed at that session to divide up the chairmen and members of each committee. On account of his record he was renominated and again elected to the legislature in 1914.

Mr. Mabey was identified with the Utah Development league for a number of years, being a member of the governing board. He is also an active member of the Salt Lake Commercial club. He was one of the organizers of the Bountiful State bank and is at present cashier of that institution. He married Miss Afton Rampton of Bountiful, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Rampton. They have three children.

EBER W. HALL

EBER W. HALL is a son of Selden S. and Lorinda M. Hall. He was born March 21, 1868, at Brighton, Loraine county, Ohio. He spent his boyhood in Ohio. On account of sickness in his early youth his education was neglected until later years. He later took a business course in the Lawrence business college, Lawrence, Kansas, whence he moved with his parents in youth. He attended this school two years, 1892 and 1893, and when thoroughly prepared for the business field, studied the profession of undertaking and embalming. He entered that business and has achieved an enviable position in Salt Lake in that profession.

Mr. Hall is married and his children are Bernice, Howard Pratt, Glendolyn and Genevieve Hall. Mrs. Hall before her marriage was Artie L. Pratt.

Much of Mr. Hall's time and energy are given to the various fraternal organizations of which he is a member. These include Mount Moriah lodge No. 2, F. & A. M.; Utah Chapter No. 1, Royal Arch Masons; Utah Commandery No. 1, Knights Templars; El Kalah Temple, Ancient Accepted Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine; Salt Lake lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F.; Calanthe-Myrtle lodge No. 1, Knights of Pythias; Utah camp No. 338, Woodmen of the World; Modern Woodmen of America; Salt Lake lodge No. 85, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and Salt Lake Aerie No. 67, Fraternal Order of Eagles. He also is an active and energetic member of the Commercial club of Salt Lake, the Utaida Rod and Gun club, and of the Automobile club of Utah. He is a Republican in politics.

PAN KASSINIKOS

DR. PAN KASSINIKOS, physician and newspaper publisher, holds a prominent place among the molders of public opinion in the state of Utah. Through the columns of "The Light," a weekly newspaper owned by him and published in the Greek language, thousands of his countrymen in the state get his opinions on important matters of general interest. Dr. Kassinikos is the son of Stamatina and Konstantine Kassinikos, and was born in Greece in 1867.

Following completion of the public and high school courses in his native land, Dr. Kassinikos attended the University of Athens, where he specialized in the study of medicine. He was graduated as physician and surgeon in 1891. For a number of years he successfully practiced his profession in Greece and then decided to cast his lot with the ever-growing number of his countrymen in the United States. He came to Utah in 1906 and since that time has been one of the most influential members of the Greek community.

"The Light," weekly Greek newspaper, has been owned and published by Dr. Kassinikos for about six years. Its address is 163 South Fourth West street.

Dr. Kassinikos is married, his wife's maiden name having been Matina Anastassopoulou. The family home is at 903 First avenue.

In politics, Dr. Kassinikos is a Republican.

Our Honored Dead

RT. REV. LAWRENCE SCANLAN, D. D.

BELOVED by the members of his own large and increasing flock, and honored and respected because of the breadth and kindliness of his character by thousands of others, the Right Reverend Laurence Scanlan, D. D., Bishop of the Catholic diocese of Salt Lake, has as large a following, both in the church and out of it, as any man in the intermountain region.

Bishop Scanlan was born in Ireland. He gained his education at All Hallows College, Dublin, Ireland, and was ordained a priest June 24, 1868. He came to the United States at once after his ordination, landing at New York, and going thence to California by way of the Isthmus of Panama. He was assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church, San Francisco for two years, and then assistant pastor of St. Mary's cathedral for one year. He was appointed pastor of the church at Woodland, Sonoma county in 1871, remaining six months. His next call was to Pioche, a mining camp in Nevada, where he exerted his influence for better conditions for eighteen months. In 1873 he was transferred to Petaluma, California, where he remained six months, when came the call to Salt Lake City. He was appointed pastor of St. Mary's church and had charge of the entire territory until 1887. He became Vicar-General under Bishop Allamany of San Francisco in 1875, and established other parishes in Utah. There are now twelve parishes and forty missions in the state. He was consecrated Bishop of Laranda and Vicar-Apostolic of Utah, June 29, 1887, and in 1891 was transferred from Bishop of Laranda to Bishop of Salt Lake. He founded St. Mary's Academy in 1875, and in 1881 he built the Holy Cross Hospital, Salt Lake. He built All Hallows College in 1886, conducting it as its president for two years. He has supervision also over Kearns-St. Ann's Orphanage. On July 4, 1889, he broke the ground for the construction of St. Mary's Cathedral, one of the finest church edifices in the west.

Bishop Scanlan has worked with wonderful power toward the upbuilding of the church in Utah. He built the Ogden church in 1876. In 1879 he built the Sacred Heart Academy in Ogden; and built churches and schools in Park City, Castle Gate, Bingham and Eureka. He has always been foremost in matters of civic Bishop Scanlan died May 10th, 1915.

FRANKLIN SPENCER SPALDING

BISHOP of one of the best represented Episcopalean institutions in the west, and a man who is a staunch and conscientious believer in his own convictions; when sorrows of others are presented to his personal notice, Bishop Franklin Spencer Spalding is one of the first to respond, and if it is within his power so to do he will comfort those who may seek his assistance. Bishop Spalding has the highest possible standing in the community, and is loved by all who have the pleasure of knowing him personally. As a speaker he is second to none, as is evidenced by the size of his congregations. He has the distinction of being the bishop of the Episcopal District of Utah.

Bishop Spalding was born March 13, 1865, in Erie, Pennsylvania, and is the son of Lavina Deborah and John Franklin Spalding, both well known throughout that section of the United States as ardent church workers. His early schooling was acquired in the public schools of the State in which he was born. His collegiate education was perfected at Princeton university, New Jersey, he having graduated from that renowned institution in 1887.

He has, since his youthful years, been a member of the clergy, and has friends throughout the United States who would be pleased at any time to see him transferred to their home towns. He has never aspired to become a member of any fraternal organization, and has remained unmarried.

Although he seldom takes what might be termed an active part in matters pertaining to politics, he is a firm believer and exponent of the principles of the Socialistic party. Besides being a member of the Utah corporation termed the Episcopal Church of Utah, Bishop Spalding is closely connected with the work in connection with St. Mark's hospital of Salt Lake City, and a member of the corporation of that name. He is a man whom, if one meets once one is desirous of meeting often.

Bishop Spalding died Sept. 25th, 1914.

FRANK KNOX

BORN at Washington, Iowa, Frank Knox came to the far west as a recruit from the more thickly populated section of the country. His parents were William and Elizabeth Short Knox. He himself married Miss Julia M. Granby at Red Oak, Iowa, in 1882. They have three children: De Witt, George G. and Frances May Knox.

Mr. Knox's boyhood was spent on his father's farm, and he attended the public schools and later for a brief time the Washington academy at his native town.

His business career started as messenger of the First National bank at Washington, Iowa, when he was 15 years of age. He continued with that organization until he was assistant cashier In 1885 he resigned and moved to Osborne, Kansas, where he organized the First National bank, in which he was one of the principal owners and cashier. Soon he became associated as president and chief owner of two state banks in Kansas.

He came to Salt Lake City in January, 1890, and immediately organized the National Bank of the Republic. It was opened in May of that year, Mr. Knox being its president and general manager. He has since been in charge of this growing institution, now one of the largest banks between Denver and the Pacific coast.

Mr. Knox has large holdings in Salt Lake City real estate and mining interests in Utah and Nevada. He is a member of the American Bankers' association and has served several times as vice-president for Utah, and was for one term a member of the executive council. He takes a deep interest in the things which pertain to the betterment of Salt Lake City and Utah generally. He is a well-known clubman, belonging to the Alta, Country and Commercial clubs of Salt Lake City.

Mr. Knox died Sept. 25th, 1915.

LEWIS SAMUEL HILLS

LEWIS SAMUEL HILLS, prominent banker, was born March 8, 1836, at South Amherst, Massachusetts. He is a son of Lewis Hills, a farmer, and Rhoda Thayer Hills. He was educated in the public and high schools of Springfield, Massachusetts, and came to Salt Lake City July 27, 1862. Associated with Captain William H. Hooper and Horace S. Eldredge, he started the private bank of Hooper, Eldredge & Co., with $40,000 capital, on May 1, 1869. This firm was incorporated under the National Bank act, in 1872, as the Deseret National bank, and Mr. Hills became cashier, occupying that position until January, 1892, when he became president.

Mr. Hills has many and diversified interests and has served as a director of the Deseret Savings bank, the Zion's Co-operative Mercantile institution, the Consolidated Wagon & Machine company, the Home Fire Insurance company, Beneficial Life Insurance company, the Utah Fire Clay company, the Nephi Plaster company, the First National Bank of Ogden, First National Bank of Murray, Nephi National Bank, Thatcher Brothers Bank of Logan, Davis County Bank of Farmington and Barnes Banking company of Kaysville. He is a shareholder in the Oregon Lumber company, Amalgamated Sugar company, Utah-Idaho Sugar company, and numerous other large corporations.

Mr. Hills was the first receiver of the United States land office at Salt Lake, and served two terms in the city council of Salt Lake. He was married to Theresa Burton October 17, 1866, and to them were born six children: Lewis B., Maria T., Edgar S., Eugene R., Herbert T. (deceased), and Harold H. Hills.

Mr. Hills died July 22nd, 1915.

ORLANDO W. POWERS

JUDGE ORLANDO W. POWERS, one of the leading lights of the Utah bar, was born at Pultneyville, New York, in 1850. He entered the University of Michigan in 1871, and two years later began his notable career as a lawyer. In 1874 he took the stump in Michigan for the Democratic party, and that same year was elected chairman of the Kalamazoo Democratic county committee. Two years following another honor was bestowed upon him, when he was elected city attorney of Kalamazoo, Michigan. This same year he toured Michigan and Indiana for Samuel J. Tilden, Democratic nominee for president.

Four years later Mr. Powers was nominated for Congress from the Fourth Michigan district, but was defeated by his Republican contemporary, Julius C. Burrows. But Mr. Powers was still prominent in Michigan politics, and was a delegate in 1884 to the Democratic national convention at Chicago.

The next year found Mr. Powers in Utah, as associate justice of the Third district court at Ogden, being given that appointment by President Grover Cleveland. The year following he returned to Michigan and edited the Daily Democrat at Grand Rapids. He married the next year, his bride being Miss Anna Whipple of Burlington, Iowa. A son was born to them, Don Whipple Powers, but he died when two years old.

In 1889 Judge Powers returned to Utah, and in 1890 he was selected by the Liberal party as chairman of the territorial committee and head of that party. In 1897 he was candidate for the United States senate, but withdrew for Moses Thatcher, who was defeated. In 1898 Judge Powers was candidate for the United States senate, and the State senate made no choice.

He was the nominee of the Democratic party for congress in 1904 and in 1906. He was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in 1908, and seconded the nomination of William J. Bryan.

Judge Powers died at Salt Lake January 2, 1914. His widow and one son, Roger Powers, survive him.

WILLIAM HAZARD BANCROFT

NO MAN has contributed more to the development of the State of Utah and, indeed, the entire west, than W. H. Bancroft, a resident of Salt Lake and the vice-president of the Oregon Short Line. He stands as the dean of the coterie of railroad men who have made Salt Lake City the center of a network of rails extending into every corner of the country.

Most of Mr. Bancrofts's life has been spent in railroading, and he is a thorough master of the intricate details of that profession.

Like many of the pioneers of the west, Mr. Bancroft was born a Buckeye. His parents, Samuel O. Bancroft and Mary B. Bancroft, were of a celebrated Ohio family, and the subject of this sketch was born at their home in Newburg, October 30, 1840.

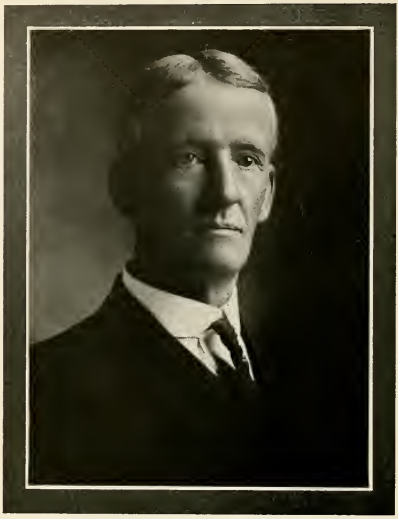
Mr. Bancroft, already selected for a quick rise in the railroad world, came to Salt Lake City in 1884 and began immediately to make a name for himself which was first local and then national.

The mainstay of the Harriman interests in the west, Mr. Bancroft now holds office as vice-president of the Oregon Short Line, first vice-president of the Los Angeles & Salt Lake railroad, and also president of the Utah Light & Railroad company.

He is independent in politics, a member of the Alta, Country and Commercial clubs and a Mason.

Mrs. Bancroft was Mary I. Baird. There are two daughters, Marie and Adelaide.

Mr. Bancroft died April 22nd, 1915.



WILLIAM BOWEN.

MORE has been accomplished in Utah in the last few years along the plumbing and heating lines than was accomplished in two decades previously, and it has taken such enterprising men as William Bowen to show the world what really can be done in Utah. Mr. Bowen, who was born April 25, 1858, in Hannibal, Mo., came to Utah in May, 1902. Since his arrival here he has not only followed his profession of steamfitting and furnishing plumbing supplies, but has become identified with many of Utah's greatest financial institutions.

His parents were Martha Scott Cunningham-Bowen and William Bowen. His ancesters settled in Virginia about 1712. They were of Welsh-English descent. His grandfather, Adam Bowen, was a pioneer of Hannibal, Mo., and a veteran of the war of 1812. His grandfather, Noble Clinton Cunningham, was a captain of Scotts army in the Mexican war and went to California in 1849. He was the first chief of police of Sacramento, Cal.

Mr. Bowen is manager for the Crane Company of Salt Lake City. He is independent in politics. Mr. Bowen attended the public schools at St. Louis, Mo.

His wife was formerly Miss Agnes C. Lange. One daughter is living, Agnes Mary Bowen. Mr. Bowen is a member of both the Alta and the Commercial Clubs of Salt Lake City. Aside from his business connections, Mr. Bowen is a practical machinist and engineer, and spent eight years on the ocean as a marine engineer. He has made a life study of sanitation and applied steam. His father was a steamboat owner and pilot on the Mississippi river, and through the Civil war performed the greatest feat of piloting ever performed on that stream. Previous to that, while president of the Pilot Association, he was commodore of the fleet of steam boats which was sent by the people of St. Louis, Mo., to Alton, Ill., to meet President Andrew Jackson, who came on the first train that ran from the Atlantic ocean to the Mississippi.

Mr. Bowen died Nov. 16th, 1915.
